A Sunday gone to meetin' Carter in Plains

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Years ago, Crackerjack learned the benefits of mixing peanuts with popcorn.

It took Steve Wasserman a little longer.

He didn't discover the potential of those two ingredients until two weeks ago. That's when the magic formula brought him together with the President in a small classroom at the Plains, Ga., Baptist Church.

WASSERMAN, 25, of Hoffman Estates is a salesman with the Iroquois Popcorn Co., Elk Grove Village.

A couple of months back, he was considering ways to improve business, and he was struck with the thought that there have been an awful lot of tourists going through Plains since its favorite son was elected President of the United States.

"I came up with the idea that there might be a fair amount of money transacted in Plains, and they might be able to use a popcorn wagon down there," he recalls.

As it turned out, George Williams, the owner of the Peanut Museum in Plains, had no use for a popcorn wagon. But he allowed as how there might be a spot for a peanut warming wagon.

IT HAPPENS that a subsidiary of Iroquois Popcorn sells a peanut wagon, so Wasserman and a friend, Ed Garber of Skokie, pulled into Plains Feb. 12.

"It was one of these old towns that are about a block long," Wasserman remembers. "It was sort of a neat little place, somewhere where you wouldn't want to live."

They took in all the sights: the ballfield where Jimmy played as a boy, the house where he grew up, Billy Carter's gas station and the Carter family's peanut warehouse.

And then came Sunday and a visit to the Plains Baptist Church. When they got there, the lines already had formed, but Williams ushered them inside and introduced them to a couple of Secret Service agents.

FROM THERE, they went into a Sunday school classroom. It was a small room, filled with about 30 folding chairs. Wasserman took a seat by the aisle, and Garber sat next to him.

The room was almost full when the Parks lighting plans to have village review

Arlington Heights village engineers are evaluating the park district's plans for 70-foot high, 1,000-watt athletic field lights at Recreation Park to determine if glare will be directed at nearby homes.

Village Engineer Allen Sander said a report will be delivered to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson when the study is completed.

"I'm extremely concerned about reflection onto nearby homes and also whether traffic down Northwest Highway will be distracted by the lights," Park Comr. Kathryn Graham said. "I think this is one case where baseball has become more important than people."

GENERAL-OBLIGATION bonds issued after a park district referendum last October will pay for the $265,000 worth of lighting at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.; Centennial Park, 1200 Burr Oak Dr., and the Wilke-Kirchoff basin.

"Due to the size of the area we have to have high poles and wattage," Wallace Weld, the electrical engineer who designed the lighting, said.

Sixty-foot high poles will be used at the Wilke-Kirchoff basin field and 40-foot high poles are planned at Centennial Park.

Park Board Pres. Lloyd W. Meyer approved of the height of the poles, saying, "I hope they would even be 80 or 90 feet because 70 feet isn't really high enough to light the area.

"THE ONLY PEOPLE affected are people in right field and there are only about two houses there," he said. "Besides, the reflection of the light will be onto the field, not the homes.

"It's typical of them (the village) to want to complain about something before it happens. We've needed lights in this town for a long time and I'm glad we're getting them," Meyer said. "I'm really a little bitter about this whole thing."

Weld said Thomas Thornton, parks director, told him there are "practically no homes" adjacent to Recreation Park, but Mrs. Graham said, "Maybe Mr. Weld should have gone out to see for himself that there are homes on Belmont that will be affected."

Weld said horizontal louvers that block glare at certain angles can be installed on the lights after they are built if reflection onto homes is a problem. The shares cost $50 each plus labor, he said.

TRUSTEE FRANK Palmatier said, "There seems to be a difference of opinion between the park's electrical engineer and our electrical engineer about when metal shades should be installed.

"The park people would like to wait and see if there is a problem before doing it and our own people feel the shades should be put on when the poles are installed," he said.

Mrs. Graham agreed with the village's position. "I'm willing to have the metal shades put on from the beginning. Why wait and see if there will be trouble when you can avoid it from the start?"

Bids on the lighting contract will open at 3 p.m. Monday, but Weld said shades could be added to plans after a bid is awarded.

House OKs public works jobs bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday approved a $4 billion bill for local public works projects throughout the country, which sponsors said would create 600,000 jobs.

The vote was 295 to 85.

It was the first specific piece of President Carter's $31 billion economic stimulus plan to pass either branch of Congress. The Senate has yet to act.

The $4 billion is in addition to $2 billion for local public works that Congress enacted last year over President Gerald Ford's veto and that recently was distributed to nearly 2,000 communities.

SPONSORS SAID the new money will be targeted much more at areas of high unemployment than the first $2 billion. Some of that money went to wealthy communities such as Palm Desert, Calif., while high unemployment cities such as Pittsburgh and Seattle got none.

The bill changes several provisions in the original law that led to that kind of distribution. It eliminates a requirement that 30 per cent of the funds be reserved for communities with unemployment below the national average.

Under it, a wealthy suburb no longer will be allowed to apply for funds on the basis of unemployment figures for a surrounding county or metropolitan area. It must use its own unemployment figure.

HOWEVER AT the last moment, the House adopted a distribution formula that takes some money away from states with high unemployment rates and distributes it among others. The losers were Puerto Rico and nine states: California, Connecticut, Florida, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island and Washington.

States such as Texas, Georgia, Arizona, Ohio and Illinois, with somewhat lower unemployment rates, would gain under the last-minute formula change. The shift followed more than an hour of parliamentary maneu-

Father's trial in drown case begins Monday

The trial of an Arlington Heights man, accused of attempting to drown his son, will begin Monday.

James Loughnane, 39, a former Chicago policeman, will face charges he attempted in 1975 to murder his then 16-year-old son, Michael during a boat outing on Lake Michigan.

Loughnane, who resided at 522 S. Cleveland Ave. at the time of the incident, allegedly had taken out two insurance policies on his son totaling $120,000 before the incident June 29, 1975, when his son was thrown from their boat and allegedly left to drown.

THE BOY WAS rescued by a passing boat after he managed to remain afloat for an hour using survival techniques he learned at Arlington High School.

Cook County Circuit Judge Robert Sklodowski Thursday set the case for trial after refusing defense attorney Edward Jenson's request for another three-week delay in the nearly two year old case.

Jenson told the court he took over the case three weeks ago from his law associate, Sam Adam, and has not had sufficient time to prepare a defense.

He said he had not been aware of a

CHARLES COLSON

Colson now a servant of the Lord

by NANCY GOTLER

Much of the slick style and smooth delivery learned during his political years remain, but Charles Colson has changed his message.

Colson, a self-described "tough White House hatchet man," former special counsel to President Richard M. Nixon and an ex-convict, Thursday night addressed about 1,000 members of the National Assn. of Evangelicals at the Arlington Park Hilton, begging them to accept the sincerity of his new image and mission.

"The greatest joy and blessing of my life is that Jesus has called me to be his servant," Colson, who barely glanced at a prepared text during his 50-minute address, said.

"ONE OF THE GREATEST joys I've ever had has not been walking in and out of my office next to the President's in the White House or hearing Hail to the Chief or flying in Air Force One," Colson said.

"My greatest joy has been to sit at the breakfast table and read the stacks of mail from people who have read my book."

Colson's bestseller, "Born Again," has sold 430,000 hardback copies. One million paperback editions are being printed.

The book carried by many young persons attending the convention, tells in Colson's own words how he turned to religion during his lonely months in prison.

COLSON IS recognized immediately by those familiar with the dozens of photographs of him circulated during the Watergate days, but there are some changes.

Gone is the protruding stomach and pouchy double chin. He looks younger, despite the fact that three years have passed. But the conservative dark suit, white shirt and self-assured attitude remain.

He talks about his seven months in prison when, "I used to lie on the bunk and feel the walls closing in."

And of his creation, with former Sen. Harold Hughes, of Iowa, of Fellowship House in Washington, D.C., a missionary program to reach "those poor, lost souls" in the nation's prisons.

"I've been at the pinnacle in the White House and at the very depths in prison," he said, "and learned the same thing in both places — that man can't change man, only God can. And if the life of Charles Colson stands for one thing I hope it is that."

Hospitals get bigger tax chunk

by KURT BAER

An average Cook County homeowner will pay $2 more in real estate taxes next year for the continued operation of the county hospitals.

Another $2.30 will be added for the cost of running the Cook County Forest Preserve District. But taxes for the county's general fund are expected to drop about $5.15 on an average bill next year.

The tax increases and decreases are the result of 1977 budgets approved by the county board Thursday.

The total county real estate tax will not be known until March 14, however, at which time the board is scheduled to adopt its 1977 tax levy ordinance.

THE BOARD VOTED to hike the Cook County Health and Hospitals Governing Commission's tax rate by 10 per cent, from slightly more than 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year to just over 22 cents per $100 of assessed valuation next year.

The increase is less than the 25 cents per $100 assessed value that the commission requested and Dr. James G. Haughton, commission executive director, said it would mean continued financial problems at Cook County, Cermak and Oak Forest Hospitals which are run by the county.

"We'll deliver whatever amount of health care that money can buy," Haughton said after the board action. "The county board has said they want us to operate with a decreased budget of $169 million and we'll provide as much as we can within that figure."

The county board slashed $14.4 million from the commission's budget request and, although the county board cannot veto individual items in the hospital budget, the board made three recommendations:

- Limit raises for hospital employes to 4.8 per cent, equal to the 1976 increase in consumer prices.
- Limit the increase of all other budget increases, except capital expenditures, to 4.7 per cent of the 1976 budget which equals the 1977 wholesale price increase.
- Spend $4.1 million on capital improvements.

Haughton said it was not realistic to suggest that hospital employe raises be set at 4.8 per cent when 6,500 of county hospitals' 9,000 employes are under union contracts that call for raises of 5.5 to 9 per cent.

USING THE WHOLESALE price index as a standard for the rest of the hospital budget is "ridiculous," Haughton said. The cost of medical equipment and supplies has been increasing at 10 per cent or more a year, he said.

The county board made relatively few changes in its own $187 million budget. But the budget for the Forest Preserve District was increased by $5 million to $38.6 million.

Included in the district's budget are plans to hire 18 new rangers to patrol the 64,766 acres of county-owned park land.

The board rejected attempts by suburban commissioner Joseph A. Tecson to budget $100,000 for a Cook County economic development commission.

Tecson said Cook County is in a "life or death economic struggle." Every plant or employer that leaves Cook County has an impact on the suburbs and Chicago.

TECSON'S PROPOSAL was defeated on a party-line vote of 10-6. Democrats said they supported economic development, but had doubts about some of the specifics of Tecson's plan, including a proposal for county-issued industrial revenue bonds.

Suburban Comr. Harold L. Tyrrell was beaten in his attempt to cut 16 employes and $250,000 from the Cook County superintendent of schools.

"If the state mandates certain jobs, that is as far as we should go," Tyrrell said.

Body of Texas man found

Cook County Sheriff's police are investigating the apparent hit-and-run killing of a Houston, Tex., man whose body was found Thursday morning in Prospect Heights. The body of Bryan John Shaw was discovered at 10 a.m. by employes of the Cook County Highway Dept. along Milwaukee Avenue, two blocks south of Palatine Road. Police said Shaw, who had been attending an RCA Corp. training program in Rolling Meadows this week, was last seen about 8 p.m. Wednesday. He had been staying at the Clayton House Motel, 1090 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. Shaw was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, and was taken to the Cook County Institute for Forensic Medicine.

Tanker rams bridge, dumps two cars

HOPEWELL, Va. (UPI) — An out-of-control sulphur tanker, dropping its anchor in a fruitless effort to stop, smashed into a bridge over the James River Thursday, knocking out two huge sections and dumping at least two vehicles into the water.

Police were uncertain exactly how many vehicles were on the bridge at the time and whether there were any casualties.

Prince George County Sheriff John Atwood, said a recheck of witnesses showed at least two cars waiting for the tanker, the Marine Floridian, to pass under the Benjamin Harrison Bridge, plunged into the river.

The driver of one of the vehicles scrambled to saftty, before his white van fell. The other driver was not immediately accounted for, Atwood said.

At least three persons fled to safety before their vehicles fell into the river.

A Coast Guard spokesman said divers were searching the cold, murky river for more vehicles.

The Coast Guard said the ship was headed downstream after unloading molten sulphur at a nearby Allied Chemical Corp. plant when its steering apparently went awry about 7 a.m.

A spokesman said the crew of the 33-year-old tanker, owned by Marine Navigation Sulphur Carriers of Wilmington, Del., dropped anchor, but it was too late to avoid the bridge.

One concrete span collapsed into the river and a 360-foot section of steel girder fell on the ship's midsection.

IRONWORKER Wayne Bolton, 31, and a companion had gotten out of his Ford Ranchero to watch the ship go by.

He said he saw the vessel veer away from the raised span and towards the side of the river. He said they bolted for safety.

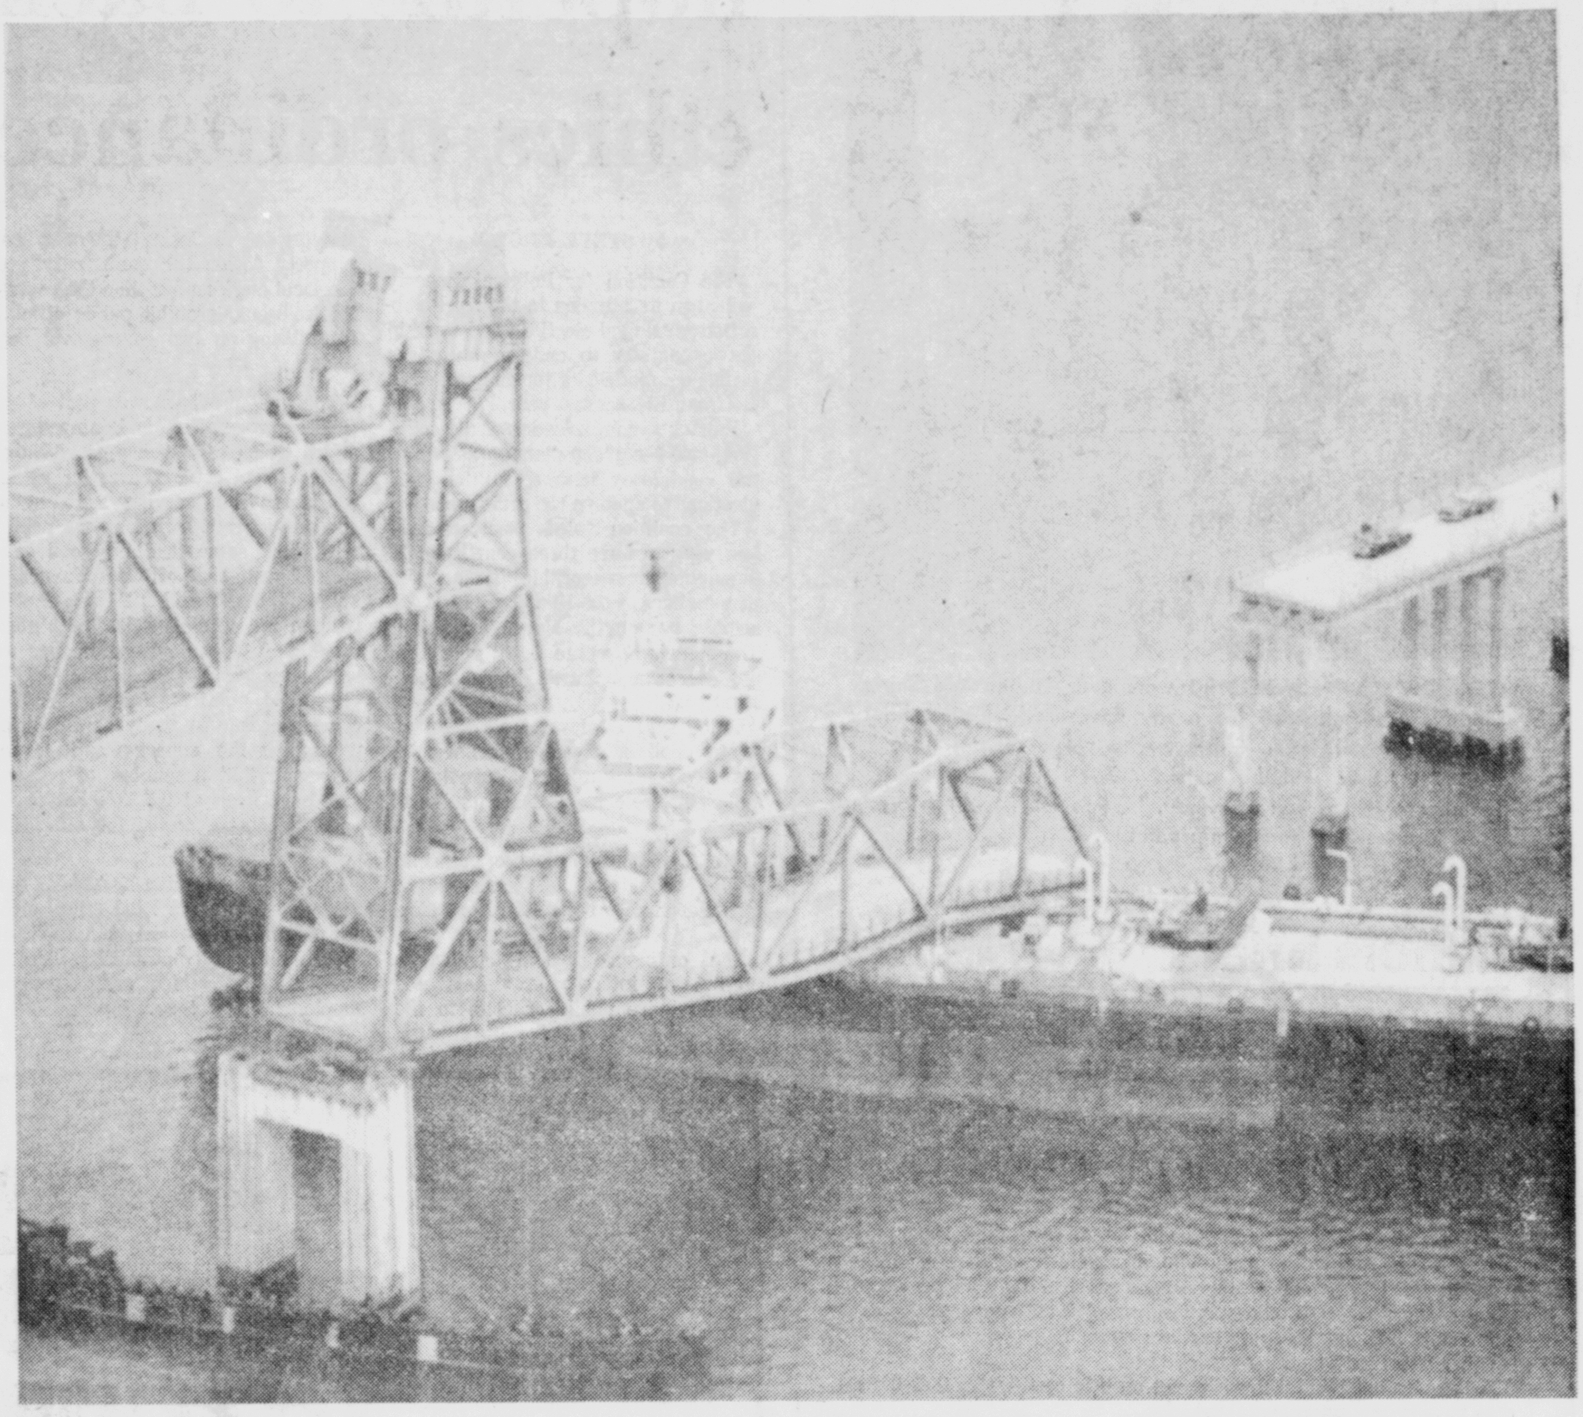

"I saw the ship coming downriver, about 100 yards away," Bolton said. "I said to my friend Paul, 'God, that ship is going to hit the bridge.' "

"There was a scraping noise, crunch-like — no big boom," Bolton said. "The ship didn't look in too bad a shape. The ship eased right in and the bridge collapsed slowly.

"The truck lacked six inches from going in," Bolton said.

The state highway department estimated the damage at $1 million and said it could take six months to repair.

Waukegan nursing home abuses hit by state panel

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A legislative investigating commission Thursday criticized state agencies which oversee Illinois' public and private nursing homes and said one home "shocked the human conscience" with its alleged abuses.

The Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission, charged by the Illinois General Assembly with investigating the nursing home situation in Lake County, said in its report the conditions in the 30 Lake County homes are applicable to the rest of the state.

The commission, which has also been ordered to investigate nursing homes across the state, listed a series of 48 alleged abuses and problems at the All Seasons Nursing Center in Waukegan. But it added the other facilities in the county in general provide adequate patient care.

LATER IN the day, the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education announced that the owners of the All Seasons Nursing Center consented to revocation of their licenses for the Waukegan home and four other homes they operate for participation in a Medicare fraud scheme.

"All Seasons Nursing Center truly shocks the human conscience with the conditions and practices which prevailed there," the report said.

The ILIC said conditions at the All Seasons home, which prompted the commission's investigation, show that the owners' have a preoccupation with profits of the home rather than patient care.

The commission said All Seasons abused the residents' $25 a month allowance and was "grossly overpaid" for substandard care and services rendered to public-sponsored residents."

THE HOME CUT corners on costs, had inadequate medical services, and was deliberately understaffed, the commission said. These abuses led to maggot infestations in some female patients, some patients lay in their own wastes overnight, a mentally ill female patient was raped and restraints and sedatives were used indiscriminately. Fifteen mentally retarded residents also died at the home in a two-year period, the report said.

The ILIC said the state departments involved in financing, monitoring and utilizing the facilities usually had a "negative nature rather than a positive force in ensuring quality patient care and services." It also said the state has "failed miserably in its half-hearted attempts to provide quality patient care."

"The State of Illinois has encouraged, aided, abetted or acquiesced in the plethora of abuses and problems in the long-care field" through the agencies' performance, the report said.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health, the report said, is supposed to license and monitor the facilities, but is a "paper tiger" because it relies on compliance on paper and not in actual practice.

THE ILLINOIS Dept. of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities "dumps" its patients into the community without preparation for the outside world, the commission said.

Musicians want more jazz on TV

• Some of the nation's top jazz musicians want the Congressional Black Caucus to find out why there are no shows featuring their style of music on major television networks. Freddie Hubbard, John Handy and Nancy Wilson were among jazz stars singing a letter to the caucus this week, contending that viewers are being deprived of the cultural experience.

• Jack Ford, the 24-year-old son of former President Ford, has been named assistant to the publisher of Rolling Stone Magazine. Ford will begin work for the biweekly magazine March 4. He has a degree in forestry and will be involved in Rolling Stone's forthcoming outdoor magazine, Outside, which will debut in the fall. "I have always been interested in communicastions. I was attracted by the energy and personality of the people here," said Ford, who will move from Palm Springs to live in New York where the magazine is published.

• Dancer-actress Gwen Verdon, who recently left her role in the Broadway musical "Chicago" will make a guest appearance on the C B S-T V "Captain Kangaroo" show March 14. The captain has been featuring shining Hollywood stars nearly every day of the week for the past few months — giving the kiddies a glimpse of their film heroes and heroines.

• There are some people in the Northwest suburbs who are going to be turning on the heat, you might say, in the near future on Walter Cronkite's 5:30 p.m. news. A CBS news film crew was visiting the Palatine National Bank last week to do a story about its thermography, or energy audit program that's being coordinated with Thermography of Illinois Inc., Dundee.

Interested homeowners pay $50 to have a company representative come out to their homes where heat loss is detected with the same kind of equipment used by hospitals to detect breast cancer, said Wanda Mallow, marketing officer for Suburban Bank Group Inc. which owns the Palatine bank.

The bank is signing up residents interested in cutting down their gas bills from all over the Chicago area. The CBS film crew, and reporter Betty Ann Bowser, visited one family's home while the energy audit was in progress, finding heat leaks in places like fireplaces and windows where heat was seeping out. The film report will air on CBS next month sometime.

• The encounter went differently from the last time they met, several thousand feet over the South Pacific Island of Rabaul in 1944. For one thing, they weren't trying to shoot each other. Former Marine Corps Col. Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, the honor-winning World War II fighter pilot whose exploits inspired the television series "Baa Baa Black Sheep," strode to a podium earlier this week during a Kiwanis Club "brotherhood luncheon" and embraced a grinning Japanese, Masajiro Kawato, the former Japanese Imperial Navy ace who ended Boyington's combat career by shooting him down in an aerial duel. Boyington spent the last 20 months of the war in a Japanese POW camp.

MILDRED AND LEE Hoksbergen of Des Moines, Iowa, were driving along I-10 when they were descended upon by the Tucson Vigilantes, the county sheriff and the news media with lights flashing, pistols shooting and hanging ropes. For the 18th year, an unsuspecting couple was given a Western-style howdy and are guests for the Tucson, Ariz. rodeo activities this week.

Leaking tanker explodes, leaving 50-mile oil slick

HONOLULU (UPI) — A crippled Liberian tanker leaking millions of gallons of crude oil along a slick 50 miles long exploded in flames 360 miles west of Honolulu Thursday. All but one of the 39 crewmen aboard was rescued.

The 846-foot Hawaiian Patriot exploded hours after reporting a huge hole in its hull which leaked more than 5 million of the 30 million gallons of its oil cargo. The Coast Guard said the hole in the vessel may have been caused by the loss of an entire hull plate.

The merchant ship Philippine Bataan rescued 38 of the men who leaped into five-foot seas from the flaming vessel. One crewman died. Those aboard the rescue vessel were reported to have suffered only minor injuries.

The Coast Guard said a C130 reconnaissance plane was over the ship when it caught fire. The pilot said smoke was seen amidships a few minutes before the explosion, and the crew could be seen abandoning ship.

SECONDS LATER, the pilot reported, there was a "terrific explosion" and a huge cloud of black smoke. Hours later the ship was still burning fiercely.

The Coast Guard said the head of a 50-mile-long oil slick trailing the vessel also burst into flames when the explosion occurred at 10:40 a.m. Hawaii time.

The explosion aboard the Hawaiian Patriot, operated under charter by Groton Pacific Carriers, was the ninth in a series of accidents involving Liberian-registry vessels since Dec. 15.

It was the third Liberian merchant ship to be lost in the western Pacific in the last six weeks and the largest of six ships which went down in the area in the last year.

The 600-foot Irenes Challenger broke in half Jan. 21 and later sank, leaking 950 tons of fuel oil. Three crewmen were lost.

THE LIBERIAN-REGISTERED Rose S., 518 feet long, disappeared Feb. 13 with its cargo of logs and 31 crewmen.

The Panamanian lumber ship Crown Pearl was abandoned when its cargo broke loose in heavy seas Jan. 24. All 25 crewmen were rescued, but the 370-foot vessel sank under two during attempted salvage efforts.

In 1976, two ships were lost, the Panamanian log vessel Carnelian-1 and the Japantse fishing vessel Houei Maru No. 5.

Air Force helicopters were rushed to the scene to pick up survivors and transport them to French Frigate Shoals, northwest of Hawaii, where two doctors were available at a Coast Guard station.

The Coast Guard cutter Buttonwood and a commercial tug were en route to the scene but not expected to arrive for several hours.

The Hawaiian Patriot's master reported before the explosion that the gash was 17 feet by 35 feet. The cause of the damage was not known.

House OKs $4 billion public works jobs bill

vering among states as to which would get the most money.

The formula adopted was proposed by Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa. It distributes the money among states entirely on the basis of the number of unemployed persons there.

Another proposal, urged by Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., would have distributed 35 per cent of the money to states with high unemployment rates.

THE SENATE Public Works Committee has approved the same formula as Edgar proposed.

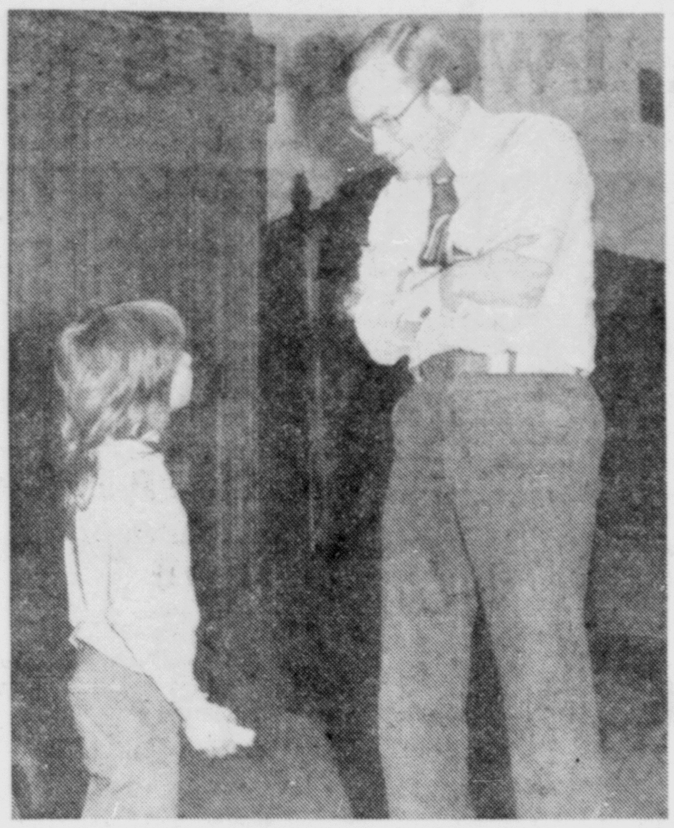

Under the bill, public works projects must be built with materials that are "substantially" American-made. Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said this provision, as originally drawn, would mean "about the only thing you could legitimately build is an adobe hut."

He said steel hardened with overseas chrome, tin for galvanizing, bauxite to make aluminum, glaze for bricks, timber from Canada and hardwood from Honduras all would be prohibited.

Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., said the purpose of the bill was to create jobs for Americans not increase employment in "the Japanese steel industry." The House finally modified the provision to require American-made materials where they are available.

The bill also provides that 10 per cent of the money awarded in contracts in a given community go to "minority enterprises" if they are available there.

The government received $24 billion in applications for the original $2 billion made available by Congress. In distributing the new money priority would go to the 22,000 applications rejected in the first distribution but still pending.

Coalition to ask hopefuls to back ethics ordinance

by STEVE BROWN

The Coalition for Political Honesty will turn its attenion to the April suburban municipal elections and work to get candidates to endorse an ethics ordinance modeled after one passed in Hoffman Estates last year.

Patrick Quinn, a leader of the coalition, said the group plans to ask all of the candidates running in the local elections to endorse the ordinance.

The coalition tried unsuccessfully last year to have three constitutional amendments concerning the conduct of members of the Illinois General Assembly put on the November ballot. The Illinois Supreme Court ruled the proposed amsndments were unconstitutional.

Quinn said local residents involved in the coalition's past efforts will be asked to contact municipal candidates and seek their support for the ordinance.

THE COALITION plans to publish a list of candidates who endorse the model ordinance before the April election.

The ordinance would strengthen conflict of interest provisions and would require public officials to file statements disclosing finances and property within the community with the local clerk rather than the county. It also would prohibit public officials from being on two government payrolls.

The final provision was part of the coalition's constitutional amendment effort. Quinn said such a provision on a local level could prevent a village president from serving as a liquor commissioner if both jobs are paid.

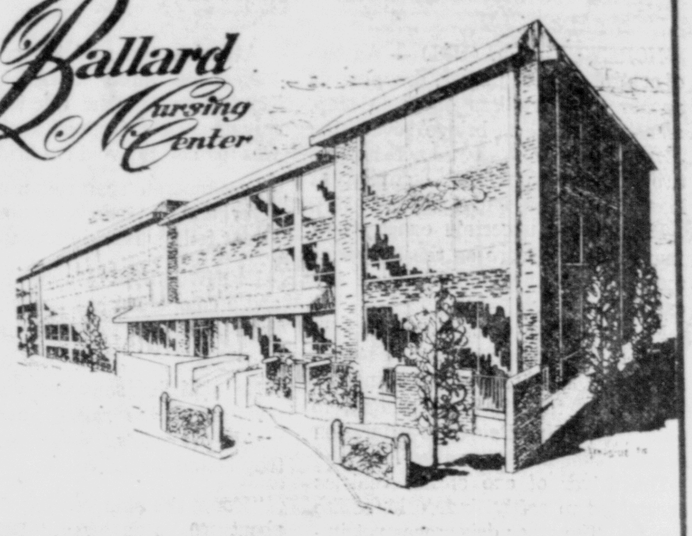

"I think some flexibility can exist here if the spirit of the ordnance is upheld," Quinn said. "I think that if we can get officials in 30 to 50 communities to endorse the ordinance we will be successful."

He said political honesty has become an issue in many communities throughout the suburbs and Downstate and that a number of persons who have been active in other coalition projects suggested the effort for the local election.

Quinn cited Hoffman Estates as one community where a local ethics ordinance has been passed. A number of other suburban communities already have adopted ethics ordinances to supplement state laws.

Bill urges lowering interest on credit

State Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, Thursday filed legislation which would reduce the maximum allowable interest rate on revolving charge accounts from 1.5 per cent a month to 1 per cent. The measure (H489) would apply to a host of oil company, department store and general credit card accounts.

Other bills filed Thursday would:

- Require auto rental firms to not on title certificates that their cars have been used as rental vehicles.
- Permit business owners to carry concealed weapons when going to the bank to deposit or withdraw business funds.
- Redefine the term "private school" to exclude parochial schools and then permit state aid grants to private schools.
- Lower the criminal prosecution age from 17 to 14.

Regner, Mount Prospect, Appropriations II Committee; John Nimrod, Glenview, Higher Education; Richard Walsh, River Forest, Revenue Committee; and Karl Berning, Deerfield, Pensions, Personal and Veteran's Affairs Committee.

Bradley Glass, Northbrook, was named assistant minority leader late last year. The local GOP senators named to the committee posts will serve as minority spokesmen.

Bilandic to act on teacher strike

Chicago Acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic said Thursday he will meet next week with Robert Healey, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, in a move to avert a teachers strike. Healey threatened a strike Wednesday after the Board of Education unanimously passed a budget cutting proposal that called for closing the city's public schools three-days early.

Bilandic said at a news conference he will meet with "anyone" in hopes of resolving the problem. The mayor said Healey called him Thursday and requested the meeting for Monday.

Sunday gone to meetin' Carter

President walked in. A few of the oldtimers extended greetings.

"Hello, Jimmy," they said.

Wasserman didn't say anything. He just stared. He was still staring as Carter walked up the aisle, turned in at Wasserman's row and took the seat next to Garber.

"I looked at Eddie," and I sort of shook my head in disbelief that he sat right next to us," Wasserman says.

A SECRET SERVICE man, with a wire extending around his ear from under the collar of his dark suit jacket, sat silently behind the President, and a couple of others surveyed the room from other locations.

A tourist apparently thought Wasserman was with them.

He stepped up and explained how he was from Michigan and knew a congressman there.

"Would you mind if I shake the President's hand?" the tourist asked.

Wasserman looked up at the man curiously and nodded.

"Go right ahead," he said.

Meanwhile, Garber tapped Carter on the shoulder.

"Mr. President," he said, "I'm Ed Garber, and this is Steve Wasserman. We're from Chicago, and we love you in Chicago."

Carter flashed his toothy smile and nodded.

"We're glad to have you down here," the President said.

THAT WAS ABOUT the extent of Wasserman's conversation with Carter. The Sunday school session lasted for about an hour, and Wasserman concentrated intently. He's Jewish, and he'd never been in a Baptist church before.

"Both of us felt that the President was down there to be in church, not to be bothered," he says.

Wasserman is back at his home at 346 Highland Blvd. He'll return to Plains in early April to complete the peanut wagon deal. But he's not as excited about going a second time. There's nothing more to see.

AND YET, he thinks people should visit the place, whether they buy peanuts from his roasting machine or not.

"This is a living testimonial that people should see. You know, it only takes 30 minutes to see," he says. "It's funny. You wouldn't go to a place like Grand Rapids (Mich.), where Ford is from.

"But Plains — it gives you a downhome feeling."

THE DOMINICK DICER takes an order for pizzas via Citizens' Band radio. Mark Evenson, owner and sole employe of the Village Inn Pizza eatery in downtown Arlington Heights, credits his CB radio for 65 per cent of the customers attracted to his fledgling business.

Vendor rides crust of CB waves

by DAVE IBATA

If the adage is true — that to succeed in a competitive field a new business needs a gimmick — a 23-year-old Arlington Heights man has found one that clicks for the pizza trade: Citizens' Band radio.

"My CB radio has helped business an awful lot," said Mark Evenson, proprietor and sole employe of the Village Town Pizza restaurant, 19 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights.

"I would say about 65 per cent of my business is CBers," he said. "It might have taken an awful lot longer to get this far without the CB."

Evenson describes himself as a "CB fanatic," a man who keeps a microphone on the counter of his carry-out restaurant. His portable CB radio goes wherever he goes — to work, in his car, even beside his bed at home.

"ACTUALLY, IT'S MY only social life right now because of the hours I work," said Evenson, who is single. One can find him at the eatery, slapping together hoagies and shoving pizzas into his ovens, up to 14 hours a day.

Evenson set up his business in downtown Arlington Heights in July 1976 after spending $18,000 remodeling. He specializes in pizzas and submarine sandwiches. He has more than enough competition in the Northwest suburbs.

Prospects for success, at best, looked marginal — until he discovered CB radio in August.

"A lady and her husband came in one night and told me about all the people on Channel 20," he said.

"All the people" — all 115 of them — call themselves the DUM, or "Dynamic United Modulators" Club. They pride themselves on a major difference between themselves and other CBers: they don't use "truckers' slang," the "10-4 Good Buddy" lingo of the stereotype CBer.

DUM operates in and around Arlington Heights and has staked out CB Channel 20 as its semiexclusive domain.

EVENSON JOINED the club, purchased a 23-channel CB radio and base station equipment and picked a "handle," or radio nickname: "Dominick Dicer," or "Double D." Shortly after he went on the air, word of his eatery spread over the airwaves.

"They (fellow CBers) suggested I could take orders on the radio," he said. "Basically, the people I'd take orders from mostly are people in the club."

Evenson said, "Most of the time I use it (the radio) for ratchet-jawing. I never advertise myself."

Today Evenson has a dependable flow of CBing customers. CBers stop at his shop on their way to and from work to pick up something to eat and high school CBers rendezvous at his store on weekends to grab a bite before heading out for a night of cruising.

Village Town even offers a "CB Special" sandwich — corned beef dipped in boiling beer on a sourdough roll or rye bread with cheese and dressing.

HOWEVER, EVENSON said, "I got the name way before I got into CB radio. It was one of the original sandwiches I started off with. The CB stands for 'corned beef.' "

Evenson does his CBing between 11 a.m., when he opens his shop, until about 5 p.m., when he often stops talking because his radio transmissions leak over into televisions owned by apartment tenants, he said.

"Sometimes we'll talk a little bit at night, and then get calls from people upstairs asking me to turn off my radio," he said.

After prime time, the radio comes back on, and stays on until Evenson closes the store — midnights on weekdays, and 1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays. The radio then moves to his car, and from there, into his bedroom, where Evenson has a base station set up on his nightstand.

"Sometimes I fall asleep with the radio going," he said.

WITH THE HELP of his fellow CBers, and any other customer who drops by, Evenson said he hopes to cross the ledger line from red to black.

"If business does go as well as we anticipate, it's a possibility we might open up another store," Evenson said. He added, "But I would say the odds are against it now."

"Hopefully, we'll stick around," he said — doubtlessly with both his restaurant and his CB club in mind.

McKlutz's fined $250 for alcohol violation

Leslie Goldsmith, president of A. K. McKlutz's, 150 E. Rand Rd., has been found guilty of failing to remove alcoholic beverages from service areas within 10 minutes of closing and fined $250.

The conviction and fine followed an Arlington Heights Liquor Control Board hearing Tuesday.

McKlutz's was acquitted on a charge of serving liquor after hours.

The offense occurred after 1:10 a.m. Dec. 8, 1976.

Hotel, parking lot taxes OKd by finance panel

A 3 per cent hotel tax and 10 per cent parking tax on all nonmunicipal noncommuter parking lots has been approved by the Arlington Heights finance committee.

The 1 per cent increase in the hotel tax is expected to generate an additional $30,000 during the next fiscal year. The 10 per cent parking tax is expected to generate $100,000 mainly from parking at the Arlington Park Race Track.

Both taxes must be approved by the village board before they take effect.

"This is the best and easiest kind of tax for us to levy," Trustee Richard Durava said, "because it's not oppressive on local residents. My wife and I will never stay in an Arlington Heights hotel and the tax will be paid by people who don't live here."

Durava said he did not hesitate increasing the hotel tax because, "When Pres. Ford stayed here (at the Arlington Park Hilton) it cost the village $10,000 to protect him and got the hotel a lot of publicity. So I don't feel bashful about raising the tax to compensate us for that."

Harms, McDonnell to run Cawley's trustee campaign

Former Village Trustee Alice Harms and Tom McDonnell, a past president of the Surrey Ridge West Civic Assn., will direct the campaign for Martin E. Cawley, a candidate for Arlington Heights village trustee in the April 5 municipal election.

Gary Snell, publicity chairman for Cawley, said Jack Carbery will be campaign treasurer.

Citizens for Cawley headquarters will be at 1418 S. Princeton Ave.

Mrs. Harms, 930 N. Mitchell Ave., was elected to a trustee post twice, serving from 1971 until about one year ago when she resigned, saying she was "powerless" in her post. In her resignation statement, Mrs. Harms severely criticized Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson and Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

McDonnell, 1307 W. Cedar Ave., and Cawley were directors of the Citizens Committee For the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Site, which urged the acquisition of the army base for the Arlington Heights Park District.

Finance panel OKs new library budget

A $1.1 million budget for the Arlington Heights Memorial Library has been approved by the village finance committee.

The budget is 7.6 per cent more than this year's $1.06 million allotment.

Major budget increases include building maintenance, increased by one-third to $152,944 because of the planned $2.25 million building addition.

Other increases are in children and young adult services, increased by 6 per cent to $123,308, and adult services, increased by 12 per cent to $408,420.

The library budget still must receive final approval from the village board. The village levies the tax for library services.

Dad's trial in drown case begins Monday juvenile court proceeding held Sept. 15, 1976, to consider taking custody of Michael from Loughnane.

Jenson said Loughnane had not been made a party to the proceeding although the custody dispute is based on the incident for which Loughnane is charged.

JUDGE SKLODOWSKI agreed to delay the case only until Monday to allow Jenson to obtain a transcript of the juvenile court proceeding.

Jensen did not know the outcome of that proceeding.

Loughnane, an 11-year veteran of the Chicago police force, had received numerous citations for meritorious service during his service, police officials said. He is suspended from the department because of the incident, Jenson told the court.

Loughnane is free on $100,000 bond and appeared in court Thursday.

Watergate's Hunt bitter after prison

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Watergate mastermind E. Howard Hunt, bitter after 32 months in prison, Thursday called former President Nixon "a very lucky man" because of his pardon by former President Ford. He said at the time he "applauded" the pardon thinking one would also be extended to him.

"I have distilled it to this thought. 'Pardon one, pardon all,' " Hunt said when asked if he still approved of the Nixon pardon.

"Yes, I would say that I entertain a pretty good amount of bitterness," Hunt told his first news conference since being released Wednesday from a federal prison in Florida.

HUNT SAID HE was misled by the Nixon administration about the legality of the 1972 break-in at Democratic National Headquarters, which he described as "just a continuum of my 21 years as a CIA officer.

"To some extent, yes. I felt that I was misled in terms of the degree of legality that our operation contained," he said.

Asked by whom he was misled, he singled out watergate burglar Gordon Liddy, former U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and former Nixon aides John Ehrlichman and John Dean.

"I HAD THOUGHT of (Nixon) as a strong national leader . . . but I don't think he was able to conceive of what was happening in realistic terms," Hunt said.

A STATE AIRPLANE carrying two Pennsylvania officials and six others crashed into this suburban Harrisburg, Pa. home Thursday. All passengers and a woman living in the house are dead. Among the killed were Pennsylvania Transportation Sec. William Sherlock and State Republican Chairman Richard C. Frame. Firemen found the body of Beverly Geary in the home two hours after the crash. The FAA is investigating.

Turner confirmed as CIA director

The Senate Thursday unanimously confirmed Adm. Stansfield Turner as CIA director. Turner, 53, President Carter's classmate at the Naval Academy, won approval by voice vote. Turner was Carter's second nominee. His first, former Kennedy aide Theodore Sorensen, withdrew from consideration when strenuous opposition developed in the Senate over the allegations he used classified White House material to write a book about the Kennedy years. Legislators on both sides of the aisle praised Turner, the commander of NATO southern forces.

Lance favors permanent tax cut

Budget Director Bert Lance said Thursday he favors a permanent tax cut as a means of stimulating the economy. Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, told Lance at a hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee there is evidence that the tax rebates President Carter proposed as a short-term economic stimulus "do not work."

"Wouldn't it be better if we had a permanent tax rate reduction?" Brown asked. "A rebate is a kind of quick fix that doesn't seem to get any place." "I personally come down on the side of permanent tax reduction," replied Lance. But Lance said his position is not necessarily Carter's, and indicated the President may make his clearer by mid-August.

Ohio inmate outbreak quelled

About 200 inmates at the Ohio State Reformatory in Mansfield threw trays and food and battled guards during a disturbance in the institution's dining room Thursday. At least 12 guards and 17 inmates were injured. A spokesman for the Ohio Department of Corrections in Columbus said between 50 and 60 officers from other sections of the prison were called in to quell the outbreak.

"Some chemical mace was used," said Joseph Ashley, communications coordinator for the department. "Not a great deal, but some." Ashley said two inmates were taken to the institution hospital with minor injuries and 15 others were treated in cells. He said the guards suffered mostly cuts and bruises.

Hershey's condition worsens

The condition of four-star Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, 83, worsened Thursday, and doctors said he would require immediate surgery to remove a blood clot from the brain. "His condition is listed as very seriously ill." Hershey, who organized the military induction of more than 10 million men after Pearl Harbor, was admitted to Walter Reed Naval Hospital in Washington Sunday for treatment of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Hershey, always a controversial figure in America's military system, put together the nation's system of conscription before World War II and then watched it disintegrate into the all-volunteer Army because of Vietnam, which made him the target of hatred by thousands of protesters.

FDR memorial design approved

The Fine Arts Commission has unanimously approved the latest design for a Washington memorial to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt — a 900-foot-long granite wall with pools, waterfalls and fountains. The commission's Tuesday action clears a major roadblock to creation of an FDR memorial curving around the western edge of Washington's Tidal Basin.

The new design, by California landscape architect Lawrence Halprin, "is essentially a low wall that borders the cherry trees lining or bordering the Tidal Basin and featuring a series of pools and little runnels, where water runs through.

Libya's army set to move: Amin

Uganda's President Idi Amin said Thursday Libya has placed its entire armed forces at his command in the event of a foreign invasion. Tanzania laughed at Amin's claims of an impending invasion as "balderdash." Uganda Radio, in a broadcast monitored in Nairobi, said Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy sent a message which "assured President Amin that, in view of the current situtation prevailing in Uganda, Libya had decided to place at the disposal of the Uganda government all Libyan armed forces.

"They would be available to fight side by side with Uganda any external aggression by regular or mercenary forces," the broadcast said. Earlier Thursday, the Kampala radio claimed that Tanzanian troops were massed at the Tanzania-Uganda border and warned that Uganda was ready to deal with any invasion. Sammy Mgee, press secretary to Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, called the claims "absolute "balderdash."

Irregularities darken activities of park leaders

by PAUL GORES

Ten candidates for director of the Salt Creek Rural Park District are scheduled for interviews today with Henry Deihl, who is no longer a legal member of the park board.

Deihl, who moved from the district during the first week in February, has scheduled interviews from 2:30 to 10 p.m. today in search of a replacement for James DeVos. DeVos last week was given a one-day dismissal notice following an illegal meeting of the board.

Deihl has not been a legal member of the board since he moved, a spokesman for the Illinois Board of Elections said Thursday. But park board attorney Michael Streonberg has contended Deihl is eligible to serve on the board until the first week of March. Stronberg said a person is considered a resident of the park district for 30 days after he has moved.

"THERE IS NO SUCH thing as a grace period," Frank O'Connell of the elections board said. "When he moves out of the district he ceases to be a member of the board."

Deihl has been serving as secretary on the board.

DeVos said he thinks the board quicly will appoint a new director in order to stop the "bring back DeVos movement."

"They'll appoint a new director as soon as possible, maybe before the March 8 meeting," DeVos said.

Residents "will be out in mass" this weekend, however, circulating petitions to reinstate DeVos as director, said Sarah Gilbert, a park district resident

Mrs. Gilbert said petitioners will cover the entire park district beginning Friday night.

"The petitions are going beautifully and so are the flyers for the resident meeting," she said.

A meeting of park district residents is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of park board candidate Siegmar Olaf Schneider, 44 S. Winston Dr., Schneider is leading the drive to reinstate DeVos.

OTHER IRREGULARITIES by the park board preceding DeVos' dismissal include an unannounced executive session Feb. 15 and the belated revision of the minutes of a previous meeting because they did not include notice of the reconvened executive session.

The park board met Feb. 15 to decide on an effective date for DeVos' resignation, which he submitted in January after disagreements on park district management and his office hours. The location of the unannounced executive session is unknown, and park commissioners refuse to say where they met.

Illinois law requires that the public be notified of the time, day and location of all park board meetings.

"Where do you think it was?" Comr. John Ungerman replied to a question on the whereabouts of the meeting. "It was within the park district."

USUALLY THE PARK board meets at the Rose Park office building, 530 S. Williams St. Comr. Patrick Grealish and former commissioner Deihl also refused to tell The Herald where the board met. They referred questions to Stronberg who did not return calls from The Herald Wednesday and Thursday.

It was Stronberg who revised the final page of minutes from the board's Feb. 8 meeting because they did not include notice of the recovened executive session.

In a letter to Park Board Pres. Walter Peppler dated Feb. 16, the day after the illegal meeting, Stronberg explained the revisions.

"Enclosed is the revised last page to the minutes of the regular meeting held Feb. 8, 1977," the letter stated. "Please note the two important insertions that I failed to include in the formal minutes from my rough notes. I apologize for the error."

The announcement of the reconvened executive session was one of the insertions.

The revised minutes of the Feb. 8 meeting, including the announcement of the reconvened session, were available to park district residents Tuesday, a week after the Feb. 15 meeting.

Comr. Thomas Menzel was the only member of the board who did not attend the illegal meeting.

Fire service to fuel tank area 'unjustified': Teichert

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The burden of providing fire service to a 130-acre fuel storage facility next to the southeast end of Mount Prospect is not justified unless the village annexes the property, Mayor Robert D. Teichert said.

Through contracting with the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District, the facility receives fire service from the Village of Mount Prospect. Seven major oil companies receive fire protection. But Teichert said the agreement is not worth risking the lives of village firefighters if the area does not support Mount Prospect financially.

Teichert, citing a Jan. 20 explosion at a Texaco loading terminal, said the area is extremely hazardous. Firefighters' efforts were hampered because of a lack of adequate water supply in the area, said Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz. No one was injured in the blaze.

"It presents an extreme and unique fire risk," Teichert said. "There is a high risk factor presented by the facilities and to the personnel and equipment necessary to properly handle the risk."

THE CONTRACT with the Elk Grove district is "not a good idea," Teichert said, adding the storage tanks either should be part of the village or remain in unincorporated Cook County without a commitment from the Mount Prospect Fire Dept.

The mayor suggested revenue gained from village taxes generated by the oil companies could be used to upgrade fire service in the area.

"It (the contract) is temporary, short-term," Teichert said. "It's not and should not be a forever situation."

Teichert and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley met earlier this week with representatives of the seven oil companies owning the property which forms the unincorporated island adjacent to Mount Prospect.

Three years ago, the firms rejected the idea of annexing into the village because of the additional tax burden that would be placed on them. Teichert contends the oil companies have little to gain from taxes they currently pay the school and park districts.

MOUNT PROSPECT is the only municipality to which the gasoline and oil storage fields can be annexed, Teichert said. Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village do not abut the property and Mount Prospect and Des Plaines have an agreement that Des Plaines cannot annex north of Oakton Street, he said.

Shell, Texaco, Citgo, Union, Atlantic Richfield, Amoco and Marathon oil companies all own land, which if annexed, would become Mount Prospect's southern border. "To the south we do not have any definitive boundaries," Teichert said. "And our ultimae plans depend on our boundaries. No business wants to increase its tax factor. But this one would have a direct relationship to their operations."

The annexation would help Mount Prospect plan for future fire and water service in the southeast section of the village, Teichert said. There currently are long-range plans for an additional well and pumping station near the unincorporated site. However, if the oil property is not annexed, Teichert said there would be little point in constructing new water storage facilities.

Test results awaited in murder case

Mount Prospect police are awaiting the results of chemical tests to determine if the stained-clothing worn by murder suspect Larry R. Stotts carries the blood of Nargis Alvi, a 27-year-old Mount Prospect store clerk stabbed to death Sunday afternoon.

Stotts, 19, of 1701 Dennis Pl., was charged Monday in the slaying of Mrs. Alvi, 395 Hawthorn Ct., Mount Prospect, who was working alone Sunday at the K&G Food Mart, 1760 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police sent Stotts' clothing and a black leather-handled knife to Cook County evidence technicians to test for blood and to match any blood samples with Mrs. Alvi's blood.

Investigators would not comment on the tests, except to say that results may come through "anytime in the next few weeks."

Good selection for prosecutor

U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson proved again this week that some aspects of politics don't change.

His selection Monday of Chicago attorney Thomas P. Sullivan to be U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois was a sound choice. But the pronouncement clearly signaled a reaffirmation of a political fact of life — to the victor goes the spoils. And the federal prosecutor's job here is a prime plum.

Sullivan is an established lawyer who has served on numerous bar association committees and the Illinois Supreme Court Rules committee. He also was named last month by Illinois Supreme Court Justices William G. Clark and James A. Dooley as part of a 10-member advisory committee to study merit selection of judges.

He will take 22 years of experience in civil and criminal cases with him to the prosecutor's post. And he will be taking a substantial cut in pay estimated to be as much as $125,000 a year — in accepting the government service job.

He is also a Democrat, and in choosing a fellow party member, Stevenson held to a long-standing tradition that has characterized the U.S. attorney's office.

There had been signs that the tradition might be broken. Legal and criminal experts voiced public calls for Stevenson to retain the present U.S. Atty., Samuel K. Skinner, who had won national recognition for official corruption prosecutions during his own tenure and as first assistant to former U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

But Skinner was appointed by Republican President Gerald R. Ford, and with the changing of the guard in the White House, custom returned to Stevenson the privilege of selecting whom he desired for the state's federal offices.

Aides said Sullivan was always Stevenson's choice for the job, but private indications were that Stevenson was irked by the public speculation surrounding whether he would retain Skinner.

In either case, Stevenson's choice has won praise from Democrats and Republicans alike, and hopefully Sullivan will follow through on his pledge to keep politics at the prosecutor's door and not in the office.

Skinner dream blocked by reality of politics

Sam Skinner admitted he might have been idealistic.

For a man who spent nine years in the oft-times coldly realistic world of law and justice, it was a telling self-description, one that spoke of a man justly proud of a record of accomplishments.

Skinner has a right to feel that way. He was the first U.S. attorney to work his way up from assistant, holding several key positions along the way, including chief of special investigations and first assistant.

Chicago and Illinois names like Otto Kerner, Theodore Isaacs and Tom Keane, and suburban names like James Stavros fell equally to his rigorous pursuit of official corruption under U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

Skinner continued the work started by Thompson and won acclaim in his own right for expanding investigations into narcotics trafficking, fraud is federal social service programs, misuse of funds in the Teamsters' Pension Fund and for launching a special probe into possible multi-million dollar irregularities within the Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Perhaps it was idealistic to think he would remain, but there is no fantasy in the facts that speak to his dedication in a job well done.

Its service is vital

Coast Guard 'forgotten'

Jim Bishop

This is the year of the forgotten service — the United States Coast Guard. In peacetime its budget is trimmed, its vessels and aircraft age, its officers and enlisted men fight to retain a semblance of morale.

What does the Coast Guard do? A transatlantic pilot will tell you that it stations lonely pickets across the restless sea, warm welcome voices on the airwaves assuring aircraft that they are on course at proper speed, ready to race to the rescue in case of ditching.

The C.G. also runs six-bitters out of coastal ports. These shepherd fishing vessels which are lost, sling a tow line to crippled pleasure boats and hunt for the missing. The larger boats patrol icebergs in the north, warning liners of their positions in the sea. They also make weather reports from all over the world.

Next month, the United States will broaden its coastal waters from a 12-mile limit to 200. This will add 2 million square miles of ocean to patrol. It will be done by cutters and planes.

NO FOREIGN VESSEL may fish within the new boundary without a permit. And none will be granted unless two criteria are met: (1) a U.S. observer must be taken aboard; (2) the foreign vessel must fish only for hake, squid, mackerel and herring. They cannot take tuna, cod, blue, snapper, flounder or other favorites.

The Coast Guard command tried to hide its embarrassment. From Carolina to Nova Scotia, along the eastern shores, it has only 18 cutters, three seaplanes and four C130s. Quietly, New London ordered a 34-year-old seaplane tender out of mothballs. Three HU-16s, each 25-years old and referred to as "flying goats," were resuscitated.

It's a pitiable pittance. The Navy has over a hundred high-speed destroyers lying in mothballs at San Diego. It is cheaper to refurbish than to build. The Air Force has stockpiles of serviceable aircraft, especially long-range reconnaissance planes, to meet the overnight needs of the Coast Guard.

ON A MORE ominous note, the Coast Guard is the watchdog over oil tankers and spills. So far, the C.G. has not prevented spills. Last year, around the world, there were 604 of them.

One tanker disappeared off Newfoundland. Fifteen were involved in collisions. Fifty were involved in collisions. Fifty had fires; 164 others ran aground. The Argo Merchant, which ran up on rocks off Nantucket, was a lucky accident. In spite of forebodings by TV anchormen, the spill moved out to sea.

Secretary of Transportation Brock Adams has issued an order that all vessels of 1,600 tons or more which encroach on the new 200-mile limit must report to the Coast Guard if they do not have Loran C aboard. This instrument will cross-fix a ship to its exact position within two city blocks.

IF THE VESSEL does not have the navigational equipment, the nearest Coast Guard port captain can order the ship away from U.S. territorial waters. Very few tanker owners are going to risk being ordered back to sea with a paying cargo.

The risk in tankers is increasing. The Japanese discovered, 10 years ago, that larger ships can haul oil from Saudi Arabia to the U.S. without prohibitive increases in cost. Their latest vessel, the Globtik Tokyo, is 476,292 deadweight tons.

Some of the "Very Large Tankers" are so automated that they carry a crew of 35 men. The bulls, however, have the same weakness. They are gigantic bathtubs of flexing steel. Empty, the hull bends inward. Loaded, it bulges. The constant motion, called "hogging" weakness the structure.

Coast Guard planes and cutters will have to monitor every tanker inbound and outbound. A couple of years ago, I met a Coast Guard admiral at a Minneapolis party. I had a suggestion which might simplify the work.

WHY NOT PLACE automatic cameras in the noses of the patrol aircraft? They could snap shots of the stern of each ship coming into American waters. The camera could automatically note the name, home port, flag, latitude and longitude, course and speed. It was done by Navy patrol planes out of Bermuda in World War II.

Thus, if a spill occurs — even a pumping of oil bilges — it would be easy to consult a chart and pinpoint the offending vessel. The admiral grinned. "Good idea," he said. "But let's face it, we're lucky to have the old planes without asking for automatic cameras."

It's time Congress remembered the forgotten service . . .

Corporation art called 'repulsive'

Kurt Baer's article on corporate art in the Feb. 2 Herald reveals his ignorance of what constitutes good art. Why does he accept and accentuate the ugly, distorted, repulsive junk being passed off as great art by uninspired art critics and super salesmen? Mae Peroit, the interior design consultant for Gould, Inc., was honest in admitting that these ". . . things . . . will be an investment for the company." Obviously they like ugly things if they can enlist naive writers to help improve their investment.

In reference to the featured (art?) objects, my comments are:

1. Any child that has bent paper clips for amusement has achieved higher art forms, though not on such a massive scale as the bent pin monstrosity at UOP World Headquarters.

2. Most dogs have chewed bones into more interesting shapes than Henry Moore's "Animal Form" at Gould, Inc.

3. The "Bather," another eyesore at Gould, Inc., must have been bought by the pound instead of artistic merit.

4. The huge acrylic "C" wrench (called "Sun") by Barbara Housepeper at Kemper's is very novel, but would hardly call it art.

I cannot understand how these corporations can put such repulsive objects in their lobbies unless they are trying to discourage visitors from ever returning.

Abstract art, along with representational art, can be beautiful and enjoyable. Why not feature examples of art that will please the vast majority of your readers? Why not be honest about art and let's not confuse the ugly with the beautiful.

Just a few lines to let you know I am disappointed in the new placing of the crossword puzzle.

Apparently the person in charge of the Fun page set-up is not a crossword puzzle enthusiast or that person would not have set the puzzle where it is located.

by GUY GUGLIOTTA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Jorge Videla has managed to stay in office for nearly a year and occasionally has almost made it look easy. But recently he has received a pair of signals that, if ignored, could land him in deep political trouble.

The most dramatic message was delivered Feb. 18 at Buenos Aires Metropolitan Airport when a guerrilla bomb came within five seconds of blowing up the presidential jet with Videla aboard.

The bombing, the third attempt on Videla's life in the past year and the second at a supposedly secure military installation, demonstrated the guerrilla war in Argentina is not under control, as some government officials have calimed. It also showed that Videla risks assassination every time he moves.

The second message — subtler, but every bit as dangerous — came Feb. 11, when prominent labor leader Oscar Smith was kidnaped the day after he helped defuse a potentially explosive dispute between the government and the 100,000-member union that runs Buenos Aires' state-owned electric company.

Kidnaping has become such a popular form of political expression among both left and right wing extremists in Argentina that no one could decide at first whether guerrillas or dissident ultrarightists had seized Smith.

However, after several days passed without guerrillas announcing they were holding the union boss because he "sold out" to the government, it became clear to most labor leaders and political observers that Smith's is another "disappearance" stage-managed by right wingers either loosely tied to some government agency or operating beyond the control of any official authority.

As such, the kidnap represents a deliberate attempt to sabotage successful labor negotiations, provoke further union unrest and mock Videla's "moderate" labor policy of working within the nation's existing union structure.

More important, the kidnap served as a personal insult to Videla, underlining what the president has already admitted — that the government can't control overzealous rightists, and suggesting what human right organizations charge — that the government doesn't know who is getting picked up by which official or semi-official organization. In either case, Videla has received a challenge that he ignores at great political risk.

Some sources on the far right have said privately they view the airport bombing as a sign of weakness on the part of the government.

If a harder line were taken, the thinking goes, no such bombings could occur.

On the other hand, labor's surprisingly mild "wait-and-see" attitude toward the Smith kidnaping is certain to harden if the government can't produce the labor leader unharmed.

Videla can expect an explosion if Smith's bullet-riddled body shows up in a ditch in some Buenos Aires suburb. This possibility becomes more likely as time passes.

Videla has thus far made no significant move on either the bombing or the Smith incident, except to authorize a statement condemning the kidnaping as "generating a situation designed to aggravate social peace."

But the record indicates that the communique may not be Videla's last word.

The president, a reserved, not very colorful man who nevertheless radiates dignity and personal integrity, moved quickly and decisively late last year to cashier three army generals believtd involved in organizing a hardline rightist alternative to Videla's more moderate policies.

The current challenge seems to demand the same type of swift action, but Videla appears to be stalling, perhaps trying to decide who to hit and how hard.

Stalling is permissible in February when everyone is taking a summer vacation, but heads roll in March, the month last year when Videla led the coup that toppled Isabel Peron.

The time is fast approaching when the president will have to drop his velvet gloves and give someone a taste of mailed fist.

New car fever hits this Saturday with opening of 1977 auto show

by KURT BAER

Bill Cook has been selling a part of the Americn dream for 25 years.

Cars. There are more than 100 million of them in this country, and though some would have it otherwise, Americans can't seem to get away from them.

"America is car conscious. For most of us, a car is the second biggest purchase in our life after our home," says Cook, president of Bill Cook Buick, Arlington Heights, and chairman of the 1977 Chicago Auto Show, Saturday through March 6 at McCormick Place.

MORE THAN A million visitors are expected at this year's auto show, largest in the country. There will be more than 600 cars for them to eye, including the auto makers' 1977½ models.

"The Chicago auto show opens up our spring market. It gets a lot of people interested — whets their appetite. We can see the change from winter doldrums to a fresh spring sales sprint," Cook says.

Chrysler Corp. will introduce the Dodge Diplomat and Chrysler LeBaron, mid-size cars that will be in dealers' show rooms this spring.

Ford Motor Co. will present three new models including the Thunderbird Town Landau, a mid-year sports version of the Pinto Runabout and an LTD II.

AMERICAN MOTORS plans to introduce two new cars and two new Jeep vehicles. The cars will be the subcompact Gremlin X with a new 2-liter, 4-cylinder engine, and the luxury Matador Barcelona II.

A special Jeep CJ -5 Golden Eagle and a Golden Eagle truck will be displayed in advance of sales which will begin in March.

Buick will show 24 production models; Oldsmobile will feature its best-selling Cutlass; and Chevrolet promises three new models — Monza Mirage, a new version of the Chevrolet Landau and the return of the Z-28 Camaro.

Among the imports, Mazda is expected to show a two-door, piston engine sedan called the GLC — the Great Little Car. Volkswagen will spotlight a diesel-engine Rabbit rated at 52 m.p.g. highway and 39 m.p.g. city.

GAS MILEAGE, shorter and lighter cars are the trends in automobile styling and engineering.

"There is only one direction for things to go and that is to the smaller car," says Cook. "To some extent it has been forced upon us by the energy shortage. To get better mileage you have to reduce the weight and reduce the size."

The American driving public will accept the new, smaller cars in part because the autos have been designed to feel as much like big cars as possible, and in part because there simply won't be any choice, Cook says.

Auto show visitors will get a preview of Illinois' new photo driver's license. Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon says photo equipment and computers necessary to produce the new licenses will be installed and operating later this year in state driver service offices.

Photo identification cards for those who don't drive also will be available.

VISITORS TO the Secretary of State's exhibit at the auto show will get a credit-card-size facsimile of the new license bearing the visitor's photo and the words "Something New in Illinois."

Dixon will cut the ribbon to the Chicago Automobile Trade Assn. 69th annual show at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Campers, trucks and recreational vehicles have captured increasing public attention in recent years and will be prominently displayed at the auto show.

Chevrolet will feature its LUV pickup, its Jeep-style Blazer and Suburban Wagon. Chevrolet vans also will be shown.

BILL COOK

Ford's new Ranchero pickup, its Cruising Van and Wagon will be on display.

DODGE's new Warlock, a customized version of a light duty pickup, will be shown along with the Street Van, a vehicle designed for do-it-yourself customizing. The Ramcharger, an off-the-road vehicle also will be parked at the Dodge exhibit.

GMC's Gypsy Traveler, a customized van with porthole windows and fully-carpeted floor, walls and ceiling will be shown along with the Sarge and Wayside pickups.

Toyota plans to exhibit its Town Ace Van which comes in nine different models and International Harvester will show its diesel engine, the Scout and Traveler Hatchback station wagon.

Import cars include eight models from Japan — Arrow, Colt, Datsun, Honda, Mazda, Opel, Subaru and Toyota; six from Germany — Audi, BMW, Capri, Mercedes-Benz, Porsche and Volkswagen; five from Great Britain —Aston, Martin, Jaguar, Lotus, MG and Triumph; five from Italy — alfa Romeo, Ferrari, Fiat, Lancia and Maserati; two from Sweden, Saab and Volvo; and two from France — Peugeot and Renault.

Show hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday through Sunday, March 6. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under.

Dow falls 5.65 in moderate trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hampered by fears congressional additions to President Carter's $31.2 billion economic stimulus program will be inflationary, prices fell Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

Investors were disturbed by a Senate committee's decision to tack on $10.5 billion in extras to Carter's $4 billion public works program. Labor Sec. Ray Marshall said the adminimistration hopes to double the number of public service jobs by the end of the year.

Selling also resulted from the House voting Wednesday for a $70.5 billion budget deficit in fiscal 1977. The Senate approved a $68.3 billion deficit earlier. Bert Lance, Carter's budget chief, said he did not think Carter's program should be expanded. He also said the winter weather's effect on the economy will be small.

AS A RESULT OF the congressional actions, however, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks, a 1.66-point loser Wednesday, lost another 5.65 points to 932.60. It had been down more than seven points earlier. The Dow has lost 15 points in the past five sessions.

The NYSE common stock index shed 0.33 to 54.17 and the average price of a common share decreased by 19 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.59 to 99.60.

Declines routed advances, 1,046 to 408, among the 1,865 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 19,730,000 shares, up from the 18,240,000 traded Wednesday.

COMPOSITE VOLUME of NYSE issues listed on all exchanges at 3 p.m. totaled 21,043,228 shares, compared with 20,442,508 Wednesday.

Many oil and related stocks, gainers in recent weeks, took a beating. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., introduced a bill to force large oil companies to divest of some operations within five years, but the proposal had been anticipated.

Among the hardest hit of the oils and related issues, Superior Oil lost 2½ to 223, Getty 2 to 194, Phillips Petroleum 1¾ to 56-5/8, Mesa Petroleum 1¾ to 33-5/8, Natomas 2 to 38-7/8, Atlantic Richfield ¾ to 54½ and Ohio Standard 1 to 80¼.

Meany urges end to wage-price panel

AFL-CIO President George Meany called on President Carter Thursday to abolish the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which the administration intends to expand to fight inflation. Meany also disclosed the AFL-CIO Executive Council will request a Senate investigation of outside influence on the recent election in the United Steelworkers Union, and called for worker representation in negotiations toward a new Panama Canal treaty. The inflation monitoring Council on Wage and Price Stability was singled out as a villain in a program for economic improvement recommended by the AFL-CIO Executive Council. "We'd like to see it eliminated," Meany declared. "We don't think it serves any useful purpose."

Farmers attack bank trust plan

Spokesmen for farmers, organized labor and the Agriculture Dept. joined Thursday in attacking a Chicago bank's plan to set up a $50 million trust under which tax-exempt pension funds would buy productive Midwest and southern crop farms. The plan "poses a major threat to family farmers in this country," Harold B. Steele, president of the Illinois Farm Bureau, told a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn. Congress should "take all steps necessary to stop any intrusion on American agriculture by financial institutions," another farm spokesman said. Under the plan, sponsored by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., farms purchased by the proposed tax-exempt trust would be rented to family farmers.

Unit pricing bill amended, tabled

A bill that would have required grocery stores to mark legible prices on each item offered for sale was tabled Thursday in the Illinois House after a crippling amendment was added to it. The bill (H18) was sponsored by Rep. Richard Kelly, D-East Hazel Crest. The amendment, offered by Rep. Roger Keats, R-Wilmette, deleted the "unit pricing" requirement and substituted a provision that stores post prices in "conspicuously visible" places.

Winemakers oppose U.S. seal

Winemakers told a government hearing Thursday that a proposed U.S. seal to assure quality would confuse consumers and increase wine costs. The seal idea, proposed by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, has been under attack since it first was floated in November. There were reports it will be scrapped, but bureau Director Rex Davis told the hearing no decision will be made until after the agency concludes its investigation and studies the record. Still alive are other aspects of the bureau's proposed changes, such as disclosure of percentages of particular grapes and more definitive requirements for where a wine comes from.

February car sales drop 7.5%

Mid-February domestic new car sales fell 7.5 per cent from a year ago because many Americans stayed indoors during the harsh winter weather rather than venture out in search of a new automobile, according to industry sources. The four U.S. auto companies reported they sold only 192,077 cars in the Feb. 11-20 period. They blamed the drop on the fact that thousands of would-be customers did not place orders for new cars during the end of January and early February and the thousands of cars that they cut from production schedules because of plant shutdowns. Despite the decline in the Feb. 11-20 period, strong early February sales, partly catch-up from late January, pushed sales in the first 20 days of the month up 4 per cent over last year in line with industry estimates.

Teresa hiding in Hawaii

Cover blown on Mafia informer

HONOLULU (UPI) — A former Mafia boss whose FBI cover was blown when Australia deported him slipped away from a San Francisco-bound plane and apparently went into hiding in Hawaii Thursday from mobsters reported to have placed a $500,000 "contract" on his life for turning informer.

A Qantas Airlines spokesman said Vincent (Big Vinnie) Teresa, one-time New England mob kingpin who said "punks" with no "code of honor" had taken over the Mafia, left the plane at Honolulu during a refueling stop Wednesday.

But the airline and authorities said they did not know his whereabouts or whether he secretly boarded another plane to the mainland.

"IF THOSE GUYS in America know I'm on a certain plane, I could get it at the airport — right between the eyes," Teresa, 48, said as he left Sydney after his false identity supplied by the FBI was disclosed by New South Wales State Premier Neville Wran.

"I know what the Mafia can do to a man who has crossed them," Teresa said. "One day you wake up and find your head in one room and your legs in another."

Honolulu FBI chief Lee Laster said he did not know Teresa's whereabouts, but "I think you can take it for a fact that when he says his life is in danger he is correct."

Teresa was paroled from a 20-year prison term for stock fraud and given a new identity by the FBI after implicating more than 30 of his former associates. He detailed his decision to inform in a 1973 book, "My Life In the Mafia."

HIS COVER was blown when Wran disclosed his alias in the state parliament. Australian authorities, saying Teresa had given false information when he applied for a visa, ordered him Wednesday to leave the country immediately.

Furious at Wran, Teresa said, "If all this reaches the states, and I'm sure it will, there'll be 5,000 animals headhunting for my family tonight. If he (Wran) can sleep with that on his conscience, then I'm sorry."

Wran said Teresa arrived in Sydney last Friday under the name of Santana. He said the hoodlum had been taken to Australia to testify about government proposals to legalize gambling in New South Wales.

Teresa has said he quit the Mafia because unstable "punks" had taken over after the imprisonment of reputed New England crime boss Raymond L. S. Patriarca, of Providence, R.I.

Heavy snow hits West, dust storms in South

by United-Press International

Foot-deep snows and a sheath of ice slowed or stopped motorists Thursday in the upper Midwest. Up to three feet of snow in three days touched off avalanches in the Colorado Rockies.

The worst dust storms in decades were subsiding on the central and southern Plains but spreading a hazy, brown cloud across Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

Visibility dropped to one-half mile at Monroe, La., and airplane pilots over Alabama reported the dust clouds boiled 7,000 feet above the ground. The American Lung Assn. cautioned persons with respiratory ailments to protect themselves from the dust.

TORNADOES SPUN through the Southeast but caused no serious injuries and only minimal property damage.

Except in the northern Red River Valley and in the upper Great Lakes area, a far-ranging late winter storm appeared to be flailing itself out.

But the new round of snow, freezing rain and sleet was heading eastward across the Lakes and the moisture it packed triggered flash flood watches in New York and West Virginia.

In the Red River Valley along the Minnesota-North Dakota border, 14 inches of snow slugged Crookston, Minn., and up to eight inches fell at Thief River Falls, Roseau and Morris, Minn.

FOUR-WHEEL-drive vehicles rescued motorists stranded in ditches between Crookston and Grand Forks, N.D. Three ambulances carried pregnant women to Grand Forks hospitals.

"They made it," Deputy Sheriff Don Fall of Polk County, Minn., said.

Trucker Laroy Freiborg was electrocuted when his semi slid off a road and smashed into a power pole near Windom, Minn. Power failures caused by the storm knocked off heat and light in hundreds of homes in Minnesota and Wisconsin and chillded animals in Como Park Zoo in St. Paul, Minn.

The U.S. Forest Service reported several avalanches in the Colorado mountains, hit since Tuesday by 38 inches of snow at Rabbit Ears Pass, 22 inches at Red Mountain Pass, and 16 to 20 inches at Crested Butte, Vail and Breckenridge.

IT RAISED an avalanche warning for all the Colorado Rockies.

"This is the type of storm we have been waiting for for weeks to ease the drought," the Forest Service said. "But at the same time it has caused widespread avalanche danger."

Clear or clearing skies replaced clouds of wind-blown dust in western Kansas and Oklahoma. The Oklahoma dusters Wednesday were rated the worst in 22 years and dusters reminded oldtimers on the flatlands of Dust Bowl days of the '30s.

In Texas, suffering the worst dry spell in 20 years, state Forest Service official David Cleaves estimated that between 75,000 and 100,000 acres of forest and grass lands burned in a 24-hour period Wednesday. He said a severe fire danger would exist until the state gets drenching rains or until the spring greenup comes.

Overtime win for Minnesota

From Herald Wire Services

Kevin McHale's slam dunk and free throw with 1:05 left in overtime Thursday night paced 16th-ranked Minnesota to an 84-78 Big Ten victory over Purdue in Minneapolis.

The triumph, in the fourth straight overtime game between the two teams, gave the Gophers sole possession of second place in the conference behind third-ranked Michigan.

Ray Williams, who led both teams with 29 points, passed off to McHale for the crucial basket and added two free throws, two rebounds and a basket in the final minute to insure the victory for the Gophers.

McHale finished with 23 to equal his season high while Walter Jordan led Purdue with 21.

IN OTHER Big Ten games Northwestern, Wisconsin and Iowa emerged with wins.

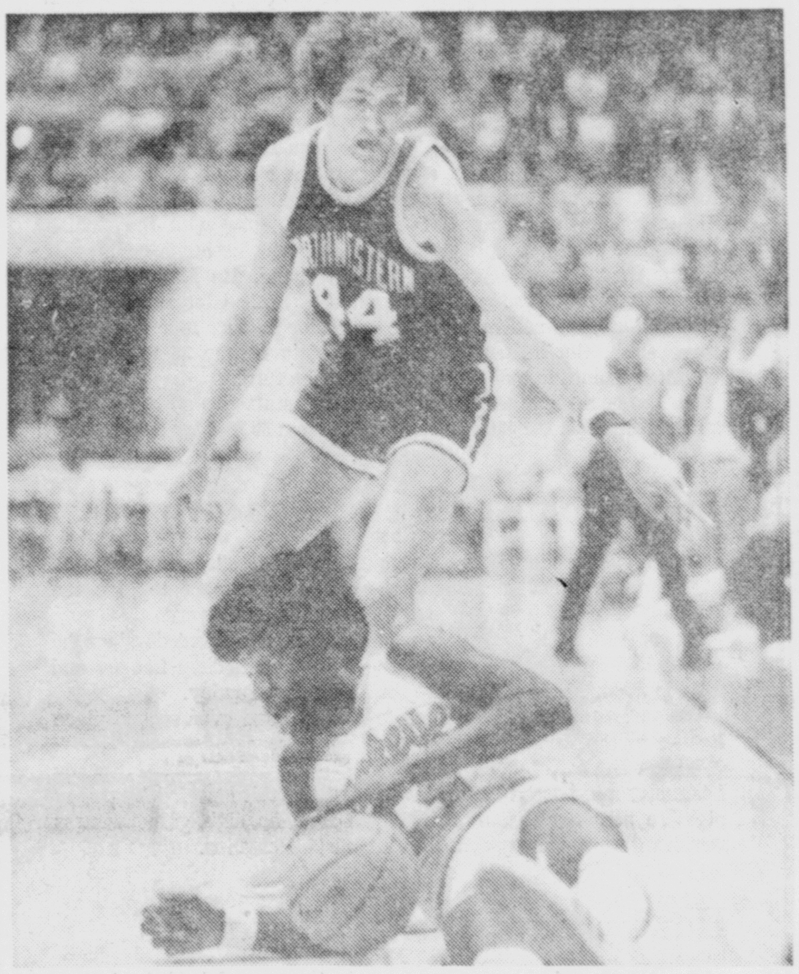

Jerry Marifke scored 16 of his career-high 20 points in the second half to lead crippled Northwestern to an 83-72 victory over Ohio State in Columbus.

The Wildcats, playing without star guard Bill McKinney, pulled away midway through the second half. They took the lead for good at 53-52 on a basket by Tony Allen with 12:30 left in the game.

Allen scored 14 of his 18 points in the first half and Bob Clouse added 14 to lift Northwestern to 7-17 on the year and 5-10 in the Big Ten. Kelvin Ransey led Ohio State, now 8-16 overall and 3-12 in the conference, with 21 points.

BOB FALK hit a 15-foot shot with three seconds to go to give Wisconsin a win over Indiana, playing for the first time without injured All-America center Kent Benson.

Sophomore forward Clay Hargrave and freshman guard Ronnie Lester each threw in 20 points to lead Iowa to a win over Illinois and to fourth place in the Big Ten.

OHIO STATE guard Kelvin Ransey (14) dribbles the ball as he attempts to get off the floor following a collision with Northwestern's Bob Svete Thursday night in Big Ten action. Northwestern won, 83-72.

List of holdouts reduced

Spring training workouts begin

by United Press International

The list of baseball's more celebrated holdouts was reduced somewhat Thursday as most of the major league clubs began their first spring training workouts.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who hope to regain their supremacy in the National League East under new Manager Chuck Tanner, signed two players who will likely have a key role in that effort — pitcher John Candelaria and outfielder Al Oliver.

Candelaria, the Pirates' ace lefthander, was 16-7 last year with a 3.15 earned run average. He also hurled a no-hitter against the Dodgers. Oliver, meanwhile, was the sole Pirate on the NL All Star team in 1976 and batted .323. Both players signed one-year contracts.

ANOTHER NOTED signing — although of a much different nature — was the Detroit Tigers' announcement that their terms had been accepted by Tito Fuentes, a free agent who played out his option with the San Diego Padres last year. The 32-year-old Fuentes, who signed a one-year $90,000 contract, is being counted on to fill the Tigers' long-standing void at second base.

Among those big name players still unsigned were Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds, Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dave Kingman of the New York Mets.

Veteran pitcher Luis Tiant informed his attorney Thursday he will not report to the Boston Red Sox training camp and is considering retirement over an unresolved contract dispute.

According to attorney Bob Woolf, Tiant said in a telephone conversation "he feels badly and feels he's not being treated fairly."

METS' GENERAL Manager Joe McDonald reiterated Thursday that the club was "far apart" in its negotiations with Kingman, who is reportedly seeking $1 million just for signing and another $2 million spread out over the next five years. Kingman hit 37 homers last season, but was a constant defensive liability.

Meanwhile, in the New York Yankee camp, a dispute was raging over a formerly-employed batboy's complaint that he and the other batboys were cut out of a World Series bonus by the players.

Walter Gershoff, who served as the visiting team batboy for the Yankees last season, told a reporter he was led to believe the tradition of rewarding the batboys with a token of $100 or so would be continued by the Yankees — but was not. Yankee reliever Sparky Lyle said the entire affair was a misunderstanding and that all the batboys would be given $100 from a special "fine fund."

However, the Yankee management was most unhappy over the publicity given the incident and issued a statement which said in part: "We feel that the facts in the case have not been accurately stated. The fact is that Walter Gershoff was not even permitted in the Yankee clubhouse during the season. He had been the visiting team batboy and was relieved of those duties prior to the series."

'Madness'

Book treatment for Illinois basketball tourney

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

There's a new book out that may not crack the national best-seller lists but is sure to create some excitement in Illinois.

However, the news that the story of Illinois high school basketball finally has been incorporated into a book is greeted with mixed emotions.

I'm anxious to read Jim Enright's 368-page "March Madness, The Story of High School Basketball in Illinois," but the man who should have written the book is Nelson Campbell, manager of River Trails Tennis Center and a recent contributor here on a special Dike Eddleman column.

I'M SURE Enright, a former Chicago sportswriter, has done a fine job, but I seriously doubt if he can match Campbell's knowledge of high school basketball in this state. I wonder if anyone can.

Campbell also has written a fascinating history of Illinois basketball. Unfortunately, for fans throughout the state, it was strictly a labor of love. Nelson gave no thought to publication and just shared his manuscript with a few people.

I read his work and it's excellent. The writing is superb. Nelson may be dedicated to tennis today in his duties at River Trails, but he'll always be a high school basketball buff at heart. He has expertise few can match.

ENRIGHT'S BOOK will be available for purchase throughout Illinois in early March. A former Big 10 basketball official who now is the Cubs' field announcer, Jim spent months on the road talking to the people and visiting the places where prominent cases of "March Madness" have been diagnosed.

Included in Enright's book are:

- 83 pages of photographs including full-page pictures of the 73 championship teams since Peoria High School captured the first title in the Oak Park YMCA gym 69 years ago.
- Complete all-time, Class A and AA records, including a capsule recap of the success of every team that has ever appeared in the state final tournament, and top 10 performances by teams and individuals in the Assembly Hall since the conversion of the two-class series.
- Game-by-game results of each year's state final tourney and the official box score of every championship game.

Many of the Association's 827 member schools will embark on sales campaigns through school clubs or organizations within their communities. The book also will be available in bookstores and other retail outlets.

MAIL ORDERS of Enright's book currently are being accepted by the Illinois High School Assn. in Bloomington. Only mail orders accompanied by check or money order at $10 per copy will be accepted by the IHSA.

Checks or money orders should be made payable to the Illinois High School Asociation. Mail orders should be addressed to: March Madness, c/o Illinois High School Association, 2715 McGraw Drive, Bloomington, Ill. 61701.

It's not a habit here to push any book before actually reading the copy, but this story can't miss. It has everything because basketball in Illinois has everything — a particular grass roots drama with community vs. community.

Maybe the Illinois tournament has lost some of its spark with the two-class system and the dominance of giant Chicagoland schools, but it's still a spectacular event that affects thousands of lives every year.

Basketball is king in many areas beginning in November and December, but during the month of March its monarchy is absolute throughout Illinois.

"March Madness" deserved a book. Now it has one.

ROCKFORD HIGH school athletes — idled by the elimination of extracurricular activities in the public schools — obviously are having trouble attracting attention for college scholarships.

They have not been able to showcase their skills in the important senior year, and many recruiters simply can't take chances on somebody who has been idle for a season.

There are some interesting stories emerging from the cloud surrounding Rockford youngsters. One involves Mark Taylor, a fine golfer who finished 13th and third in the state tournament his sophomore and junior seasons.

WHEN THE Rockford Guilford senior realized the college recruiters might not be interested, he took the initiative. He felt he had the credentials, and he sent resumes to 20 of the schools that interested him. Sixteen replied, and seven others not on the list contacted him on their own.

In his boldest move Taylor decided to drop in at the office of the University of Florida golf coach Buster Bishop. After presenting his background, which included some summer titles, Taylor was offered a partial scholarship to Florida.

Summer meets obviously help with a golfer so the loss of a high school program hasn't been that crucial. Taylor also has a chance to go to Oral Roberts or Texas A&M.

However, the loss of that senior season really hits athletes in football and basketball.

"IT'S VERY doubtful we'd ever look very long at somebody who didn't play his senior year in high school," said Joe Novak, football assistant at the University of Illinois.

"We go by films and how a player did his senior year weighs very heavily. Most kids show tremendous improvement their final year, but some go the other way.

"It has to hurt a player to miss his senior season. It's just like one who was injured. Somebody would have to be very good to overcome that."

YOU'VE COME a long way, David.

Dick Young, writing in the latest Sporting News, notes that Dave Kingman of the New York Mets, the pride of Prospect High School, is asking for close to $3 million for five years. Dave apparently wants $1 million as a signing bonus alone.

"I put people in the stands," says the National League slugger.

"He does," writes Young, "but he also batted only .238 with his 37 homers, the jolted Mets' brass points out."

Sock it to 'em, Dave. It's always fun to see New York sports people squirm a little. You do put people in the stands. We'd take you in Chicago. You're exciting even when you strike out.

"You can't argue with that," said Mets' manager Joe Frazier. "People do come to see Dave just like they did for Babe Ruth. Whether he hits a homer or strikes out, he does it with a flair, 'cause when he strikes out it ain't always safe to be in the dugout."

Player's 68 leads Inverrary Classic

LAUDERHILL, Fla. — Gary Player shot a 68 Thursday to take a one-shot lead in the opening round of the $250,000 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic.

In second, with a 69, was Curtis Strange, a 22-year-old former Wake Forest star who failed to make the qualifying school at Brownsville, Tex., last December but is playing this tournament on a sponsor's exemption.

Jack Nicklaus was locked in a five-man tie for third at 70 with Bobby Walzell, Jim Simons, Calvin Pete and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Player has had two dry years in this country after winning the Masters and the Memphis Open in 1974, along with the British Open. But he is the current money leader in his home country of South Africa, averaging 68 strokes a round. He said he had a "shaky" start Thursday, running afoul of a pond for a bogey four on the third hole and missing the green for another four on the par three sixth. But he used birdie putts of three and 25 feet on the eighth and ninth to pull even with par at the turn.

On the back nine he birdied No. 10 and started a string of three straight birds on the 12th by chipping in from 50 feet for a two.

Sabres blank Flyers; Detroit wins

Rookie goaltender Don Edwards stopped 25 shots in recording his second shutout in seven games Thursday night to give the Buffalo Sabres a 2-0 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

It was the sixth victory in seven games for Edwards since he was called up from Hershey in the American Hockey League and the win avenged his only loss to the Flyers last Sunday.

The victory raised the Sabres first place lead over second place Boston in the Adams Division to six points.

Rookie Dave Kelly, playing in only his fourth National Hockey League game, scored a goal at 7:50 of the third period Thursday night to help the Detroit Red Wings snap an eight-game winless streak with a 32-victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Hawks, Cavs, Bucks all winners

The Atlanta Hawks, roaring back in the second half, beat New York 101-98 Thursday night on John Drew's layup and Armand Hill's two free throws in the closing seconds of overtime.

The two teams traded baskets in the overtime until Drew scored on a layup to make it 98-96 with 27 seconds left. Then Hill made his free throws to make it 100-96 with three seconds left. Bob MacAdoo scored an uncontested basket to make it 100-98.

Campy Russell hit his last eight shots, including the go-ahead basket with 3:38 left, to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 99-86 victory Thursday night over the Golden State Warriors.

Cleveland rallied from 13 and 12-point deficits to take the lead at 72-71 with 9:13 left on a jumper by Russell and the score was tied twice thereafter before Russell hit an 18-footer with three minutes left to give the Cavs an 84-82 lead. Cleveland outscored Golden State 17-4 during the remainder of the game.

Brian Winters and Bob Dandridge combined for 56 points Thursday night to lead Milwaukee past San Antonio 131-121 in an NBA game.

Cauthen still 8 wins shy of record

NEW YORK — Steve Cauthen, the 16-year-old sensation of the horse-racing world, will have to wait a little longer to set a record for victories during one race-meeting. The diminutive Kentucky native rode three more winners at Aqueduct Thursday, and at first it was announced that Cauthen had broken the two-year-old mark of 123 held by Chris McCarron. Later it developed that eight of Cauthen's 124 wins this winter came at Santa Anita, so the phenom apprentice still needs eight more wins at Aqueduct for the record. His 116th victory came aboard Sea Stopper.

NFL player union agrees to pact

WASHINGTON — The leadership of the pro football players union agreed Thursday to endorse a five-year labor contract with the National Football League owners, subject to a vote of approval by the members.

The executive committee of the NFL Players Association went over details of the collective bargaining agreement for more than six hours Thursday and will submit it to a meeting of the player representatives of the teams Friday.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, predicted the player reps would approve submitting the agreement to a vote of the members with a recommendation that it be ratified.

The tentative settlement reached last week to end three years of labor strife calls for a modified college draft, liberalized free agent rights for veterans, better pay and pensions, an option for the owners to increase the regular season by two games to 16 and a payment by the NFL of between $15 and $16 million to settle legal claims which are pending because of suits since the last contract expired.

The Niles North Vikings, hitting their free ex routines like the steps were stenciled on the mat, took a hammerlock on the Evanston gymnastics sectional tournament Thursday night after the completion of tumbling, side horse and high bar.

Trampoline, P-Bars and still rings will be held tonight at Evanston Township High School at 7 p.m.

The Vikings, kingpins of the New Trier East district, used a devastating 25.70 free ex total to reach the halfway point of the meet with 68.05 points.

ELK GROVE'S Grenadiers, who won the Maine West district tournament, sit in second place with 62.30 points.

Glenbook South is third (60.90) and Niles East fourth (57.75).

The Vikings did not waste any time taking control of the meet as seniors Barry Cook and Mike Adelson sprung 8.7 free ex marks to tie for the sectional championship.

Teammate Paul Fischburg came home fifth with a solid 8.3 showing and suddenly everybody in the gym was playing catch up.

NILES NORTH struggled through the side horse, their admitted weak link, before turning up the juice again on high bar.

Niles West's Darrel Kerbel fashioned an 8.85 as the final competitor of the evening to win the event but Niles North picked up three more medals to increase their lead over Elk Grove. Grove.

Fischburg collected the second place medal with an 8.65 score and Cook, despite a break early in his set, finished fifth at 8.05.

Steve Zeal, the number three man on Niles North's high bar team, came through with a career high 8.20 to place fourth.

ELK GROVE also had a good start on free ex as Bob Hamilton hit an 8.20 and Don Bosslet an 8.15 to anchor a team total of 23.15.

The Grens also picked up some ground on the Vikings on the side horse as Bob Beaupre rode home fifth with a 6.80.

But, on high bar, Elk Grove lost more than four points.

Hamilton (7.2) and Dick Allen (7.0) were the Grens best on the event.

Maine North's Mark Yahiro earned the third place medal on free ex with an 8.50 while the hometown folks were treated to a fourth place showing by Evanston's Dave Macherey at 8.35.

The side horse event belonged to Glenbrook South's Mike Bergman at 8.20.

A distant second, at 7.75, was Kevin Shikami of New Trier West.

Mike Gregg of Glenbrook South was third (7.45), Jim Burke of Niles East fourth (7.15) and Mark Rocque of Maine West tied with Beaupre for fifth.

Forest View's Pat Lucansky scored a 7.4 on free ex, 2.5 on side horse and 7.85 on high bar. Teammate Guy Hobart tumbled to a 7.0, earned a 5.1 on side horse and scored 5.15 on high bar.

Girls basketball highlights

Bison bounce back, rip Arlington

by JEFF NORDLUND

It was like the difference between night and day.

Buffalo Grove's girls basketball team pushed aside the memory of a disappointing loss only the day before to whip visiting Arlington 66-40 in a Mid-Suburban League North clash Thursday.

As the score indicates, the contest was nothing like the one the day before, when the Bison were socked by host Hersey 47-45, much to the relief of Coach Ann Penstone.

"DID YOU EVER have one of those days when nothing went right?" Penstone began. "That's what happened to us Wednesday against Hersey. We tried, but nothing worked. We were just off."

"Tonight, though, we showed we could come back," the coach said. "The girls did really well against Arlington."

That they did, especially high scorer Joyce Gallagher, who tallied 18 points. The junior is well on her way to leading Buffalo Grove in scoring for the third straight season. She is also among the Mid-Suburban League leaders.

"Joyce had 18 points against Hersey, too," Penstone said, "but she didn't move against them the way she did tonight."

SHOOTING TO a 12-0 first quarter lead, Buffalo Grove was not threatened afterward, allowing Penstone to substitute freely. Eleven Bison found their way into the scoring column.

Arlington's Val Weidner, Kim Broderick and Judy Satikas furnished the bulk of Arlington's scoring. Weidner had 12 points, followed by Broderick and Satikas with eight each.

Buffalo Grove is now 5-3 in the MSL North, while Arlington fell to 1-6.

In other Mid-Suburban League games Thursday night, Forest View (9-0) won its key South Division showdown with visiting Elk Grove (7-2) 42-32 to all but clinch the South title.

LEADING ONLY 22-20 at halftime, the Falcons pulled away from the Grenadiers within the final two periods behind the play of Debbie Brinkman and Nancy Lachus, who each finished the night with 15 points.

Elk Grove's Kim Richardson was largely responsible for pulling her team so close to Forest View at the half when she hit quick hoops just before intermission. She wound up the night with 14 points to lead the Grens.

Committing only seven personal fouls, Forest View denied Elk Grove the opportunity to take a single free throw the entire game.

"Brinkman played a super game for us," Forest View coach Al Beard said afterward. "She held (Carole) Pollitz to just eight points. We also got good games from (Kim) Karaffa and Lachus."

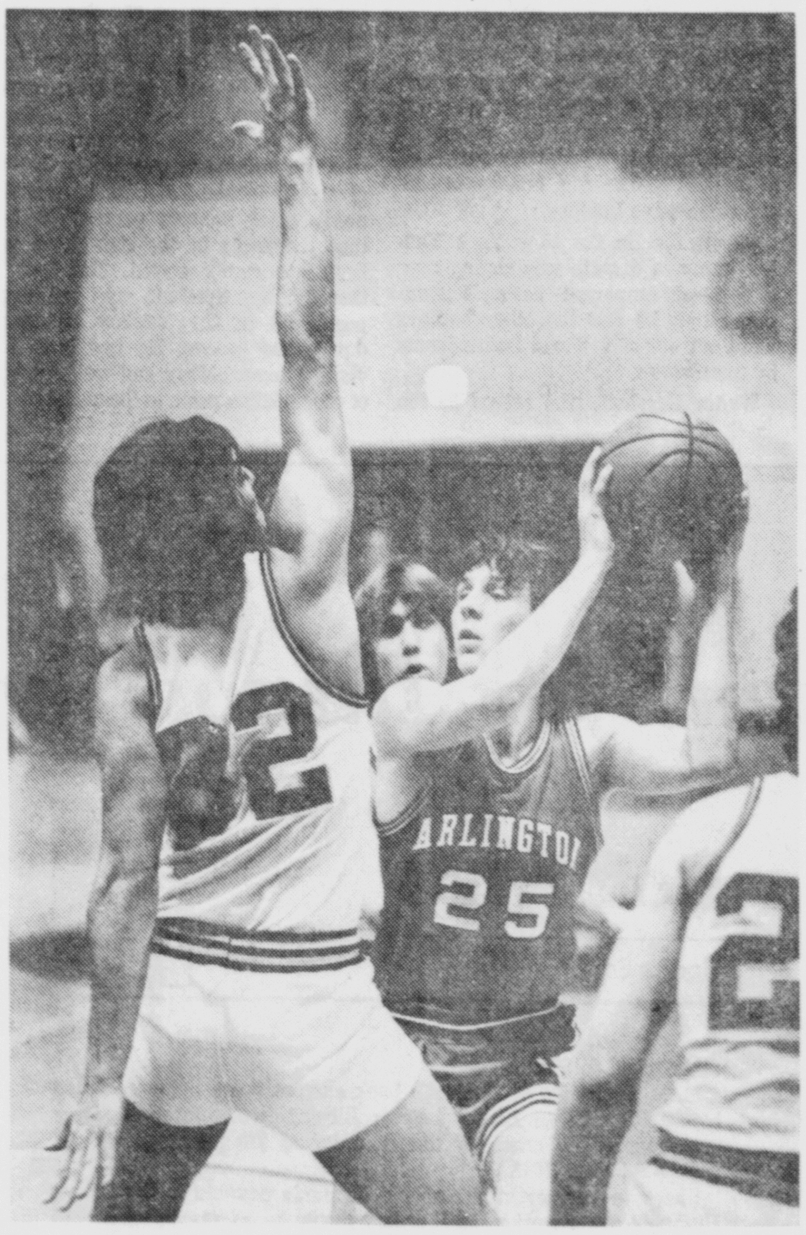

CONANT (5-3) crushed visiting Schaumburg (3-6) 60-43 behind the shooting of Kathy Surnicki, who scored 21 points. Surnicki managed that total despite missing most of the third and all of the fourth quarters because of foul trouble.

Diane Kretz and Carol Mazikowski were the top point-getters for Schaumburg, netting 17 and 15 respectively.

Rolling Meadows (2-6) kept Prospect (0-9) winless by thumping the hosts 54-46. Foul problems spelled trouble for the Knights, who actually outscored Meadows from the field by one hoop. At the line, though, the Mustangs dropped in 18 tosses.

JoAnn Wissen had 15 for the winners, followed by teammate Pam Klein with 10. Jeannine Hahn picked up a dozen for Prospect.

A last-second hoop gave Wheeling a come-from-behind 41-40 victory over host Palatine in a North Division game. The victory kept the Wildcats (6-1) one-game lead over Fremd. Palatine fell to 1-6. Wheeling was led by Marsha Warden with 11, and Cindy Charier had 12 for the Pirates.

HALT! WHO GOES THERE? Guarding the gates at Elk Grove is Phil DeMarie who greets Arlington's Frank DeSimone with stout defense. The Cards outscored the Grenadiers, 21-12 in the final period to triumph, 59-49, in a battle of second place division teams.

Stoltzner joins junior hockey all-star squad

Mike Stoltzner of Arlington Heights was named to the National Hockey League six-man Junior All-American Hockey Team recently. He was picked the top junior hockey center in the United States and will be honored on March 7 at the NHL Banquet in New York City.

Stoltzner, a native of Park Ridge, began his Junior A hockey career at 15 with the Chicago Nordigues of the Midwest Junior Hockey League in 1973. He has spent his last three seasons with the Austin Minnesota Mavericks also of the MJHL.

During his career with the Mavericks, he has captured the team scoring title twice and is well on his way to gaining his third title. He has also twice been runner-up in scoring in the MJHL. In 1975, he led the Mavericks with 37 goals and 52 assists, and in 1976 he had 26 goals and 56 assists.

Stoltzner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stoltzner of Arlington Heights. He began his hockey career at the age of 9 and participated in squirt, peewee and bantam programs. He played varsity hockey for Maine South High School.

This season Stoltzner is leading his team in scoring with 20 goals, with a whopping 31 assists for 51 points in 35 games. He is currently tied for third place in MJHL scoring.

State finals begin today in wrestling

by KEITH REINHARD

Wrestling Editor

CHAMPAIGN — The numbers game comes up 40 and 11.

Those are two prominent figures in high school wrestling with the big payoff starting at 1:00 today.

It's called the Illinois High School Assn. State Wrestling Tournament — the 40th annual — and it brings together the finest talent from Zion to Granite City.

They will be gathering through four sessions here today and Saturday at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall to determine individual and team champions in two divisions.

Eleven of the representatives are from the Herald area.

What those 11 will be confronted with in the Class AA tourney is one of the toughest fields in years with no less than 23 returning place earners and 45 vets total from the 1976 gathering. Four of the grapplers on hand will be seeking their second state crowns.

Still, battling their way through rugged sectional meets at Downers Grove South, Barrington and West Leyden, the local 11 cannot be counted out of the point-scoring picture and in the case of Buffalo Grove with three representatives, team honors are also in the realm of possibility.

Here's a rundown on the state wrestling meet, by weight:

98 Pounds — Jay Evans of Elk Grove opens against Joliet West's sophomore Dane Nasenbenny (26-2-2) in a field that unbeaten Kris Whelan (33-0) of Granite City North is expected to dominate. Whelan finished fourth last year. Returnee Tom Long of Morgan Park, Jim Mitchell of St. Patrick and Tom Oury of Glenbard North bring to four the number of wrestlers at this weight with unblemished slates.

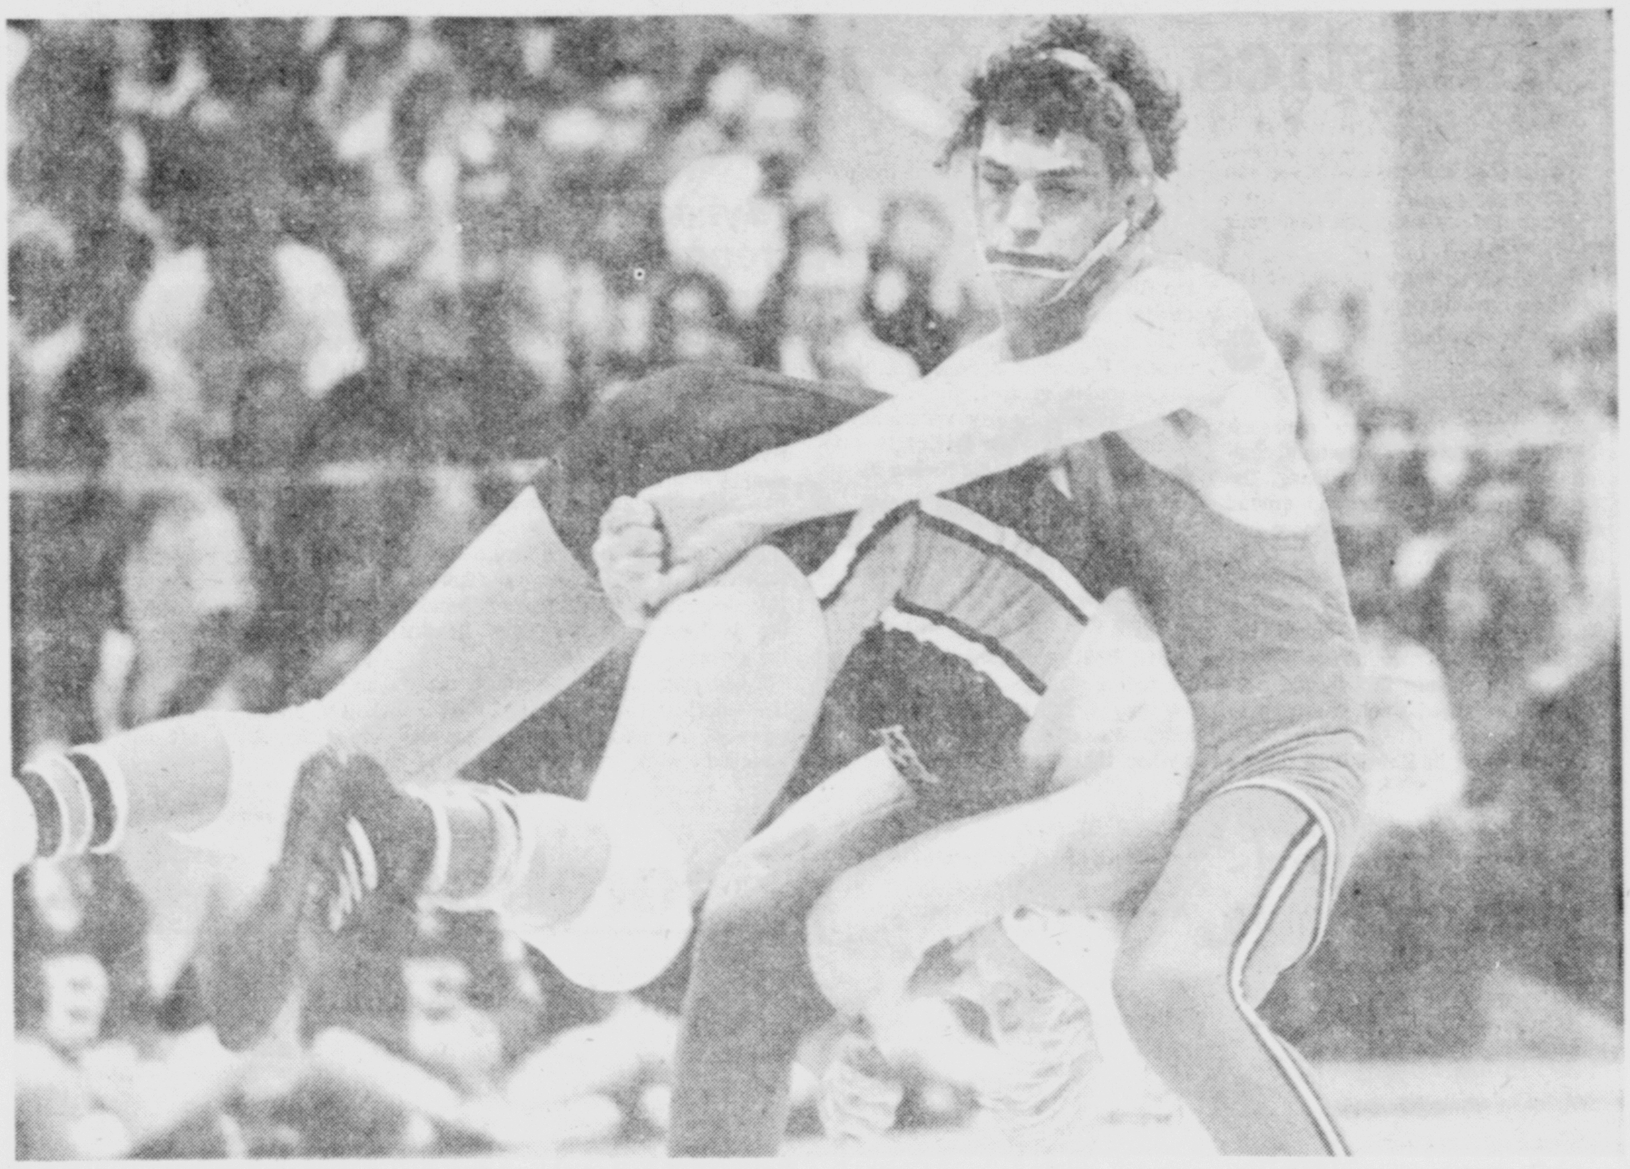

105 Pounds —With three entries here . . . Jon Gluck of Conant, Ray Auger of Wheeling and Paul Preissing of Arlington . . . this weight would appear to hold the best opportunity for a local boy to make good. But the competition also includes five downstate veterans led by Bob Porter of Niles West (24-1) and Rick Bell of Morris (32-3), both of whom earned thirds in '76. They open against Gluck and Auger respectively. Also on deck is returning fifth placer Fred Mariani of Bloomington (30-3) and his first foe is Preissing. Other vets are Fernando Ayala of North Chicago and Jerome Watts of East St. Louis Lincoln. This is the second toughest weight in the tournament.

112 Pounds — This is the toughest. Lee Goldsmith of New Trier West (28-3) beat Bill Porter of Niles West (31-1) in last year's 105 title match and both are back along with third finishing Jerry Kelly of Richards and fourth placer Juan Causey of Bloom. Add returnees Scott Johnson of LaGrange, Larry Colvin of Farragut and Pat Sterr of Joliet Catholic and this is a loaded field.

119 Pounds — Things aren't too much better for Arlington's Dan Weber, who opens against Steve Koch of Belleville East (35-2). Koch placed third last winter. Also back is state runnerup Walt Futrell of Bloom (31-1) and West Chicago's Tom Reed (33-3) with fifth place credentials not to mention vets Randy Conrad of East Leyden, Mike Lorentzen of Cahokia and Doy Harrison of Tilden.

126 Pounds — Palatine's Lance Gackowski opens with John Minorini of Highland Park (31-1-1) whom he tied during a dual meet earlier in the season. This class is headed up by undefeated returning champ Tom Janicik (26-0) of Belleville West, Romeoville's Fred Ferrin (27-2) who was a champ two years ago and finished fourth in state last season, and Zane

CARPET SWEEPER. Eric Moll of Barrington fends off a single leg attempt by Chris Rugg of Buffalo Grove en route to a 4-3 decision in the 167-pound championship match at the Barrington Sectional. It was Moll's fourth win over Rugg in as many tries but both are now in the state finals where Rugg will be looking for another chance.

Hockey tournaments at Randhurst

The Northern Illinois Hockey League (NIHL) Mite AA and A (ages 6-8) playoffs will be conducted at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena Saturday and Sunday.

The Mite AA teams in competition for the championship include the Arlington Rangers, Deerfield Falcons, Elmhurst Huskies, Northbrook Blues, Park Ridge Hornets and Schaumburg Kings. All are ranked in the top 11 in the state.

The Mite A's will feature competition between teams from Deerfield, Elmhurst, Park Ridge and Schaumburg.

Admission to the three playoff sessions is $1 per session for age 13 and up and 50 cents per session for 12 and under.

Saturday's schedule has Elmhurst A vs. Deerfield A, 8-9 a.m., Park Ridge A vs. Schaumburg A, 9:15-10:15 a.m., Arlington AA vs. Northbrook AA, 10:30-11:30 a.m. and Elmhurst AA vs. Deerfield AA, 11:45-12:45 p.m.

Sunday's slate has Saturday's 10:30 winner against Park Ridge AA, 8-9 a.m., the winner of Saturday's 11:45 game against Schaumburg AA, 9:15.

The second session Sunday features the Mite A Championship at 3 p.m. and the Mite AA Championship at 4:15.

Statistics help in rugged battle to stop smoking

Byline report

Charlie Dickinson

A man once claimed that if you can get through the first 48 hours when trying to quit smoking, you have your addiction licked.

Which only proves to me that the man never tried to quit smoking.

Mark Twain claimed it was so easy to quit smoking he did it four or five times a week.

ALTHOUGH IT can not approach the billions of dollars spent on cigarettes and cigarette advertising, the industry that has sprung up around aids to quit smoking grows more formidable each year.

A fellow sportswriter rid himself of his smoking monkey with a series of filters that gradually reduced the amount of tar and nicotine taken in.

There are various tablets and candies to be chewed when the urge to smoke crops up.

At a hospital in Hinsdale, a course is offered to rid yourself of the psychological need to smoke.

I HAVE NEVER tried any of these aids although I was tempted to give the filters a go when I saw how successful they had been.

My particular monkey needed one pack of Benson & Hedges menthols a day to remain content.

He was particularly voracious following a meal, while driving to work or when I had nothing else in my hands.

No manner of substitutes, whether a low tar replacement or a mouthful of gum, fooled the monkey. He had to have, he demanded, a pack of menthols per day at 65 cents each.

THE PURE economics of smoking, the fact I was greasing my lungs to the tune of $237.25 a year, never had much of an effect on me.

When the money was trickling out in 65-cent increments it did not seem like much money. It was all small change over the counter and what slid back over the counter in return was much more valuable.

Nor did the many dire health warnings (Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous To Your Health bother me.

I had seen all the literature from the American Cancer Society, the pictures of ravaged lungs and people wracked with emphysema. Rationalization is the monkey's strongest tool.

AN ACQUAINTANCE of mine is so adept at rationalization he is still smoking after going through open heart surgery.

I tried to cut down.

I endeavored to smoke one less cigarette a day until the monkey left. But I often lost count.

I contemplated what certain situations would be like without a cigarette. Not surprisingly, they seemed unbearable.

HOW COULD I be expected to drink a cup of coffee without a cigarette? That is an American Institution. They were made for each other.

Yet, I kept waking up in the morning with a headache. My clothes, my hands, and my mustache all smelled of smoke. Even my cat smelled of smoke.

I coughed more than I should have and I was content having nothing more than a B & H menthol for breakfast. I really looked forward to that moment the nicotine kicked in with the first cigarette of the morning.

Finally, I decided enough was enough.

BEING INVOLVED with sports on a daily basis I decided to approach quitting as a contest. I had tried to dump the mokey cold turkey before but never lasted longer than four days.

With any contest there are likely to be statistics and I have found the stats that go along with quitting smoking have been enough to get me over some pretty rough times.

I knew, for instance, the exact moment I put out my last cigarette.

I have now been a nonsmoker for 27 days, 11.5 hours. At any hour of the day I can tell you how long it has been since my mast menthol.

THAT FIGURE totals out to 659.5 hours. I set goals for myself. For instance, reaching the 1,000 hour plateau will be an accomplishment.

I'm also looking forward to having been rid of the monkey for one full month.

Economically, I have saved $17.55.

Granted, a portion of that goes right back in to sugarless gum and carrots and apples, but I don't have the headaches in the morning and my cat doesn't smell either.

So, if you are a sports fan with a statistical bent who can't get rolling in the morning without torching a cigarette, you might give it a try.

KEEP TRACK of your progress and when you reach one goal, reward yourself and set another.

Just don't reward yourself with a cigarette.

Hockey

Palatine Pirates

Palatine 3, St. Viator 1

High school hockey play-offs got underway at Randhurst with a hard-skating and close-checking Palatine team stopping St. Viator 3-1. St. Viator got the scoring underway in the first period on a power play goal by Guendling. After the early goal, though, Palatine goaltender Scott Vena stopped the Lions cold.

Scott Zordan played an outstanding game on defense for Palatine and helped get the team on the scoreboard with an assist on Dan McSweeney's first goal of the game. The second Pirate goal came on a perfect pass from Mike Mikulan to Ed Rice, who slapped the puck past the Lion goaltender. McSweeney scored the final goal with only two minutes left in the game.

State swimming finals open in Darien

by BOB GALLAS

Swimming Editor

A total of 12 swimmers, three divers and four relay teams will represent the Herald area today as the 46th annual state swimming and diving championships get under way at Hinsdale South High School, 7401 S. Clarenden Rd., Darien.

Diving prelims start at 10 a.m. while swimming eliminations will begin at 4 p.m. Finals in all events will get under way at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Hinsdale Central will be gunning for its 11th straight state swimming title, and coach Don Watson's Red devils are again heavy favorites.

WHILE THE AREA has qualified a number of swimmers and divers, only a handful are rated in the top 10, based on district performances last week.

The top area entry is Prospect's Tom Cole, ranked first in the butterfly and fifth in the 200 yard freestyle. St. Viator's 400-yard free relay team of Matt Kenney, Jon Newcomer, Jim Harvey and Chris Stewart posted the seventh best district time. Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke swam the 10th best time (54.033) statewide last week in the butterfly.

Randy Roel of Maine West posted the seventh best time in state during districts last week, swimming a 57.001 in the backstroke, not quite two seconds off the top time set by Lyons swimmer David McClellan who swam the event in 55.349.

St. Viator will take the largest contingent to the state meet, taking both relays plus three swimmers who have qualified in four individual events. They are: Stewart (100-, 200-yard freestyle); Kenney (50-yard freestyle); and Mark Markwell (backstroke).

THE VIATOR Lions of coach Ernie Buchanan will take their best shot in the free relay, in which they posted a time of 3:19.596 in the districts. Fenwick led all free relay qualifiers with a time of 3:15.598 and defending state champ Hinsdale Central's entry is right behind with a 3:15.677.

Stewart and Newcomer swam on last year's Viator free relay team which finished fifth in state with a time of 3:18.896.

Not since 1966, when New Trier East took the team title by 12 points, has any team challenged Hinsdale Central, which boasts 11 individual event qualifiers and both relay teams this year. Figured to give the Red Devils some challenge this year are Fenwick, with eight individuals and both relays qualified, and St. Charles with four individuals and both relays qualified.

Qualifiers

AREA STATE MEET QUALIFIERS

ARLINGTON — Mike Roessler (breaststroke), Scott McCratic (diving).

ELK GROVE — Gary Drake (200-, 500-yard freestyle events), free relay team (M. Soja, Bird, R. Van Den Bussche, G. Drake), Tim Bird (200-yard individual medley, 100-yard butterfly).

BUFFALO GROVE — Mike Yaskey (backstroke), Alan Cymbal (diving).

FOREST VIEW — Tom Redig 200 IM, 500-yard freestyle.

PROSPECT — Tom Cole (200-yard freestyle, 100-yard butterfly), Spencer Gilchrist (backstroke), John Kriescher (diving), medley relay (Gilchrist, Boutet, Cole, Ward).

ROLLING MEADOWS — Tom Stahnke (butterfly), Jim Rowland (backstroke).

ST. VIATOR — Chris Stewart 100-, 200-yard freestyle); Matt Kenney (50-yard freestyle), Mark Markwell (backstroke), medley relay team (Markwell, Perry, Newcomer, Kenney), Free relay team (Kennedy, Newcomer, Harvey, Stewart).

TO THE WINNER. Prospect's Tom Cole receives congratulations from Barb Larsen after winning the 200-yard freestyle in the Arlington District. St. Viator won the meet for the third year in a row. Arlington and Prospect tied for second.

Cole shows No. 1 status

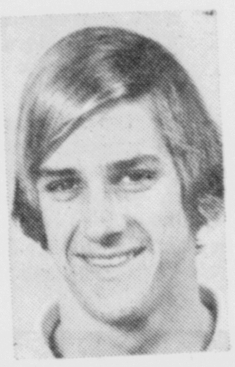

Prospect's Tom Cole will be the man to beat this weekend as he closes in on a record in the 100-yard butterfly in the state swimming meet.

The junior swimmer posted the best time in district competition in the event, a 51.984, to maintain his claim to the No. 1 spot statewide in that event. That time is little more than one second away from one of the oldest records of the state meet, a 50.8 swim by Rock Island's Marc Gilliam in 1969.

"Back at Christams I was telling him he could be No. 1 and he was shooting for fourth or so," said Prospect coach Paul Reeff. "It didn't hit Tom until about three weeks ago that he could walk out of the meet a state champ."

"WE'VE TAPERED straight for state so we're sitting real good right now," said Reeff of his star swimmer, who's also swimming the 200-yard freestyle, where he posted the fifth best district time, a 1:46.078, two seconds off the pace set by state leader Jonas Zymantas of Fenwick, who posted a 1:44.092 clocking.

Cole is concentrating on the fly in practice all week, however. He feels the pressure that comes with getting the No. 1 rating.

Tom Cole

"He feels the pressure, but he's a pressure swimmer. Some kids don't react well to pressure, but Tom actually swims better when under pressure," Reeff said.

Both Cole and his coach want to notch the state record, but their immediate goal is a time of 51.2 which would qualify him for All-American consideration.

COLE WILL BE swimming in two events before sliding into lane three for the final heat of the butterfly in qualifications today. Cole swims the anchor leg of Prospect's 200-yard medley relay leg, then comes right back to swim the 200-freestyle. He then gets to rest through the individual medley and 50-yard freestyle events before swimming the butterfly.

Joining Cole from the Knights will be Spencer Gilchrist, who'll be hard pressed to repeat his state meet backstroke performance of last year. Gilchrist finished seventh last year in the state meet with a time of 58.8 and all six finishing ahead of him were seniors.

Gilchrist has posted a best time of 57.5 this season but could only take second in his district meet with a time of 58.231 and had 20 or more finish ahead of him statewide. Gilchrist also swims on Prospect's medley relay.

Rounding out the Prospect contingent to the state meet will be the rest of the medley relay team, Ed Boutet and Tim Ward. Diver John Kriescher also qualified for the Knights.

State wrestling tourney opens; 11 area entries

Bussler of West Chicago (31-6) who was sixth as a sophomore in 1975.

132 Pounds — Buffalo Grove's Kirt Lewis opens against Kenneth Fraction of Marshall (20-4) and has to be considered a contender at a weight with only two veterans, Pekin's Dan Allen (32-1) and Joliet West's Greg McCullum (29-1). Also strong in the running are East Leyden's Dave Krist (33-1) and York's Jim Farina, like Lewis the younger brothers of state placing wrestlers.

138 Pounds — There are three vets here and all of them are on the same side with Bison Greg Thomson initially paired off against another in Jeff Hoss of East Leyden (32-4). Scott McGhee of Sandburg (26-0-1) is the third.

145 Pounds — Returning champ Tim Fiorini of Hinsdale South (13-1) heads up a list of vets that also includes sixth finishing Bob Moore of Barrington (32-1), Rock Island's Tony Scott (30-0), Mark Rickert of Evergreen Park (28-2), Darryl Pilate of Morgan Park (33-0) and East Leyden's Mike Garrett (28-5) down from 155.

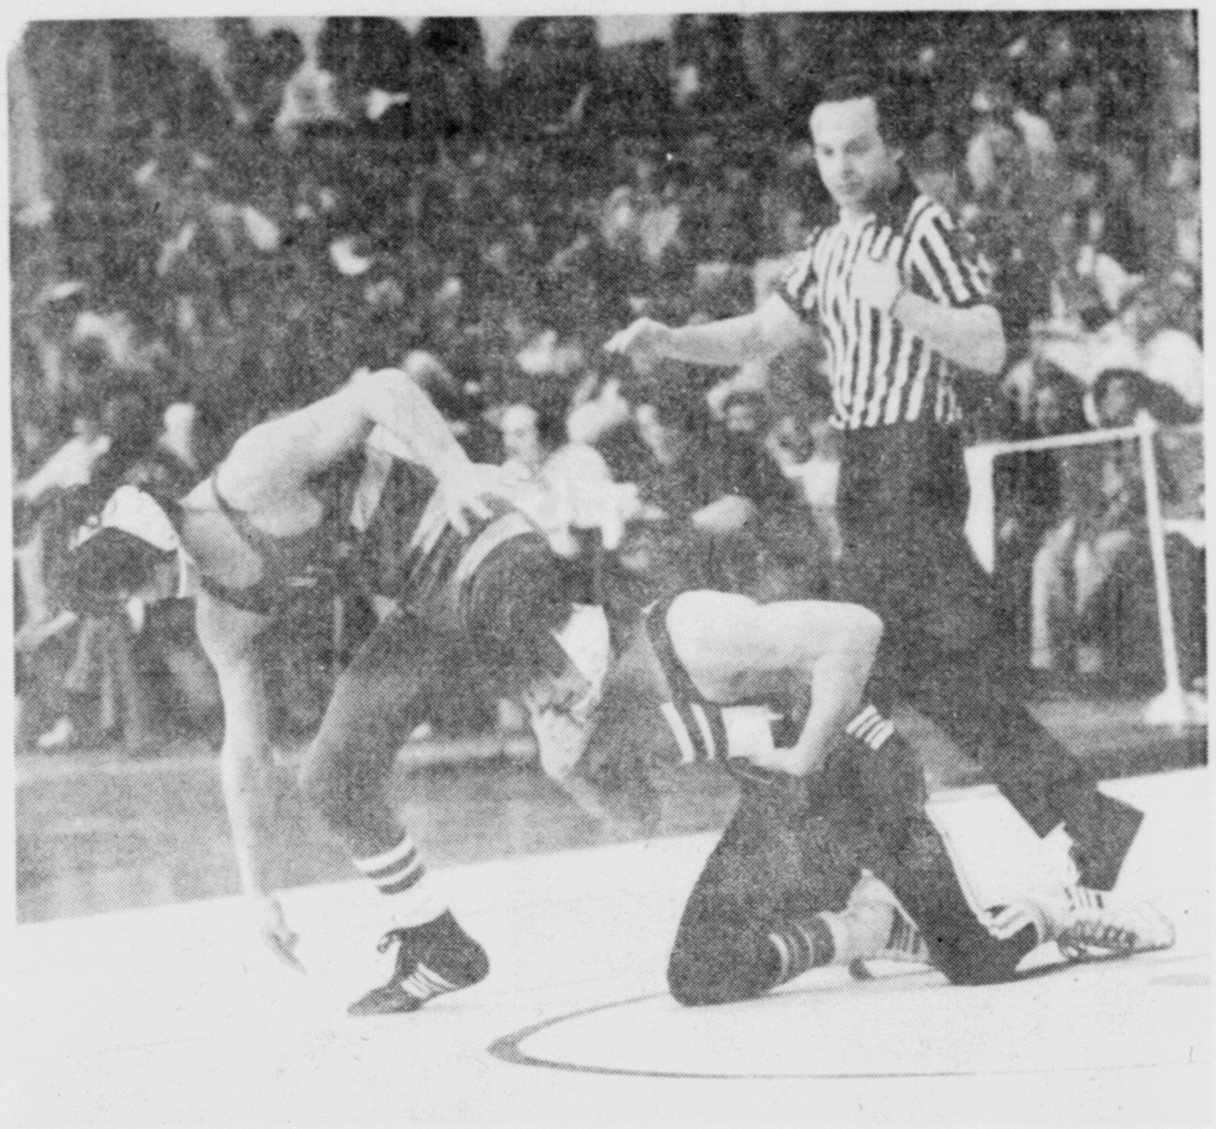

155 Pounds — Todd Whitfield of Glenbrook South (36-1) heads up a host of veterans that also includes state runnerups Jim Sims of Hirsch (31-0), and Bill Konovsky of LaGrange (22-3) along with Rory Fullmer of Rock Falls (24-1), George Dergo of Morris (32-1) and Mark Polz of Riverside Brookfield (26-3). Whitfield was fourth last year.

167 Pounds — Only two returnees here and one, state runnerup Eric Moll of Barrington (32-1), is slated to meet the other, DeKalb's Jim Graham (26-2-1) in the division's opening bout. Way down on the bottom side is Buffalo Grove's Chris Rugg and if he wants a fifth meeting with Moll he'll probably have to get by toughies Miguel Cortez of West Chicago, Jim Latinski of Oak Lawn and John McGuinness of Holy Cross.

185 Pounds — A good possibility for the finals is vet Geno Savegnago of Glenbard North (35-0) against Mike Bardel of Richards, (28-1) the number five finisher in '76. Also returning for Palatine's Scott Santoro to be concerned about is Tilden's Melvin Jackson (28-0). Santoro draws Bob Webster of Galesburg (23-0) in his opener.

Heavyweight — While not appearing particularly strong, the unlimited weight class is an unpredictable division and Maine West's Dave Cavazos could get wiped out in his first bout — with Cahokia's Mark Seldman (37-7) — or go all the way. Vets Pat Renfrow of Bremen (32-0) and Mark Meisgeier of Grant (34-4-1) bear watching, as does Tim Norman of West Chicago (24-0).

Team — East Leyden, with three sectional champs and three runnersup in contention, has to be viewed as a top challenger for team laurels but Cahokia (5 and 1) is in the best position at the start. Other big threats will come from Joliet West (4 and 1), West Chicago (3 and 2) and possibly Rock Falls (3 and 1).

ABLE ELIMINATOR. St. Viator's Scott Malouf tries to hold on to Lee Goldsmith of New Trier West in their 112-pound semifinal bout at the West Leyden Sectional meet. Goldsmith, a defending state champ, knocked Malouf out of the running, 5-0.

St. Viator's Lions shoot for a record

St. Viator's basketball team goes after a school-record 16th victory tonight at Marist, highlighting a limited area roundball schedule on the eve of next week's regional tournaments.

Coach Ron Cregier's Lions, 15-9 over-all, tied the school mark for most wins in a season last Saturday when junior Paul Wiloff scored a career-high 33 points in a victory over Quigley South. The Lions have not had a winning season since 1971-72 when they were 14-10.

In other games tonight, Maine West hosts Niles East in the final Central Suburban South game for both teams, and Stevenson entertains Lake Zurich. All games are set for approximately 8 p.m.

In the only area basketball action Saturday, Hersey greets St. Patrick at 8 p.m.

Regionals begin Monday with teams playing at three area sites: Forest View, Palatine and Elk Grove. The gional at Buffalo Grove opens on Tuesday.

Golden State farm club

The Golden State Warriors, champios of the NBA in 1975, received all the centers they needed from the Chicago Bulls.

Starter Clifford Ray came to the Bay area in 1974, along with cash and a draft choice, for Nate Thurmond.

Back up center George Johnson was released by the Bulls in 1971 and signed with Golden State a year later.

Both Ray and Johnson played in every game in 1975.

Expert unlucky with partner

"Everything happens to me," groaned the Unlucky Expert. "I know I shouldn't have raised this particular partner to six, but I did have 19 high-card points. How could I guess that this miserable bum had decided to open a fifteen-point notrump? It did take real genius for him to lose the contract, but he did it quickly. At trick one he lost a heart finesse. At trick two he lost a club finesse. Even he couldn't lose another trick or he would probably have been down two."

Against a diamond lead any South might well have gone down, but the heart lead and the actual distribution gave South the hand on a silver platter. He should have started by refusing the heart finesse. West would never lead from a queen against that bidding.

At trick two South would take and lose the club finesse. Then West would lead a second heart. South would refuse the finesse again and proceed to run off the rest of the tricks.

He would start by cashing his two good clubs while discarding a heart from dummy. Then would come four diamond leads. East would follow to one, discard a club next and a heart on the third lead but the fourth lead would squeeze him out of his spade protection and four spade tricks would give South his 12 tricks.

Ask Andy

Rare pandas found only in parts of China

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Mary Exley, 10, of Ft. Calhoun, Neb., for her question:

IS THE PANDA FOUND IN THE UNITED STATES?

The giant panda is one of the rarest large animals in the world. It looks like a giant black and white toy bear, but it actually is not a bear at all. It is related to the raccoon. It also has a relative much smaller in size, but equally rare.

Two different animals, but each called panda, are found in the same region in the mountains of western China and in no other part of the world.

One is called the common, or lesser panda. It is a small, raccoon-like animal about the size of a large cat with fur of bright red except for white markings on the face. It has a thick tail ringed with red and yellow. It has a broad, rounded head with prominent ears and feet that are complete with large claws and furred soles.

The common panda likes bamboo sprouts for dinner, and occasionally adds eggs to its diet. It is a skillful climber and has a gentle dispostion, although when angry it will spit and hiss like a cat. The Chinese, as a matter of fact, call it the "fire cat."

The giant panda is black and white and bearlike in appearance. It was long considered a myth until 100 years ago when it was officially put into the record books. It wasn't until 1936 that the first live panda was captured and lived in captivity.

Very playful as a youngster but dangerous when grown, the giant panda reaches full size in about five years. It can weigh as much as 300 pounds as an adult.

The giant panda lives in the mountains of Szechwan and Yunnan provinces of China at an altitude of from 6,000 to 10,000 feet. Bamboo seems to be its only food. In the spring and summer it eats the tender shoots, and in the fall and winter it eats the leaves and stalks. It does not hibernate but chooses to roam over the snow during the winter.

Although they are Chinese natives, a number of giant pandas are now living in the United States. The two most famous pandas which live at the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. were a gift to the American people from China in 1972. They are called Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing and, hopefully, one of these years they will produce a baby panda. Other giant pandas are in the New York Zoological Park and Chicago's Brookfield Zoo.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Daryl Berger, 14, of Sarasota Fla., for his question:

WHAT IS A FLASH FLOOD?

A flood is an overflowing of water onto the land that normally is dry. Most floods occur in the spring and are caused by heavy rains and the melting of snow which brings more water to rivers and streams than they can carry.

A flash flood results after a single, heavy downpour in a narrow valley sends a violent torrent of water down a stream and over its banks. This type of flooding often comes without warning and within a few hours of the heavy rain.

Local control of state funds urged by school panel

by DIANE GRANAT

A move which would give local school districts more control in the spending of state money was suggested Thursday by an Illinois Board of Education committee meeting in Chicago.

The board's budget committee decided to make full funding of the school-aid formula its highest priority in the 1977-78 budget.

The committee discussed which state programs it considers most important in light of Gov. James Thompson's contention that the state does not have enough money to pay for all of the state board's funding requests for 1977-78.

THE STATE AID money would be distributed to local districts on a general basis allowing them to decide how to spend the money, committee members said.

"It's about time responsibility for these decisions be placed at the local level," Donald Truitt, board member from Palatine, said.

If the state board approves this measure it could mean that certain programs required by law — such as bilingual, gifted and adult education — would receive no or very small funding increases in the 1977-78 school year.

INSTEAD, ALL new money would go into the general state aid fund, which local districts use for salaries, programs and operations. The districts then could decide if they want to use these funds for special programs.

The committee's attempts to list its spending priorities came in response to Thompson's announcement that he is budgeting a $75 million increase for elementary and secondary schools in 1977-78, rather than the $225 million increase the board requested.

Illinois elementary and secondary schools this year are receiving between 89.5 and 93 per cent of the funding to which they are entitled through the school aid formula. In the board's budget request for full-funding 1977-78, the schools would receive 100 per cent of the funding required by law.

THE COMMITTEE decided full funding of the formula would be its highest priority based on opinions submitted by local school boards on which state programs should be cut and which should be given the most importance.

State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin said local boards gave the highest priority to general aid, transportation and special education. They suggested the state cut funds for textbooks, gifted programs, adult education for public aid recipients, and not fund any new programs such as career, metric and responsibility education and desegregation assistance.

TRUITT SAID the emphasis on fully funding the school aid formula as opposed to other programs is a "concept" the board will follow no matter how much money is appropriated.

If the Illinois General Assembly approves only the $75 million increase allocated by Thompson, it will be impossible to fully fund general state aid in 1977-78, said Nelson Ashline, executive deputy superintendent of the Illinois Office of Education.

Ashline said it would take a $135 million increase to fully fund the school aid formula.

Some board members and Illinois Office of Education officials warned that putting all funding increases into general aid could hurt some special programs, such as the Orphanage Act, which pays for the education of children who are wards of the state. Ashline urged the board to continue funding this act.

Klussman joins race for 3 seats on Harper panel

by DICK DAHL

Joan Klussman, president of the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education, Thursday entered the April 9 race for three seats on the Harper College Board of Trustees, bringing the number of candidates to seven.

Klussmann, 3 E. Canterbury Dr., Arlington Heights, is completing her second term on the Dist. 25 Board. She announced her decision not to seek reelection in January.

After she picked up nominating petitions at Harper Thursday, Klussmann said she did not do it earlier because "I did not want it to conflict in any way with Dist. 25's enrollment discussions and action taken for next year."

Joan Klussman

KLUSSMANN DOES free-lance legislative research, writing and public relations.

She is a member of the Illinois Board of Education's committee on the use of volunteers in schools, and a member of the North Cook Advisory Council of the Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency Inc.

"I believe I can contribute to the Harper College Board because my prior board experience includes studies and decisions on issues similar to the college's current needs and problems," Klussmann said.

"As a Dist. 25 Board member I have coped with the results of both rising and declining enrollments, attempting to seek the best balance between the educational needs of the district's children and the finances of the district's taxpayers."

SHE SAID she feels she could help with Harper's "relations with the community."

The other candidates for the three 3-year terms are incumbents William Kelly, 317 S. Rags-clad woman really heiress from Galesburg

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A rags-clad woman known to her neighbors as "Garbage Mary" has turned out to be a wealthy heiress from a Galesburg, Ill., family, police confirmed Thursday.

The woman was picked up at a shopping mall Saturday and confined at the Banyan House Psychiatric Institute. She appeared to be just another derelict whose mind had faded.

Neighbors told stories of her scrounging through garbage cans for food, which she hoarded in her car and in her two-room efficiency apartment. They said she also bummed cigarets and ice cubes.

Police finally identified her as Kathleen Nelson Colley, daughter of Sig B. Nelson Sr., a well-to-do Galesburg lawyer and bank director who died in 1974.

DETECTIVES SAID evidence of bank books, stock securities, oil drilling rights and land holdings discovered in her car and scattered among the mounds of garbage at her $150-a-month apartment indicated Mrs. Colley may be worth as much as $1 million.

But a sister in Illinois, and a brother in Houston, Tex., came forward Thursday and said Mrs. Colley didn't have that kind of money.

The brother, Sig Nelson Jr., 60, said Mrs. Colley is 48 years old and has had "two unhappy marriages." He said his sister, whom he had not seen since their father's funeral in 1974, had inherited most of her money from the father.

Nelson told a reporter by telephone that he was too ill to leave his Houston home and that Mrs. Colley's other sister and brother also were ill. He said he "eventually" hopes to come to Florida to help his sister.

Nelson objected that "all this publicity . . . is setting her up.

"Some crazy guy will kill her and try to get her money, or else some old man will try marrying her for it," he said. "Or some lawyer will try to get power of attorney from her to take it all."

HOWEVER, THE sister in Illinois said Thursday she has engaged a lawyer to look out for Mrs. Colley's interests. And Delray Beach Det. Jack Moore said he was consulting a welfare agency which arranges guardians to protect the elderly and incompetent.

Moore said doctors at the hospital "tell me she's getting her memory back and she's coming around mentally.

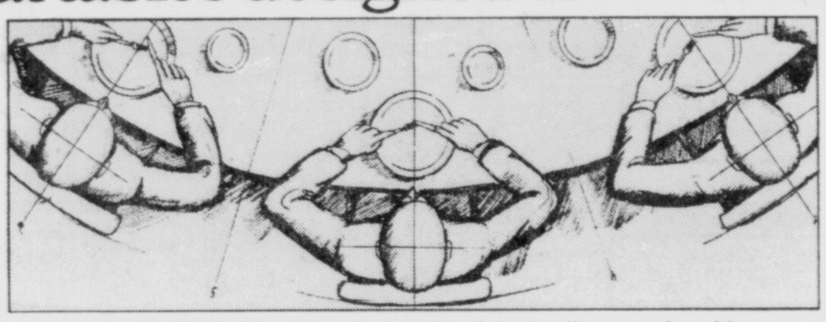

"She is aware of where she is and what's going on and she's quite embarrassed about the whole thing," Moore said.

"This could happen to anyone," Moore said. "She lived alone and it's one of those things where you get into a rut . . . nothing to mentally excite you. You can deteriorate rather rapidly."

Mrs. Colley was born in 1929, in Galesburg. She graduated from Knox College and lived in Galesburg until about three years ago.

Her father practiced law for 60 years in Galesburg and was a member of the board of directors of the Bank of Galesburg until his death at the age of 88.

Why we put ten people at tables designed for twelve.

A knowledgeable caterer knows that little details can make a big difference in the success of a meeting, banquet or party.

And that's why we consider a table's eating space. Not just seating space. And why, for certain meetings, provide shaved ice in the water pitchers, instead of ice cubes. To cut down on distracting noise.

It's a certain kind of thoughtfulness that makes a big difference.

And we offer it right along with the availability of gourmet foods. Indoor, out-of-the-weather parking for up to 1,100 cars. A variety of meeting rooms for groups as small as 10, as large as 1,850. Besides the prestige, location, and luxurious accommodations of the Hyatt Regency.

So instead of trying to remember hundreds of details for your next affair, just remember one. Our phone number. (312) 565-1000.

Carter stumps for worker support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rain dripped off the face of the President of the United States as he stood in the courtyard of the Transportation Dept. explaining to a woman why he had not gone square dancing the night after he took office.

Jimmy Carter, after spending a year campaigning across the country for votes, is spending his first few weeks as President stumping the nation's capital seeking the support of government workers.

Thursday was the day to go to the Transportation and State departments.

HIS BRIEF opening speech carries many of the same lines he used during the campaign.

"I don't pretend to know all the answers. I need your help. "I'm no better than you are."

Then he throws the meeting open to questions. There were about 1,000 workers gathered in the Transportation courtyard and a few hundred in the State Dept. Auditorium a couple of hours later.

One man asked him how he felt about the conviction of "Hustler" magazine publisher Larry Flynt on obscenity charges, and Carter replied that since the case was pending in the courts it was best not to comment.

A WOMAN SAID she missed him at the world's largest square dance at Union Station the day after the Inauguration. He told her he and his wife Rosalyn wanted to attend but "There was a limit on how much we could do the first few days."

It rained lightly the several minutes he was in the Transportation Dept. courtyard, and his military aide draped a raincoat over his shoulders.

"I don't mind getting wet if you don't," he said.

DURING A VISIT to the State Dept. Thursday, President Carter tries out a teletype machine. The President was sending a message to an operator in the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

Before and after the speeches, Carter shook hands with the workers. The crowd was much like that of a campaign, complete with screaming girls who swore they would never wash the hand that Carter shook.

THERE WAS ONE question in common at the two meetings. A Transportation Dept. worker wanted to know why there were no Hispanic-Americans in top administration jobs, and a State Dept. employe asked why there was no black face among the 35 top department officials who gathered on the stage behind the President.

Carter admitted the State Dept. had the worst record of minorities and women in high posts.

"It's a slow thing" to correct, he said. "The State Dept. needs to progress more than any other."

"Sec. (Cyrus) Vance and I will work to make it different the next time I'm over here," he said.

HE WENT ON TO say when he gets done naming his top appointees "we'll have four or five times as many (minorities and women) as we have had in the past — although that's not very many in terms of numbers."

He closed both sessions with a plea for help and cooperation from government workers while he is learning the ropes as President.

"I've got to be careful not to make a major mistake," he said. "At the same time I've got to be careful not to be too timid."

Appellate Judge Hayes dies of heart ailment

ALEXANDRIA La. (UPI) — Illinois Appellate Court Judge John C. Hayes died Thursday in St. Frances Cabrini Hospital where he was undergoing treatment for a heart ailment. He was 67.

Hayes' sister, Mary Audy, had brought him to Louisana to see Dr. Robert J. Freedman, a family friend and physician. Hayes died at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

Hayes was a former dean of the Loyola University Law School and a professor at the school. He was appointed an appellate court judge in September 1972.

HE RECEIVED his bachelor's degree from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., in 1931 and his law degree from Loyola University in 1937. He joined the university's history department as an assistant professor in 1935 and was appointed an assistant professor of law in 1938.

Hayes was dean of the Loyola Law School from 1959 to 1967 and taught at the school until his death.

"The Illinois Court system has lost a dedicated and distinguished jurist who administered justice with sincerity and compassion," said the Rev. Raymond Baumhart, S.J., the university's president.

CHARLES W. MURDOCK, current dean of the law school, said Hayes "was a warm and personable human being, a devoted and inspirational teacher and a scholar in the classroom and on the bench."

"His life has had and will continue to have a very deep impact on the law and the legal profession," Murdock said.

From 1942 to 1946, Hayes served as a captain in the U.S. Air Force as director of ground training for the glider and liaison pilot training programs. He was a major in the Air Force reserves until 1957.

'Chef of the Year' sure America is catching up

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It was late afternoon and the main kitchen in the Hyatt Regency O'Hare was cleared of food and dirty dishes. The counters were wiped clean and the only sign of daily mass meal preparation was a basket of scrubbed potatoes ready for baking. They looked funny. The ends had been sliced off.

But when you first meet John Kempf, executive hotel chef just awarded the "Outstanding Chef of the Year" title by the Culinary Institute of America, you're naturally hesitant to talk potatoes. Rather you're expected to confer over gravies and sauces.

Yet one need not worry. He immediately strikes you as a nice guy, one more concerned with showing off his food than sounding off himself.

"I CAME TO work one morning. The director called and proceeded to tell me I had been chosen," said Kempf, very humble about his recent award.

"I feel it is one of the highest honors — at least emotionally," added Kempf, not only the first graduate of the Institute to receive the annual recognition, but also the first American-born chief to be so honored. Past winners include Louis Szathmary of the Bakery.

With cooking schools like the Culinary Institute in existence in this country, Chef (as he is affectionately called by everyone working in the hotel) feels American training in food preparation is rapidly catching up to the coveted European standards.

"The French are still the most successful in small preparation. Their stronghold is 40 or less," said Kempf, referring to the intimate, gourmet French restaurants that specialize in individualized service.

"But in the heavy end of the industry, it's the Swiss, Germans, Italians and Americans who have the front row."

American cuisine has it own pluses.

"REGIONS IN this country have much more and better food products — more variety from seafood right on down to fresh vegetables," said Kempf, noting, however, that the severe winter and droughts are already affecting the food industry. The hotel is using tomatoes and oranges shipped from Mexico and Kempf predicts that local vegetables will be short in season this summer. Tomatoes may even be scarce.

But about American advantages, he continued, "Europeans rely on hand-operated small utensils in food preparation. But we, for instance, have the greatest of broilers."

Raised in a small town outside Buffalo, N.Y., Kempf became interested in cooking by watching his mother and grandmother.

The Kempfs prepared everything, even ketchup and chili sauce. Of Italian and German heritage, Chef learned two styles of cooking at a very early age.

"At Boy Scouts I was always the camp cook," laughed Kempf, who said it took a lot of courage when he was growing up to admit to liking to cook. Today it's different.

"It's quite fashionable for men to cook at home — particularly if they're entertaining. And today the home is being used more and more for entertaining," said Kempf.

Yet the hotel industry has always been and still is dominated by male chefs.

"THEY'RE OUT there. You just don't hear about them," said Kempf about female chefs.

"It's an uphill battle for them. I don't feel this way, but many say a woman isn't strong enough to do the daily chores — heavy roasting that means turning over a 20-pound slab of ribs or straining 80 to 90 gallons of soup stock." Yet overall, Kempf doesn't think women are as interested in becoming chefs because they too often view cooking as a chore, something that has to be done three times a day.

He agrees it has a lot to do with established roles. Men cook because they like to. Women because they have to.

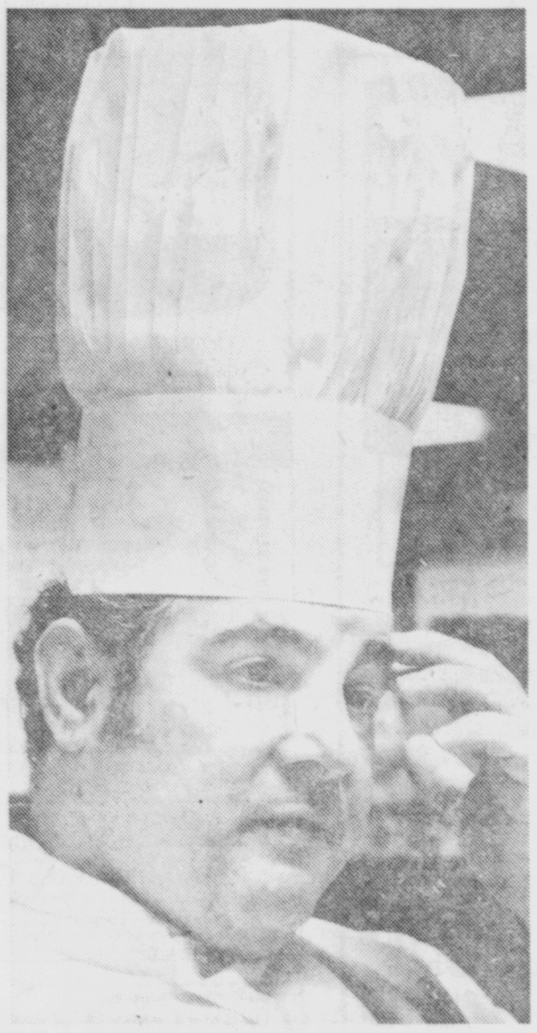

"Generally men are more artistic, more showy, more daring. Women stick to standard preparations."

But in the supermarkets, "housewives carry a tremendous clout," continued Kempf. When food specials are provided for them, prices in the hotel industry go up.

There have been marked differences in American eating habits since World Warr II. And changes have been even more noticeable in the last 10 years, Kempf believes.

"PEOPLE ARE more interested in ethnic dining. The European influence is more apparent because it is more available," he said.

"And Americans have developed a more sophisticated palate. They know now, for instance, what to expect in a fine veal dish."

Chef John Kempf

And what does the Chef eat himself?

"I don't like steak though it is here to stay. I like veal, pork and lamb."

And though Kempf maintains he doesn't eat much dessert, he does enjoy a good chocolate mousse. He is extremely proud of the one he serves in Hugo's, the main dining room in the hotel.

Kempf also said that working in a kitchen all day doesn't deter his appetite in the least.

"I just love to prepare and taste a Cassoulet," he said with a smile and then he named off the ingredients — a casserole of beans, lamb, duckling and sausage,

"Yet after a full day's work I'm satisfied to go home (Wauconda) and have my wife scramble eggs or fix a Swiss cheese sandwich with horseradish. That's when it shows."

But Kempf is quick to add his wife is a good cook. He will, however, take over the kitchen whenever they're entertaining.

"THE COMPANY just expects it," he said.

But back to the potatoes with the cut off ends. As long as Swiss cheese and horseradish was discussed, anything goes.

And Kempf kindly explained that cutting off the very ends of baking potaotes is a good tip for every cook.

"They bake both faster and more evenly."

And that's from the mouth of a chef who knows a hill of beans more than a plain potato.

Choosing seafood over beef is chic

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Developing a taste for seafood is like learning to appreciate a fine wine. If it doesn't come naturally, it will with practice. And many people are discovering this to be true.

Several years ago if you admitted to disliking seafood, no one fussed. And more than likely, if you did select broiled white fish over filet mignon, those dining with you automatically assumed you were either on a strict budget or a strict diet.

Yet while there are no statistics to back up the statement, more fish is being eaten. Restaurateurs say so, and just the number of fast food franchises now specializing in fish — Long John Silvers' and Arthur Treacher's Fish and Chips to name just two — indicate fish is "in."

DON ROTH, who owns three Chicago area restaurants including one in Wheeling, said consumption of fish in his restaurants is up 30 per cent over a year ago.

"Before, people would order fish because it was usually cheaper. But now seafood is catching up to beef in price," said Roth, who sells 1200 pounds per week of his house specialty, fresh Boston scrod.

Roth also cites improved freezing methods and increased availability of fresh fish as other reasons why people are eating more seafood and restaurants are more likely to feature it. It just tastes better.

WHAT'S MORE, an increasing number of diet-conscious Americans are aware that fish, depending on its preparation (fried or cooked in butter is out), can be much lower in calories than red meat. Cholesterol watchers also have fish on their side.

Frank Allgauer of Allgauer's Fireside, Northbrook, said, while he hasn't noticed a big increase in the ordering of seafood entrees, the menu includes more than 16 different seafood choices. A house favorite is King crab legs. When in season this winter, stone claw crabs sold out nightly.

Crab is popular because though its meat is similar to lobster, it costs less.

However, price doesn't seem to be a big factor in ordering fish anymore, according to George Stahl, secretary of the Chicago Restaurant Association.

"IT'S BECOMING chic to dine out on an expensive, seafood dinner."

And there's no doubt that seafood is becoming more popular, believes Stahl, who recalls when Chicago had only one or two restaurants specializing in seafood. Now there are more than 200, he said.

One good example is the Boston Sea Party in Carol Stream that features a seafood appetizer bar and choice of main entree, lobster or steak. More than 90 per cent of patrons opt for lobster and the restaurant has been so successful since opening a year ago, a second one is being built in Niles.

"It's not that diners' tastes are vastly changing. It's just that the American public is dining out more often and prefers menu variety," added Stahl. "Even fast food chains are expanding their menus."

THOUGH THE BIG MAC is alive and well at McDonald's, the franchise located on Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights reports an increase of sales for fish sandwiches.

"People eat it for a change, like it and pass the word along," said the manager.

Yet if anyone disagrees with this whole "fishy" story, it's Helmut Brenzinger, executive assistant manager of food and beverage for the Hyatt Regency O'Hare.

Daily abstracts taken on eating habits at the hotel that features two main dining rooms and one coffee shop, indicate that meat still reigns supreme.

"One problem is, one never knows from day to day what kind of fresh fish will be available. And frozen fish is very inconsistent," said Brenzinger.

LOBSTER IS POPULAR, he admits, but only on certain nights of the week, primarily weekends when those couples who go out only once a week or once a month are much more likely to splurge on an expensive meal than someone eating out more frequently.

Brenzinger, who has 24 years invested in the restaurant business and has worked on both coasts, is convinced the Midwest will always remain "meat and potato country."

"The Midwest is noted for having good beef and visitors from both coasts will order it. After all, they can get all the fresh fish they want at home," the Hyatt Regency executive said. And a hotel is likely to serve the most tourists.

"There are food trends. People, for instance, are eating fewer appetizers and desserts than they once did," continued Brenzinger.

"IT USED TO BE if you left a restaurant and were not filled up, something was wrong. Now more people are conscience of not overeating. And it's more than just the price."

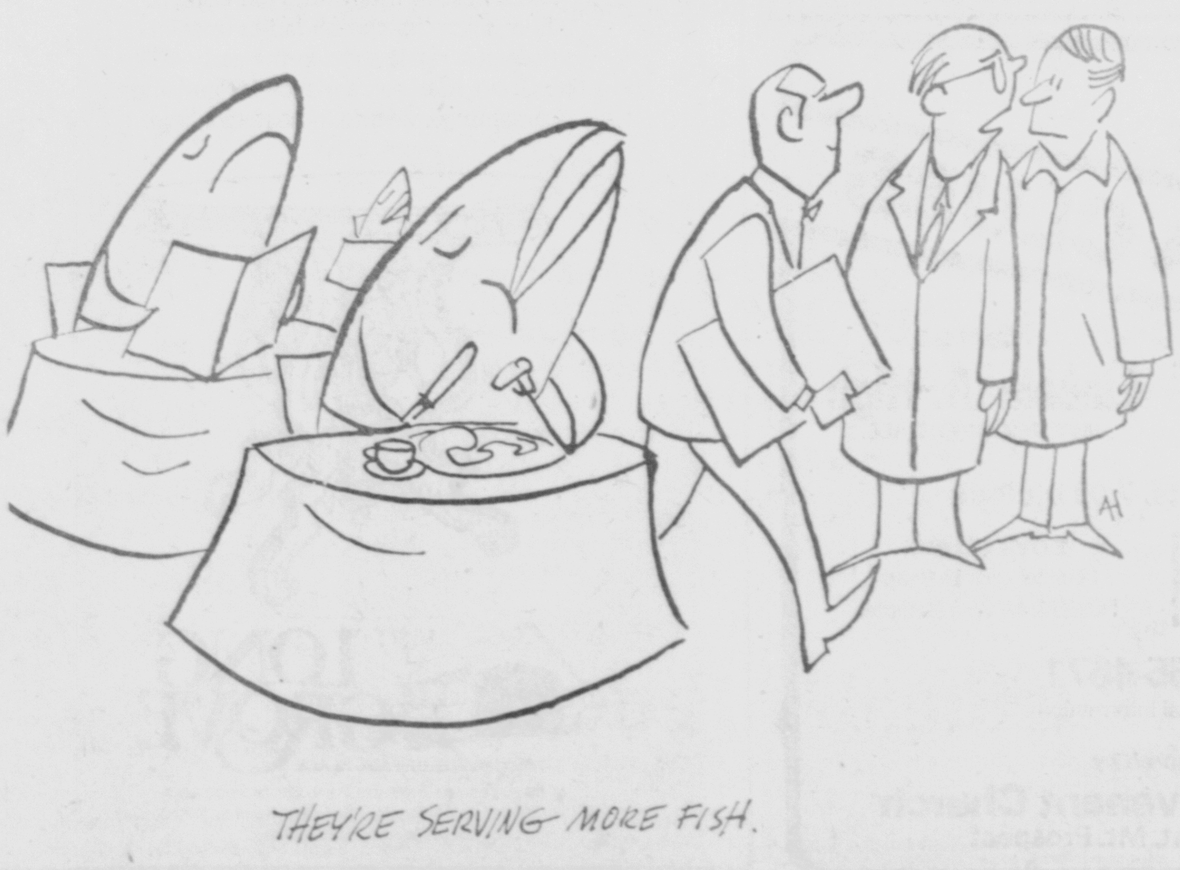

Yet soup and salad are still mainstays of a meal, according to Brenzinger, and by coincidence the shrimp cocktail, too.

"Fish is an excellent source of protein," said Dorothy Landgraf, area extension home economist specializing in food. "But then pork is high in vitamin B. A varied diet is still the best kind."

Landgraf said she is not aware if people are eating more fish, but if they are, that's fine.

She is concerned with more serious diet fads. "The consumption of eggs, milk and potatoes is down."

And while Landgraf considers fish as a nutritious alternative to meat, soft drinks in place of milk is entirely unsound.

"Voyage of the Damned" zeroes in on a tragic, historical interval on the eve of World War II, when the Nazis loaded the luxury liner St. Louis with 937 German Jews, and in what appeared to be a good-will act, allowed them to seek asylum across the ocean in Cuba.

Only the ship was never intended to land. Corrupt government officials refused to let the passengers disembark. Likewise, the U.S. turned its back when the passengers sought outside aid.

It was a ploy by Germany to end international criticism. If no other country was willing to welcome the Jews, how could the Nazis be condemned?

AT THE LAST minute, England, France, Belgium and Holland accepted the passengers though many of them died or barely survived concentration camps when the war broke out and they fell prisoners to advancing Nazi troops.

Producer Robert Fryer went all out in setting the period and mood of dashed hopes for this film that takes place in 1939. He then pumps the picture with impressive big-name stars who turn in good cameo performances, but only as offshoots to the theme of the movie itself.

There is too much focus on the individual problems and weaknesses of the characters, and not enough on the matter-at-hand. Director Stuart Rosenberg tries to weave together too many subplots into the main story line — probably because there were too many superstars to leave out. But the outcome is syrupy soap opera — and a very long one at that.

The film is more than two and a half hours, and any time a movie runs over 120 minutes, it had better have more to offer than personal woes.

THERE ARE the sexual, marital difficulties between Faye Dunaway and her doctor husband, Oskar Werner; Malcolm McDowell's love-suicide with Jewish passenger Lynne Frederic, a Romeo and Juliet scene of sorts; and Maria Schell and Nehemiah Persoff's terrible realization that their daughter, Katherine Ross, is a high-class hooker in Cuba.

We are bombarded by so many little melodramas that it's hard to connect on any one, though Lee Grant is extremely good as a wife and mother who barely remains sane herself after seeing her family destroyed by prejudice. And Victor Spinetti, who plays a refugee pediatrician trying to slice through red tape to free his two young daughters from the sealed-off ship, provides another of the more substantial subplots.

Best of all is the performance by Max Von Sydow, the ship's captain, who as a conscientious man, is caught between the desperate needs of his passengers and fears of repercussions from his government. He is extremely strong and noble, reliable under pressure, but a dupe in a very treacherous game.

"Voyage of the Damned" is still a worthwhile picture despite its length and superficial role playing. It's rated (PG).

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Fun With Dick and Jane" — Comedy spoof about an aerospace industry executive and his wife who find their affluent American Dream evaporate when he is suddenly unemployed. Crime becomes their only available ploy to avoid welfare and continue in their accustomed lifestyle. Stars George Segal and Jane Fonda. (PG).

"Cassandra Crossing" — An outbreak of a man-made plague is discovered on a highjacked European passenger train, necessitating the sealing of the train and rerouting it across a rickety, dangerous bridge, in order to keep the germ from spreading. Stars Sophia Loren, Richard Harris, Martin Sheen and Ava Gardner, Burt Lancaster and O. J. Simpson. (R).

"Enforcer" — Cnint Eastwood is back as Harry Calahan, the rogue who takes the law into his own violent hands. Pretty bloody. (R).

"Freaky Friday" — A teenage girl whose fondest wish is to change places with her mother, unexpectedly finds her wish granted in this latest Walt Disney release. Stars Jodie Foster, Barbara Harris, Patsy Kelly, Kaye Ballard and Ruth Buzzi. (G).

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG).

"Silver Streak" — A comedy adventure set principally on a luxury train en route from Los Angeles to Chicago. Hostages are held aboard the train by racketeers engaged in an international art hoax. Stars Gene Wilder, Jill Clayburgh, Richard Pryor, Patrick McGoohan and Scatman Crothers. (PG).

"Network" — The quartet of award-caliber performances by Peter Finch, Faye Dunaway, Robert Duvall and William Holden is a whopping show in itself in this biting look at a television network, the cut throat tactics rampant behind-the-scenes and the questionable message delivered by the medium to its viewers. (R).

French restaurant offers lavish food and prices

Bill o' fare

If you have to ask how much it is going to cost, you can't afford a visit to Le Francais, 269 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

Half the pleasure of visiting the small French restaurant is being able to totally indulge yourself in the gastronomic delights wheeled to you on carts and presented on silver trays. If you need to keep an eye on the price list, it isn't worth it.

A good rule of thumb is to allow $30 per person for food, not including cocktails or wine. If you are willing to pay the price, it will be a meal you will never forget.

THE FOOD IS magnificent. Specials of the day are wheeled to the table and then the waiter begins the litany. There are cold stuffed lobsters glistening in aspic. Pates come in several varieties including pheasant, duck, chicken and wild rabbis. A cold salmon en croute comes stuffed with lobster mousse and covered with aspic, and a delicate smoked salmon is also stuffed with mousse.

Featuring:
Le Francais

And those are just the cold appetizers. The hot appetizers are shown uncooked, many in decorated pastry shells.

That is enough to make your head spin, but the litany continues. The waiter next displays the special entrees of the evening, which might include trout prepared in the minceur style, a whole salmon baked in a pastry shell or roast veal stuffed with a mousse and served with two sauces.

THE RECITATION lasts for about 10 minutes at each table, and then the waiter produces a menu that outlines another 50 dishes which you haven't seen yet.

It's intimidating, and it would be nicer if the waiters were more sympathetic to the diners' dilemma of trying to figure out what to order when they can't even remember what they just saw.

But it is hard to go wrong. The fish is fresh and subtly flavored, the beef melts in your mouth and the shellfish lovingly prepared.

Desserts are presented in a similar manner. A cart full of lavishly decorated goodies is wheeled to the table. Offerings included a strawberry napoleon, raspberry tart, chocolate Grand Marnier souffle and the traditional chocolate mousse.

THE BIGGEST problem with Le Francais is that you expect it to be perfect. Little mistakes are irritating, like the unripe avocado in the salad and the overseasoned veal.

Most irritating, however, was the inconsistency of service. When we dined, the waiters provided lots of personal attention, but often at the same time, behaved as if you were asking too much of their time. Although we may have dawdled a bit long over our meal, the management was clumsy in asking us to leave, particularly since we had been relocated at the start of our meal because of a seating mix-up.

The restaurant used to serve lunch, which allowed diners to sample Le Francais' offerings at a lower price. Now, however, only dinners are served in two seatings. Reservations are a must, and Saturdays are booked far in advance.

Art Institute exhibits work by 200 Chicago area artists

Two hundred artists were chosen from more than 1,600 entrants to participate in the 67th exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity now in the east wing of the Art Institute of Chicago through March 27.

Included in the show is an acrylic, "Fecundity," by Tom Phillips of Palatine.

Jurors for the annal show include Jane Livingston, Curator of Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.; Kynaston McShine, curator of painting and sculpture, Museum of Modern Art in New York, and Irving Petlin, artist from New York.

THIS YEAR for the first time the radius of the exhibition that includes a wide range of media and styles was expanded from the previous limit of 100 miles to 130 miles.

"The larger radius includes important art-producing centers that previously had been ineligible, thus increasing the number of artists who could enter the exhibition and contribute to the quality of the venture," said A. James Speyer, who organized the exhibit.

Twenty-five of the artists were awarded prizes totaling $15,000.

Footlighters to present 'Diary'

"The Diary of Anne Frank" will be presented March 11 through 13 at Footlighters Theatre, Des Plaines.

Appearing in the true story of the Dutch-Jewish family's experiences in Nazi-occupied Holland are Kevin Marquette as Mr. Frank; Joni Gages as Mrs. Frank; Diane Cotton as Anne; and Lori Nicolai as Anne's sister Margot.

John Anderson and Debbie Kozak will play Mr. and Mrs. Van Daan and Jerry Kleiner will play their son Peter. Other cast members include Kevin Rechner as Mr. Dussel, Lisa Marquette as Miep and Steve Momeyer as Mr. Kraler.

Ed Johnson is assistant director for "Diary," which will be presented at 8 every night and at 2 on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Admission is $1.

Sing-out Palatine to hold breakfast

Sing-out Palatine is sponsoring a fund-raising pancake breakfast Sunday, March 6, at St. Thomas of Villanova School Hall from 8 a.m. to noon. Tragedy blurred in Guild's 'Miss Reardon' production

Review

by SCOTT FOSDICK

We expect to find guns and lewd language when we go to the theater these days; it lets us know we're seeing earthy, human pathos, the playwright's lusty friend.

But we don't expect to find guns and lewd language in the hands and mouths of middle-aged school teachers. That's where the tragic humor erupts in Hoffman Estates Guild Players' current production of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," a comedy/drama about the fears and prejudices of three sisters, two of whom are approaching spinsterhood.

Spinster is such an ugly word. It fairly droops with sour old prune-faced images of useless women biding their time until death in musty, forgotten closets. An unmarried man is simply a bachelor. But an unmarried woman is — horrors — a spinster.

IT IS THE realization that they are plunging pell-mell into spinsterhood that drives Catherine Reardon to drink, Anna Reardon to lechery and both to the use of unspinsterlike language.

This last is heaped delightfully on their married sister Ceil, who gets blamed for all their problems. Ceil, who is solidly portrayed by Sonja Leraas, starts out as the gruesome villainess, the perfect clutching bitch. But by the third act, as her motives unfold, she has risen to normal human status and we see another villain looming behind the muck of sibling hatred.

The real villain is the sisters' mother, who holds the women in her suffocating grip even though she's been dead several years. It is mother who taught the three sisters to fear the base intentions of men, and in the process, to fear life itself.

THE TRAGEDY OF Paul Zindel's play comes in bits and pieces at the end, when we catch glimpses of the happy, hope-filled lives the sisters once led as young girls.

This tragic vision of dashed hopes is blurred in the Guild Players' current production. It's blurred for an easily corrected reason: Cheryl Cap is engagingly intense throughout the play as loony Anna Reardon, but she is perhaps too venomous in her attacks on Ceil.

Cap's steely-eyed cruelty to Ceil in the first act makes her later entreaties to remember the good old days look like more pithy sarcasm. This may seem like a trivial point, but for the play to work, the audience must clearly see the sadness of love gone sour.

THOUGH NOT A smashing success, the play is nonetheless absorbing. It is highlighted by the all too brief appearance of young Mike Kelly as the sassy delivery boy. Director Victor Simone would improve the play greatly if he could figure out a way to keep this fearles new actor on stage throughout the performance.

"And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" will be staged again tonight and Saturday. (See Billboard.)

Actor Hans Conried

In business to be funny

by GENIE CAMPBELL

On stage Hans Conried is a funny man. It's the parts he plays.

And the more eccentric the role — like the outlandish Victor Velasco in "Barefoot in the Park" continuing through Saturday at Arlington Park Theatre — the more laughs he receives.

But back at his hotel room in between performances Conried pulls no punches. It's like finding out Don Knotts is a very quiet-spoken man. You just don't expect it.

And though it's refreshing to find one actor who doesn't glorify his profession, still Conried almost belittles it. But then he ought to know. He's been at it more than 40 years.

"IT'S JUST A business, my business," said Conried, who got his start in radio and carried over into guest television appearances and spot motion picture roles, but mostly live theater. Since 1954, he's been on the road almost 10 mnths out of every 12.

"It's necessary for my craft. If I was a whaler, I'd be out on a voyage three years. I do what the market requires."

For Conried, that means the stage and even more specific — comedy roles. Regional threater thrives on a good laugh.

And while the production of "Barefoot" has received lukewarm reviews, Conried has been singled out for accolades.

"Any business has its limitations and frustrations. And they're very keen in this business. But I've flattered myself that the audience has been able to laugh and enjoy it along with me."

"I HAVE NO regrets," continued the actor, reflecting on his career. I'm very grateful that I've been able to perform."

With such big names as Red Skeleton and Milton Berle making the jump from radio to television with a big splash, the transition is regarded often smoother than it actually was. There were survivors. Conried is one. And there were thousands of victims.

"The industry died in one year," said Conried, who clearly recalls the last season of radio — 1953.

"Death was in the air. The miracle medium first cast its light in the living room," continued Conried referring to television.

"There was a great deal of scambling, particularly in New York and Chicago." Hollywood still had motion pictures to hang onto.

CONRIED WAS lucky. He came to New York where he landed a role in "Can Can," a beginning which established him as a stage actor.

Does he think radio will ever come back?

"Will they bring back the old Stanley Steamer? Radio is an outmoded craft of another time. why bring it back?" said Conried emphatically though he added there was big nostalgic interest in radio, not difficult to understand.

"The literary value of radio theater was very rich."

If he had to do it all over again, Conried isn't sure his life would have turned out any differently.

"It's hard to know. I can't conceive of anything different," said Conried, who resides in California with his wife of 35 years and three children aged 20 to 25.

AN OLDER DAUGHTER is following in the footsteps of her father. She's currently appearing at a dinner/theater in New Orleans.

The life of an actor is not all glitter. Sometimes it's downright dull. Conried had been out to Woodfield for a Big Mac and he expected to watch a little television when he wasn't on stage — preferably "the charming old movies they don't make anymore."

But he didn't expect to do anything in Chicago "because I'm not in Chicago," he said. He certainly doesn't pull any punches.

The doctor says

Low blood sugar could mislead

I have low blood sugar. My doctor tells me not to eat anything with sugar in it — including fresh fruit. Also to watch my starch intake.

I would think eating sweets would bring the blood sugar level up. Would you please explain this?

In general I do not think the diagnosis of low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) is justified unless one can demonstrate the blood glucose level is actually low at the time symptoms of hypoglycemia occur. Symptoms by themselves can be anything including anxiety and many normal people have low blood glucose levels with no symptoms — or disorder — at all.

If you really have hypoglycemia it is important to find out why. Hypoglycemia is a finding, not a diagnosis. It can be caused by a tumor of the islets of Langerhans in the pancreas or many other diseases.

In some people it seems to be triggered by a high level of glucose in the intestine, just outside the stomach where most of the absorption of food takes place. Drinking sweets that empty immediately into the small intestine is one way to induce this response in over-reactive people. And concentrated sweets — or starches which are broken down into glucose—may do this. Note here that starch is just a combination of glucose molecules and when they are broken down they are really glucose sugar.

Also note that whether the food is rapidly emptied by the stomach or not is important. Here is where many people slip up on food reommendations. A number of vegetables and bulky fruits — raw, unsweetened — can be eaten because they are emptied slowly, a little at a time, into the intestine and never cause a high concentration of sugars in the intestine or the rebound low blood sugar effect. Bulky foods such as leafy vegetables and raw apples in moderation are in this group. Obviously neither fats nor proteins will increase the concentration of glucose in the small intestine and will not trigger an overproduction of insulin or a faulty time release of insulin — hence no hypoglycemia attacks. That is why your doctor has advised you to avoid sweets and starches. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar; Hypoglycemia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. write to me in care of Paddock Publications P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I have a qudstion to ask you. It is about my granddaughter. She is 4 months old and the soft spot on top of her head is closed already. What does that mean, brain damage or not?

She seems all right in every way. She smiles and looks at everyone when we talk to her. She is strong, too, and is able to roll over.

The soft spots of baby's skull are called fontanels. there are two, one at the front part of the skull and one at the back near the top. The back one normally closes by four months. I suspect that is what you are feeling. The front one usually closes between nine and 18 months.

There are lots of better ways to tell if a baby is developing normally. I am sure the baby's doctor has checked these. These relate to the baby's response to contact, such as the smile you mention.

Lead solder unsuitable for fixing tea kettle

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to know whether plumber's solder is considered safe and suitable for resoldering the spout onto a coffee tea kettle — or whether a different, lead-free type is called for. If so, what type of material is indicated? — David A. Beatty

Two experts in this field say lead solder is not a good idea for the purpose you want because it could melt. They say it is all right to use lead solder on a decorative piece, but not on anything like a tea kettle. Both agreed it is wiser to use a silver solder which is an alloy and very much harder. Personally, I think this job would best be done by an experienced silversmith.

Dear Dorothy: We had some great baked mashed potatoes with crumbs on top at a church supper. Do you have such a recipe?—Nita Humphrey

I don't know if it's exactly the same recipe, but I have one that's delicious and simple to prepare — especially when you don't want to rush with mashed potatoes at the last minute. Season mashed potatoes with margarine, sour cream, salt and pepper and a dash of onion salt and then sprinkle on a layer of fine toasted bread crumbs. Refrigerate until ready to use. Dot with margarine when it's put in the oven to warm.

Dear Dorothy: Occasionally when I open a can of something, there will be a few metal fragments in the food. Is this dangerous?—R.G.Y.

It could be quite risky. A sharp, clean opener shouldn't be doing this, and it seems clear your can opener needs adjustment.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a simple tip on how to clean combs. Pour a tablespoon of household ammonia along with water in the bathroom sink. In almost no time, the combs will be like new and all that's needed is a quick rinse — Sue Wentworth

'Little Vic' a family treasure trove

Television is taking a turn for the better with shows like the ABC-TV family novel, "Little Vic," to be aired five consecutive weekends beginning Sunday.

It is the sensitive adaptation of Doris Gates' book of the same title — the story of a young boy's passion for a thoroughbred race horse and how, in three years, he matures and becomes an accomplished jockey, riding the horse to victory in the Santa Anita Derby.

Quite simply, it is the lovely story of a boy, his horse and a dream in which family members of all ages will derive some benefit and pleasure.

BUT, IT IS ALSO the real-life tale of a boy growing up, learning to cope with life's disappointments and hurdling obstacles to realize his goals.

It will be shown at 5 p.m. Sundays when families usually are together. Parents who care about sharing meaningful television experiences with their children should take the time to watch "Little Vic" with their youngsters. The first episode opens with Gillie Walker, an orphaned, Harlem-born teenager, happening into a Kentucky thoroughbred ranch where he saves the life of a new-born colt.

Part of the opening scenes deal with the actual filmed birth of a horse, a first for television and probably for most of the viewers.

THE HORSE, WHO Gillie names Little Vic, becomes his best friend. The two share the same characteristics of being scrawny for their age and underestimated by those around them.

But, the boy and horse also share a dream — of becoming racing champions — and are quickly caught up in the aristocratic, cold business world of thoroughbred racing.

Gillie is portrayed by 15-year-old Joey Green, a native Californian who has starred in a variety of films and television series since the age of 7 that have included "The Brady Bunch," "The Magician" and "Phyllis."

The serious, thoughtful and determined character of this young actor is easily detected in the counterpart he plays in "Little Vic." It is through Gillie's eyes that the viewer becomes fully aware of the wonder of new life, the deep disappointment and emptiness of being separated from something you love, and the complete joy of accomplishing what others labeled an impossible dream.

BUT, THE REAL creative hand behind this masterpiece of drama for children is the show's producer, Daniel Wilson.

Such pioneer children's programs like "Discovery," the special "With These Hands" and the ABC after school specials that premiered in 1974 were designs of the native Chicagoan.

He has attempted to sell the dramatic adaptation of "Little Vic" to the networks for the past five years, Wilson said on a recent visit to Chicago, "and now is the perfect time for it to air."

He is hopeful that the five-part drama draws enough ratings in the 5 p.m. Sunday time slot on Channel 2 that he will be given the green light to continue "Little Vic" as a regular series, possibly airing it during a prime time 7:30 p.m. time slot on Sundays where he is certain the family novel could "easily" endure other network competition.

"The networks, advertisers, parents and their children are all ready for this kind of programming during prime time when not only adults but children watch television," he said.

"THE NETWORK has invested more than a half million dollars in the project and has not treated it like any other. It's because it is an important step in future programming and in providing the quality programs that children and their parents deserve," Wilson said.

The family novel can lend itself to a variety of story lines once the major episodes of "Little Vic" have been aired, ending March 27 with a one hour segment. Gillie and Little Vic can go on to race in the Kentucky Derby or the boy and horse can go off into a different story line, he said.

"The main thing here is that we're treating children like adults. We're passing on to them realistic drama that will teach them something about themselves and about life. They will enjoy it and they will learn from it, and hopefully, they will talk to their parents about what they've seen after it's all over," Wilson said.

"LITTLE VIC"

Although Wilson recently was chosen to produce future Barbara Walters specials, including a taped interview next month with actress Elizabeth Taylor and her husband John Warner, he looks forward to bringing children's programming to a new plateau with series like "Little Vic" and reviving family programming.

• The marvelous diversity of the violin and the brilliance of the world's top violinists make for superb entertainment on one of Channel 11's finest segments of "Soundstage" Sunday. Master classicist Itzhak Perlman, jazz-rock virtuoso Jean-Luc Ponty and country-rock musician Doug Kershaw perform separately and then combine for an exciting ensemble written and arranged especially for the "Soundstage" performance which airs at 11:30 p.m.

Perlman's violin is soothing and mellow, Ponty's style is electric and contemporary while Kershaw's is upbeat and folksy. It is the first time these diverse artists have performed together, and it is a real treat.

• Bogie's back tonight on WGN-TV, Channel 9, beginning at 7 p.m. with an hour-long look at the legendary star followed by the film classic "Casablanca."

• Tonight is really movie night. Get out the popcorn and enjoy! "S.S.T. — Death Flight" at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 is a fantasy catastrophe that has an impressive star-studded cast. "Monty Python and the Holy Grail" is at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2 and is a zany twist to the Arthurian legends of old.

• Channel 11 offers viewers the first of a six-part monthly public affairs program at 9 p.m. entitled "In Search of the Real America" and Christopher Marlowe's drama "Edward II" at 10:30 p.m. starring Ian McKellen.

• Saturday: If you're a Chicago Bears fan then you'll enjoy "George Halas — An American Legend," a one-hour documentary at 6 p.m. on Channel 7.

• "Weather Machine" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11 will examine man's possible misuse of the atmosphere and you'll laugh a bundle with "Mary Tyler Moor at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 when Mary's male colleagues dream about being her husband.

• Movies that will appeal to the imagination Saturday include "Land that Time Forgot" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 and "Rosemary's Baby" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

• Barbara Eden hosts a special at 6 p.m. on WGN-TV Channel 9 filmed at the Chicago Automobile show. Viewers can get a glimpse at the latest on four wheels right from their living room chairs.

• If you dare, Sunday night movies dealing with sensitive topics include "In the Glitter Palace" — a lesbian murder drama — at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 and "Survive — cannibalism by human plane crash survivors at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

You pay for what you waste.

Without enough attic insulation you're paying to heat the birds.

No matter what kind of energy you use to heat your house, the most effective defense against rising energy costs is proper insulation. The majority of single-family homes need additional insulation. Generally, insulation in the attic floor will help the most. Upgrading your insulation will not only save substantially on your heating bill, but will also reduce your summer-cooling energy use.

How much insulation do you need?
Insulation is measured in R-numbers not inches. "R" stands for resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain and is more accurate in figuring insulation performance. The higher the R-number, the more effective the insulation barrier. For instance, installing R-19 in an uninsulated attic can cut heat loss through your ceiling by more than 75%.

In addition to insulation, anything else you can do to seal the outside out and the inside in will pay off in added comfort and lower energy costs. Adding storm windows and doors, installing weather stripping, caulking around windows, insulating walls, floors and heating ducts—all will help conserve energy, increase comfort and save money.

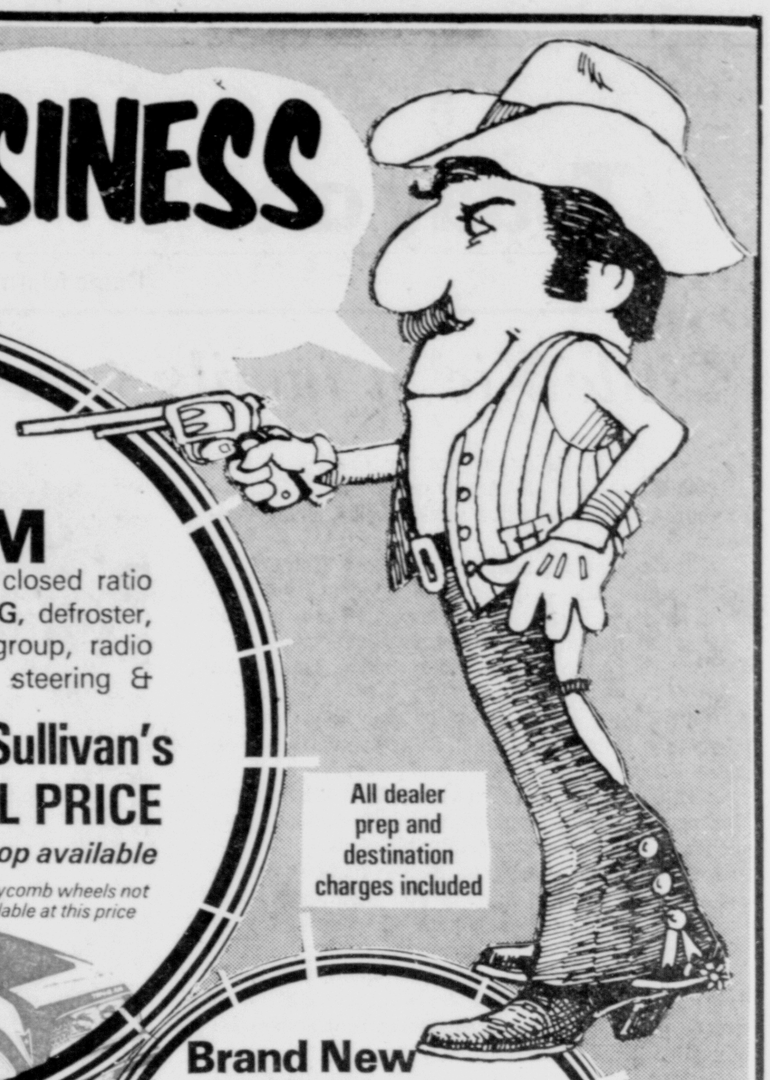

You'll get dividends from your investment.
Investing in energy conservation home improvements like insulation gives you an immediate payoff in the form of lower energy bills. Over the life of the house, these improvements will pay for themselves and continue to eliminate energy waste. And you'll have added substantially to the resale value of your home.

Energy conservation, besides being good for the country, is good for you too. You pay for the energy you use...you pay for what you waste.

So make sure you use it wisely.

Switching to self-service

Purchasing gas for several cents less a gallon at self-service pumps may be an attractive proposition in these times of high prices. But the motorist runs a serious risk of suffering car problems.

It used to be common practice to ask attendants to check oil, fluid levels in cooling systems, batteries and tire pressure. The attendant often was requested to check brake, power steering and transmission fluid levels, windshield washer solvent and air cleaner condition.

With no attendant to perform these tasks, the car owner should know how it's done and check these conditions at least weekly.

BEFORE ATTEMPTING these checks, consult your owner's manual. Find out where check points are located on your particular vehicle. Also determine information like proper tire pressure.

These tips can help you perform the vital checks.

While under the hood you may also want to check the coolant level in your radiator and the windshield washer fluid in the washer reservoir.

Visually check the cooling system hoses and spark plug wiring for obvious signs of deterioration.

A pressure gauge is a wise investment to keep tires in good condition. Easy to use, the gauge will give you the tire pressure reading in pounds per square inch. Say the recommended tire pressure is 28 p.s.i. A reading below that figure means tires are underinflated and thus are wasting fuel, wearing improperly and risking blowout. A reading above the norm means tires are overinflated, which can be equally damaging. Find the proper reading by coupling the top part of the gauge with the air filler valve on the tire. Air escaping from the tire will actuate the scale on the gauge. This tire registered 35 pounds, indicating overinflation. Perform the check in the morning, before tires have traveled.

Check the battery water level at least weekly unless your car's battery doesn't require water. Most batteries have caps covering each cell. Caps are easily removable for inspection. There should be sufficient water in each cell to fill the cell at the indicated point near the top. Also check the cables for their condition and the terminals for corrosion.

Check the oil level — as easy as it is important. Locate the oil filler stick. Extract the stick from the engine and wip it off with a rag. Reinsert the stick as far as it will go and extract it again. Most sticks are calibrated with marks stating "full" or "add oil." The oil should leave a residue on the stick at the "full" mark. If it is at "add oil" or below, then bring the supply to the proper level. When checking oil, make sure your car is on a level surface. Transmission and power steering fluids are similarly checked. Locate their check points from your car owner's manual.

The air filter should be clean to carry on its function. The filter is located in a cake-pan-like housing just above the carburetor. It is easily accessible by unscrewing the butterfly nut securing the cleaner cover. To find out if the cleaner is unclogged, examine through a bright source of light, such as a bulb. If it appears extremely dirt-saturated, clean or replace air filter.

Brake fluid supplies must be adequate to assure safe stopping. If a spongy pedal or other condition make you suspect the adequacy of the supply, you can check the level by examining the reservoir usually located near the engine's rear. Use a screwdriver to pry the compartment open. Learning to pump gasoline is becoming a common need for the average motorist. About one-third of all fuel is being sold at self-service stations these days.

Guilty of neglect?

Are you guilty of ignorning car body damage? Repairs of dents and scrapes are well worth the investment, according to the Car Care Council. Properly maintained and cared-for cars are worth twenty to fifty per cent more at re-sale time than cars which have been neglected. The Council suggests that you take the time and effort to maintain your car.

Humans fail, not machines

Driver errors are the major cause of highway accidents, according to studies of automobile accidents completed for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

One study found that human errors were solely responsible for 57 per cent of crashes analyzed. In an additional 30 per cent blame was placed on driver mistakes compounded by weather conditions. Thus, errors by motor vehicle operators contribute to 87 per cent of accidents. Vehicle failures accounted for about five per cent.

Alcohol was found to be a significant causative factor. Drivers who were drunk, or who had been drinking, comprised only 14 per cent of the motorists studied but were cited as being to blame for 91 per cent of the crashes in which they were involved.

Drive toward fuel-saving measures

Is it possible to double the mileage obtained from a gallon of gasoline? Such expectations may seem out of reach for most motorists, but evidence exists that such fuel savings are possible.

A car owner in Dallas, Tex., brought his vehicle in for an emissions and fuel-economy test. When his undermaintained car was examined in "as is" condition, gasoline usage was measured. After the car was completely tuned up, it was retested for fuel economy. A 55 per cent improvement in fuel economy was realized.

While this savings is hardly typical, it is not inconceivable. Add to engine condition other maintenance items and the manner in which the car is driven, and the potential to save fuel is enormous.

According to the experts, many factors can cost you at the gasoline pump. Shell Oil Co. states that underinflated tires can lose a mile a gallon in fuel economy. A malfunctioning choke can cut mileage by 30 per cent as well as lead to engine damage. A clogged air filter can penalize a motorist 10 per cent in fuel consumption, Shell states.

In addition to ignition system deterioration (plugs, points, wiring, etc.), other mechanical factors affect fuel consumption adversely. These include misaligned wheels, maladjusted automatic transmission, brake systems that "drag," improperly operating cooling system (including thermostat), stuck heat riser valves, malfunctioning fuel pump and worn piston rings.

Engines operating at idle get no miles per gallon. So avoid needless idling. Warming up an engine on a cold morning is a waste of time and gas. As soon as the engine is running smoothly, proceed at a moderate speed. Also, when waiting for long periods of time, shut off the engine.

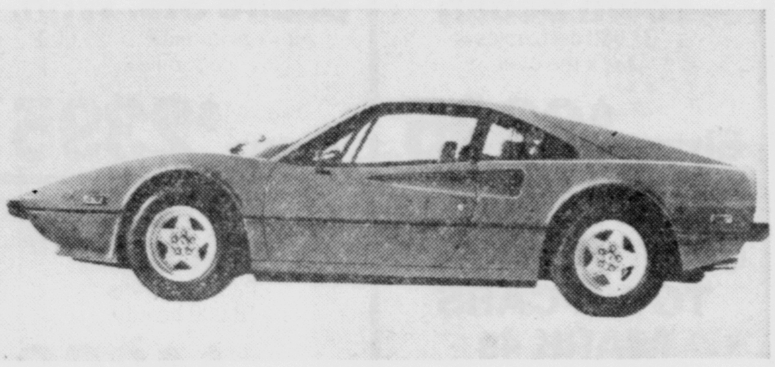

If your engine should flood, do not pump the accelerator. Instead, crank the engine steadily until the car starts.

In manual transmission cars, get to high gear as soon as possible. First gear uses about 30 per cent more fuel than second, and second uses 15 per cent more fuel than third.

Avoid jack-rabbit starts. A driver who tromps on the gas pedal uses four times as much fuel as the feather-footed motorist.

Other fuel-wise maneuvers include avoiding sudden stops and starts necessitated by following other vehicles too closely; get out of the lane-hopping habit and keep good control of the car when cornering and climbing hills.

And perhaps the most effective gasoline-saving maneuver of all. Drive at sensible speeds. Traveling at 80 m.p.h. is not only against the law. A car at 80 m.p.h. consumes 25 per cent more gas than one going only 50 m.p.h. Shell claims most efficient mileage is achieved at about 28 miles per hour.

THE NEW FERRARI 308 GTB, selling for $30,000, features a fiber glass body. Standard equipment includes air conditioning, tinted windows.

Italian model sports radical design change

A new Ferrari auto featuring a fiber glass body, was introduced Jan. 29 in New York.

Selling for $30,000, the Ferrari 308 GTB model will be sold in limited numbers in the U.S. Reports from Modern Classic Motors and Chinetti-Garthwaite Imports, Inc., importers on the west and east coasts, respectively, indicate that the auto is a radical design change. Ferrari has never used fiber glass before in production cars.

The new two-seater model retains the chassis and engine design used in the four-seat, steel-bodied 308 GT4.

Interior features include adjustable bucket seats in leather or leather and velour combinations. Standard equipment includes air conditioning, tinted windows and a heated rear window. The new car will be sold through the Ferrari network of dealers.

Recreational vehicle trailers

Hitch up to comfort, reliability

THE 1977 INTERNATIONAL Traveler station wagon is the perfect hitch to this Taurus trailer. The 188-inch wheelbase hatchback's four-wheel drive capability affords an extra measure of safety under certain road conditions by providing better traction. Its "moment of steer" is shorter than any passenger car with Class III trailer towing ability.

Pulling a recreational vehicle trailer with a four-wheel-drive vehicle doesn't mean sacrificing comfort and overall towing capability. Today, many 4x4 vehicles provide comfortable seating for a driver and four or five passengers as well as air conditioning, a smooth ride, cruise control, tilt steering wheel, AM/FM stereo and more.

In many cases, a 4x4 vehicle is actually superior to a passenger car for towing, especially for travel trailers up to 25 feet and 5,000 pounds. The more evenly balanced a tow vehicle and trailer, the better the stability.

Another advantage is maneuverability. A shorter "moment of steer" makes for greater ease of handling.

FINALLY, four-wheel-drive affords an extra measure of safety for certain road situations — better traction for driving on rain-slicked pavement is one example.

Any vehicle to be used for trailer towing should be specified with a heavy duty alternator, heavy duty battery, Class III (up to 5,000 pounds) equalizer hitch platform, six-way trailer wiring and a heavy-duty flasher.

International Harvester offers the following recommendations for anyone considering the purchase of a travel trailer:

• Handling, steering, braking, accelerating and riding of your vehicle are altered when towing. Before heading out, practice operating your tow vehicle/trailer combination near home.

• STOPPING DISTANCES are increased with a trailer. Begin to brake well in advance.

• Use the engine to provide braking assistance by shifting to a lower gear when descending grades.

• More room is needed for your combination to pass other vehicles safely.

• Since you are driving a slower, more cumbersome vehicle, be sure to be particularly courteous in your driving.

• Don't try to maintain high road speeds; road grade, rolling resistance and air turbulence all put increased horsepower requirements on your vehicle.

• ON HOT SUMMER days, climbing grades may increase water temperatur levels. Minimize overheating by downshifting to a lower gear.

• The trailer should be carefully loaded. If possible, place ten per cent of the total trailer weight on the trailer hitch. Ideally, the load should be balanced left to right.

• The use of a load equalizing hitch transfers trailer tongue weight (load) from the rear wheels of the towing vehicle to the front wheels of the towing vehicle and the trailer axle. An equalizer hitch should be used for trailers 2,000-5,000 lbs.

• Check trailer brakes and lights for good working order and proper connection before starting out on the road.

• AVOID "jackrabbit" starts and "crash" stops. Always start slowly and in low gear.

• Backing a trailer properly takes practice. A simple method of backing into the spot you want is to turn the wheel in the direction opposite to the way you want the rear of the trailer to turn.

• A trailer 2,000 pounds and up must have its own brake system. Since the trailer often weighs as much as the towing vehicle, power brakes are mandatory.

Don't make waves

Don't make waves on the highway or your car may hydroplane out of control. A car moving too fast in rainy weather can build up a wave of water betweeen the tires and the pavement.

Three ways we can save you money on auto insurance good students

Good students seem to do a lot of things differently. One of them is drive better, or maybe they just spend more time studying and less time on the road . . . but good students are involved in fewer accidents. So, at American Family they pay less for their auto insurance.

2 car families
Two cars. The same family. If both cars are insured by the same company, the paperwork and service should be a lot easier and more efficient . . . so your insurance should cost less. At least, that's the way we operate! We give two car families a discount on their auto insurance.

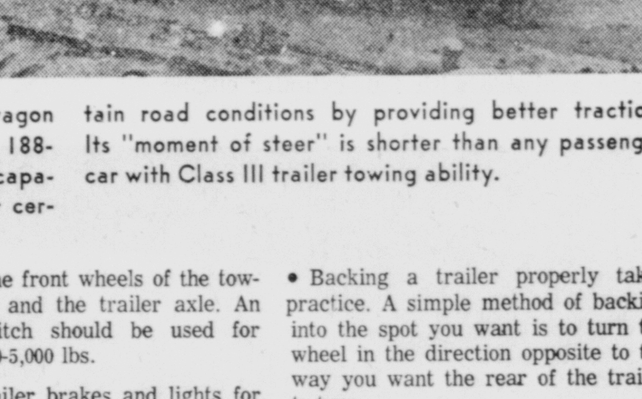

low mileage
If you're a low mileage driver, it stands to reason that you should pay less for your insurance. And you will . . . if you go with American Family. We save low mileage drivers money on auto insurance.

Of course, these are only three ways we can save you money on your auto insurance. There are more. Why not call us today and see how much money we can save you.

CAR CORNER

with George Orth & Roger Nick

Engines often get blamed for not starting up fast enough, although the fault may be the driver's. Older-model cars and many imports and sports cars have manually controlled chokes. But most current American cars have automatic chokes and require strict starting procedures which many drivers ignore. Check your owner's manual. Most owner's manuals outline different starting procedures for different conditions, such as when the engine is hot, or when it is cold. You can save yourself annoyance by always starting the car exactly as your owner's manual recommends.

Prepare for spring, Divitas

It is just as vital to prepare a vehicle for spring and summer driving as it is for winter. According to Joe Divitas, owner of Divitas Firestone at 1800 Rand Rd. in Palatine, the unseasonably cold weather this winter has taken its toll on automobiles.

While ice and snow were especially hard on automatic transmissions, necessitating change of oil and filter, the large holes in the pavement give shock absorbers and alignments more than their share of abuse, Divitas says. In fact, he cites front-end parts and shocks as the most common break-downs this season.

An overall safety check is a highly recommended form of preventive maintenance for most working parts of a car, including wipers, breaks, tires, springs and muffler and exhaust systems. This will determine what damage, if any, a car has sustained and exactly which parts need replacing.

The electronic front-end alignment costs about $13 at Divitas' service center. The use of a computerized balance assures the accuracy of this process.

Diagnostic testing is also suggested before major engine troubles develop. An average tune-up which includes replacement of points, plugs and condenser costs about $35 on a six-cylinder model and $40 on an eight.

How to locate tested mechanic

Motorists in all 50 states can now find mechanics who can fix their cars right by checking a newly published directory of garages that employ competent mechanics. These mechanics have been tested and certified by an independent, non-profit organization, the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence.

The new 1976 edition of "Where to Find Certified Mechanics for Your Car" lists 9,500 automotive repair establishments. The listings are by city and state and include new car dealerships, independent garages, service stations, specialty shops, mass merchandisers and body and paint shops.

To order a directory send a check or money order for $1.95 to NIASE, 1825 K Street, Suite 515, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Not all employers of certified mechanics are listed. To assure that only those who currently employ certified mechanics are listed, employers must make application every year. This is for the consumer's protection.

NIASE has been testing mechanics' competency by means of written tests for almost four years. To date, almost 100,000 mechanics have been certified in one or more areas of competency The Institute offers tests in eight automobile systems such as tune-up, automatic transmission, front end and brakes. The tests are developed and administered by Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J.

Most cars perform below standards

More than 45 million vehicles in the United States show evidence of improper engine maintenance and are therefore wasting fuel, excesively polluting the air and otherwise performing poorly.

Based on tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Co. on more than 4,500 cars in 20 cities, 42 per cent of all vehicles in the U.S. would not meet the newer emissions standards proposed in New Jersey, the only state with emission inspections now in full effect.

While the vehicles that did not attain New Jersey standards were less than half of all cars tested, they emitted more than 63 per cent of the total carbon monoxide and nearly 64 per cent of the total hydrocarbons measured in the idle sampling.

According to David L. Walker, Champion's director of automotive technical services, "On a nationwide basis our preliminary finding is an average 11.7 per cent improvement in fuel economy after tune-up in cars that were overdue for the service. In several cars, fuel savings of more than 50 per cent were recorded after a tune-up."

Mr. Walker added that all cars tested in the U.S. are showing at idle a 40 per cent post tune-up reduction in CO and 53 per cent lowering of HC emissions.

One car in 20 was diagnosed as a "gross emitter" thereby exceeding 10 per cent CO and 2,000 p.p.m. HC. Walker added, "While these cars are only a small per cent of the total sample, each one of them spews about 13 times the pollutants into the air as a well-maintained, late-model car.

People on the go

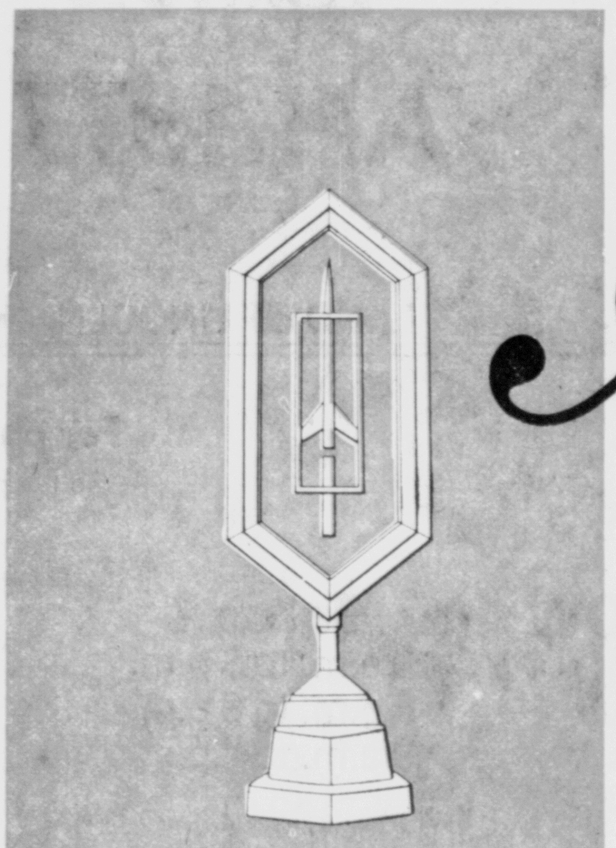

Americans are highway oriented, whether they are traveling to and from work, conducting family business, searching out recreation spots or visiting friends.

Regardless of family income, more than 98 per cent of all person-trips are taken in a motor vehicle over a portion of the nation's road-system. Eight out of every 10 commuting workers travel between home and work in either a passenger car or light truck.

Automobiles are the preferred means of travel for some 85 per cent of all person-trips in highway vehicles. Trucks add another 5.5 per cent, while buses account for the remaining 7.6 per cent.

Listen for scuffing

When shoes scuff you may not be walking properly, and when tires scuff they, too, may not be aligning properly. The alignment of your wheels in relation to the direction of travel should be checked if you're "scuffing," suggests the Tire Industry Safety Council.

Wash off salt to protect finish

Salt, the kind that is used to melt ice on highways, can eat through a car's metal work causing extensive, long-term deterioration. So can the salt contained in sea spray.

When salt from these sources is allowed to remain on a vehicle for extended periods of time, damage occurs more rapidly.

Wintertime in most regions is the most dangerous period for a car's appearance. Cars should be washed more frequently in winter with close attention to hard-to-reach surfaces, such as the underside.

Those little nicks and dents should be tended to at this time since salt has a particularly powerful effect on damaged surfaces.

Wealth of knowledge in pamphlet form

A small treasury of tips on operating automobiles is available at minimal cost from the U.S. Government. Check the nearest Federal office building for copies or write to the Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C.

Among the titles available for purchase are Automotible Batteries: Their Selection and Care (20 pp. 65 cents), Antifreeze/Coolant (8 pp. 35 cents), Gasoline: More Miles Per Gallon (12 pp. 35 cents), Three Rules for Maximum Tire Life (9 pp. 25 cents), Tires: Their Selection and Care (28 pp. 90 cents), and What to Buy in Children's Car Seats (16 pp. 35 cents.).

Descendants of horn squeezers

Ever wonder why we still say we "blow" our auto horns when it's really an electric operation? The Auto Dealers Safety Council reminds us that we did originally blow 'em by squeezing a rubber bulb. We also still speak of "dimming" headlights because in the real early days light intensity was controlled by Rheostats, but "tilt-beam" headlights came in on the 1915 Cadillac.

Air pressure crucial

When a sudden cold spell hits, remember to check your tires' air pressure. For every 10-degree (F) drop in temperature, a tire may lose a pound of pressure. Harder steering, tire wear and gasoline mileage loss may result.

Condition your conditioner

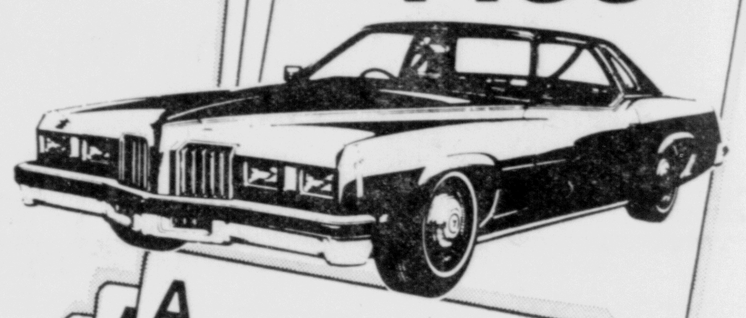

If your car has an air conditioner, don't let it remain completely idle in winter. Let it run occasionally a few minutes at a time so the freon can circulate and deep the system "freed up."

Keep your distance

Traffic safety experts recommend maintaining one car length between vehicles for each 10 miles of speed. In other words, at 50 miles an hour, stay five car lengths back.

Safety first consideration when using bumper jack

Doing your own automotive work can save you time and money, but it also can bring you a lot of misery if you don't adopt a professional attitude toward repairs, according to the National Safety Council.

Many do-it-yourself repairmen, according to NSC traffic department manager Don Lhotka, make a critical mistake in using a bumper jack to support their vehicles while they do wheel or undercarriage work.

"A bumper jack," Lhotka says, "is made for only one purpose — changing a tire. It's not suitable for extended wheel work or any work that puts the mechanic under the car," he continued.

Lhotka offered motorists th following advice for safe bumper jack use:

1. Make sure the jack platform is on a smooth, level surface and the shaft of the jack is perpendicular to the ground. Position the bumper hook properly according to your car-owner's manual, and make sure the lock is in the full-up position before attempting to raise the car.

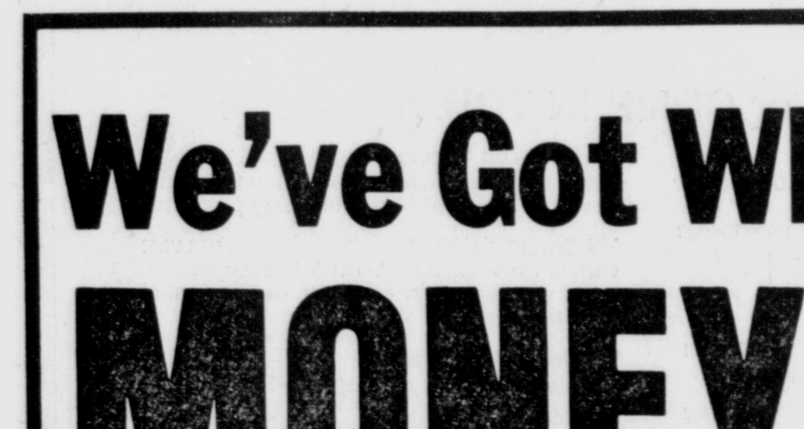

2. Press down on the service brake and then set the emergency brake. This will lock all four wheels. Then shift into "park" on automatic transmission vehicles or "reverse" on manual transmissions.

3. Keep children and pets away from the work area.

4. If you're changing a tire, loosen the lug nuts before jacking the wheel off the ground. This will make it easier to unfasten the nuts. In addition, a sharp pull on a lug wrench while the car is on the jack could cause the vehicle to fall. When replacing the tire, semi-tighten the lugs while the wheel is raised. Finish the job when the wheel is on the ground.

5. Jack slowly to avoid shaking the car.

6. Check to be sure nothing is under the car before lowering it to the ground.

Basic guidelines for tire selection

With both safety and budget in mind, the Tire Industry Safety Council offers some basic tire selection guidelines.

First, go by the book.

Before considering options to the tires that came with the car, check the owner's manual, a dealer or the tire instructions affixed to the car.

Tire replacement recommendations for any vehicle should take into account size limitations, car handling efficiency and other safety considerations.

Never select a smaller tire than those that came with the car. It might affect ground clearance, instrument accuracy and the suspension system of the car and is not designed to carry the vehicle load.

There are three tire types or constructions — bias, belted bias and radial tires. All must meet government safety standards.

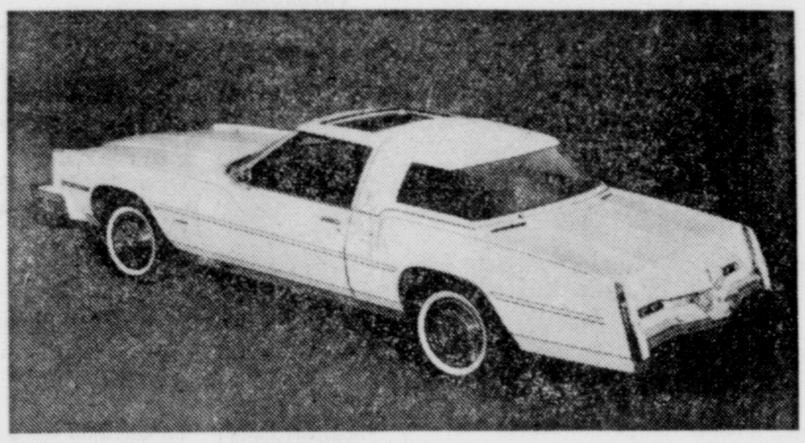

Second, play the tire mating and mixing game correctly.

It is best to try and keep the same construction and size of tire on all four wheels.

Never mix different tire constructions on the same axle.

If a pair of radial tires is used with bias or belted bias tires, the radials always go on the rear axle.

Third, if your old tires wear out before you think they should, have an expert check them to find out why. It may be that better tire maintenance will help you make your new tires last longer.

CB transmissions depend on proper engine care

A sparking spark plug, if it were linked to a resonant antenna, could create a radio signal that could be heard around the world. Ordinarily, this fact might be of interest only to trivia fans, broadcast engineers or former spark gap operators.

But due to the phenomenal growth of Citizen's Band radio usage in cars and trucks, the radio signal emitted by the spark plug and the ignition system is of unusual interest.

Now that the CB radio literally is becoming with nation's conversation piece, the initials R.F.I. take on a new importance. R.F.I. stands for radio frequency interference.

R.F.I., AS THE name implies, is the "static" noises emanating from sources on or within the car itself. These noises can interfere with reception of CB and conventional radios, and conventional radios, television and other communications media.

Most cars and trucks are suppressed by the manufacturer to provide satisfactory reception in conventional AM and FM receivers. However, amateur radio, citizen's band and other types of two-way communications systems may require additional and more efficient suppression.

Capacitors, providing grounding of R.F.I. signals, and special routing of wires are typical suppression devices.

The high voltage ignition circuit (the unit that actually fires the spark plug) is potentially the worst R.F.I. offender. To minimize the possibilities of R.F.I. from this circuit, ignition cables are usually of the resistor type. These suppressor cables use resistance type conductions rather than metal wire conductors at their core.

ALSO COMMONLY used in R.F.I. suppression are resistor-type spark plugs. Resistor plugs contain an element that greatly reduces radiation from ignition cables and virtually eliminates the high frequency of the spark.

Many vehicles currently utilize both resistor plugs and suppression cables for R.F.I. squelching.

To keep CB reception and transmission at its most efficient level, maintenance of the ignition system is important.

Of prime importance is the condition of the spark plug wires. Long usage, engine temperature, vibration and rough handling can lessen their R.F.I. suppression ability. So when the engine is tuned, wires should be given a resistance check. Wires should ordinarily be replaced when resistance value approaches three times the original value.

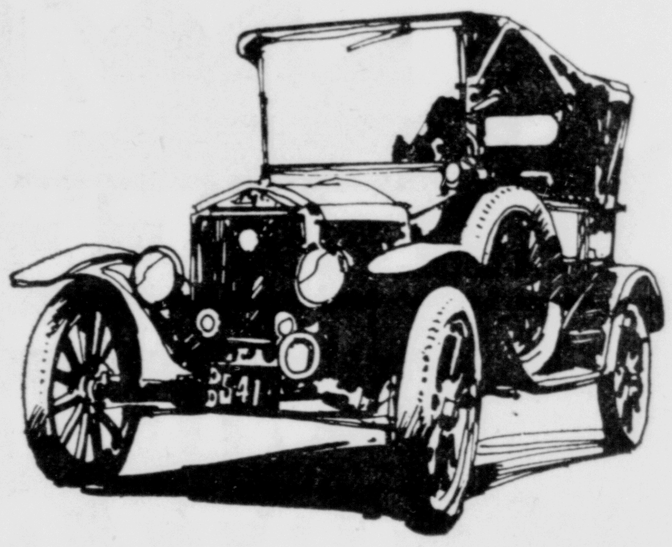

ALSO IMPORTANT is how ignition cables are handled. When working with them, twist, then pull at the plug boot, not the cables themselves. Cables should not be cut to attach suppressors or connectors. Usually cables cannot be repaired satisfactorily, but should be replaced when damaged — preferably the entire set of cables.

Worn spark plugs, with wide gaps, require higher ignition voltage. When this condition exists, the ignition system will radiate higher levels of interference as well as hamper engine performance. Installing new resistor plugs will help relieve the situation.

Erosion of the rotor also can affect the distributor cap segments and can cause additional R.F.I. Such erosion increases the gap which the ignition voltage must jump and causes higher interference levels and poor performance. Should the rotor and cap become worn, replace them.

Poor connections at locations like the spark plug terminals, coil and distributor towers, hamper suppression and engine performance. Connections should be checked for tightness as part of a tune-up.
